U.S. Court Hears 'Humming' Tape

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — One of President Nixon's Watergate tapes — marred by whistles, hums and garbled voices — was played in public for the first time today in the court of Judge John J. Sirica.

The tape contained portions of conversations Nixon had with former key aides, John D. Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman, on June 20, 1972, three days after the Watergate break-in.

Sirica ordered it played as part of an effort to try to find out whether the recordings had been altered in any way.

This tape was chosen because Rose Mary Woods, Nixon's personal secretary, testified Monday she apparently accidentally erased an 18-minute segment while transcribing it on Oct. 1. She was on the witness stand as the tape was played.

Miss Woods herself threaded the machine she had used to transcribe the tape, punched the play button and as newsmen and spectators leaned forward in their seats, the president's voice was heard in the courtroom.

The quality of the tape was extremely poor — marred by a low hum and echoes in his executive office building, where the conversation took place.

At first only occasional words, including some profanity, could be heard as Nixon discussed news conferences and other matters with Ehrlichman.

Their words were obscured by background noises including such things as a jet plane and the toot of a car horn.

Twenty minutes into the tape, the voices were replaced by a loud, persistent hum that sounded like an electric razor or an outboard motor at trolling speed.

The hum diminished about four minutes later to a lower pitch. It changed slightly in pitch four minutes later, stopped briefly after another three minutes and eventually returned to its original high level.

When voices were heard again, 18¼ minutes later, Nixon was speaking with Haldeman and could be heard to say "either way, either way."

The president could also be heard at one point saying, "I work better when even I go to a place like that," and at another point he asked a White House steward to bring him some consomme.

Miss Woods, who had testified Nov. 18 that the quality of that particular tape was "very bad" and that it took her some 30 hours to transcribe it, frequently shook her head as the tape was playing.

"You see how difficult it is?" she said quietly to one of the Watergate prosecutors who hovered over the machine attempting to hear.

SIRICA

Sirica listened with little expression from the bench, but grinned broadly when the president broke into a cheerful whistle at one point.

Over-all, the tape sounded much like a short-wave radio broadcast — scratchy and with voices fading in and out. The voices were almost impossible to understand.

In a related development, the Senate Watergate committee, delayed in investigating Nixon's alleged milk fund and Howard Hughes' $100,000 gift to C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, apparently has finished its hearings for this year.

'IT COULDN'T HAPPEN . . .'

Times News Services

Experts in the U.S. familiar with the recorder involved say Rose Mary Woods' version of how a key White House tape was erased describes an accident that is either technically impossible or highly unlikely.

In Los Angeles, the service manager for an electronics company distributing the tape recorder used by Miss Woods said the chances of a mistake such as she described were "poor . . . very, very low because of the way it (the machine) is designed."

Carl Bennett and other recording experts emphasized there are built-in safeguards on nearly every tape recorder against the kind of accidental erasure described by Miss Woods.

"To erase, you have to manually depress two buttons simultaneously said Bennett, "if you press either one first, it won't do anything."

"It's not easy to do at all. It's hard for me to see where it's a mistake," he said.

The only other way erasure could have occurred, Bennett said, would be if Miss Woods had been using the tape recorder with a microphone which has a one-stage record mechanism.

It was unlikely though that, as a secretary, Miss Woods would be using the microphone.

"Most secretaries don't use a mike. They use a foot switch which has 'play' and 'rewind,' but no 'record' capability," Bennett said.

Greek Students Freed

ATHENS (UPI) — Police authorities in Salonica, under orders from the new military rulers, today began releasing scores of persons arrested last week for participation in anti-government demonstrations. An Athens newspaper said most of those arrested in the capital also would be freed.

About 1,500 students held a sit-in demonstration in Salonica University Nov. 16 and authorities rounded up scores of persons and charged them with instigating the protest. Some charges will stand.

The Athens newspaper To Vima said 250 persons, mostly students, would be released today.

The new military regime today consolidated its power, purging opponents from the armed forces and drafting a policy statement outlining Greece's future course.

Sources close to the new rulers said Brig.-Gen. Dimitrios Ioannides, the military police chief who masterminded the coup, has completed a shakeup of the armed forces and had purged officers refusing to go along with the ouster of Papadopoulos, putting at least 16 generals under house arrest.

Next Stop Aden?

Times News Services

DUBAI — A hijacked Dutch jumbo jetliner took off from this Persian Gulf state today after a stop of four hours.

Airport sources said its planned destination was Aden.

The aircraft carrying three Arab hijackers and 11 hostages had landed here after its captain radioed to the control tower here that he was running short of fuel.

The Royal Dutch Airlines 747 carried the three Palestinian hijackers, 10 crewmen and KLM vice-president A. W. Witbolt on a five-and-a-half hour flight from Malta while the guerrillas were refused permission to land in Baghdad and Kuwait.

Officials said they believed that by releasing 244 passengers and eight stewardesses in Malta, the hijackers indicated the purpose of their mission was accomplished.

They had demanded and received pledges from the Netherlands not to provide facilities for Soviet Jews emigrating to Israel and not to permit transportation of arms or volunters to Israel.

Witholt had offered himself as a hostage in Malta to win the release of eight stewardesses and the passengers, mostly Japanese who were hijacked Sunday night when they left Beirut on their way to Tokyo.

It was the second time in four months Dubai had been the scene of a hijack drama. For three days in July, 137 passengers aboard a Japan Air Lines jumbo sweated in 100-degree temperatures on Dubai's tarmac while four hijackers, three Arabs and a Japanese, haggled with local officials.

West Scoffs At Fuel Plan

LEAN FACE of ascetic would seem to belong more to a desert hermit than being that of a man who holds the standard of living of millions in the western world in his hands. King Faisal of Saudi Arabia today joined his fellow Arab leaders at the Algiers summit in presenting an implacable face against countries favoring Israel.

Western province politicians hedged Monday on the question of co-operation with Ottawa's new energy conservation policy.

Saving energy in the West won't be of much help to the eastern part of the country that needs it, Manitoba Energy Minister Len Evans commented.

Evans, who is also chairman of the Manitoba Energy Council, said Manitobans can drive at the speed limit, keep their thermostats up and turn on their Christmas lights without fear of being unpatriotic.

Voluntary restraints called for by federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald really don't apply to Western Canada, he said.

"As a good Canadian, I would like to see Manitobans help their eastern cousins, but the facts are that whatever we do here would be of very little help to the East. There's no way of getting any oil that's saved here to the East."

B.C. would be willing to "bail out the East," Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said, but there are two conditions the province wants to see included in the energy package.

"Meaningful controls" on gasoline prices so British Columbians won't be "driving their cars on Arab oil prices when we've got oil in the ground here," is one demand, he said.

The other is for a Canadian Petroleum Corporation to conduct the necessary exploration, to build pipelines, to have marketing powers over all petroleum products in the country, and to control the "skyrocketing" profits of multi-national oil corporations.

Macdonald denied that B.C. was facing any serious fuel shortages this winter.

Gasoline supplies are "okay", he said, home heating fuels are "marginal" but should last through the winter and bunker fuels for industry are "questionable" since they are imported from California.

"This kind of tinkering around on the consuming side of energy is not going to be effective," was Saskatchewan Industry Minister Kim Thorson's attitude.

The Saskatchewan government is preparing "fairly extensive measures" to deal with long-term conservation of energy to ensure that large corporations do not make windfall profits on the energy crisis, and perhaps control retail prices of gasoline, he said.

Another Saskatchewan government spokesman, Attorney-General Ray Romanow, said that in asking Canadians to reduce their energy consumption Ottawa in effect is telling the West to cut back on production of grain.

Reduced supplies and higher costs for petroleum products would have a detrimental effect on production and efficiency in the farm industry, he said in a speech to the Weyburn, Sask., chamber of commerce.

The Alberta department of federal and intergovernmental affairs said in a statement:

"Until the provincial government considers the full implications, if any, on the citizens

OJIBWA WARRIORS OCCUPY CENTRE

KENORA (CP) — The Warrior Society of the Ojibwa Indian Nation today occupied Indian Affairs offices here to draw attention to a list of grievances.

Louie Cameron, one of four chairmen of the society, said the occupation will last 25 hours.

"There are about 100 of us here now and more are coming," Cameron said.

"We walked in and politely gave the superintendent his eviction notice. We told the employees to take a day off and have a good time."

Report Urges Zero Growth

VANCOUVER (CP) — Population growth must be stopped if Vancouver is to remain habitable, according to a Greater Vancouver Regional District report leaked today.

The Province says the report, "still under wraps and in draft form," slaps hard at planners at every level of government and at politicians in regional and local governments for failing to meet the problems of growth.

Produced during the past year by a committee of 37 persons, the report is one of several being prepared by 250 citizen volunteers in a regional project called the livable region program.

The Province quotes the report as saying: "It would seem all of our municipal, regional and provincial planners, together or separately, have not been able to anticipate or to provide for the human needs of a growing population."

The report, according to the newspaper, says that people have been told that growth is inevitable and must be planned even though planners have failed to maintain livability in the face of growth and are unlikely to do so in future.

"Repeatedly the public has been forced to rally against its own planners and to defeat growth-oriented schemes such as the third crossing, downtown freeways and the Four Seasons complex," the Province quotes the report as saying.

Planners were not creating facilities for the future because it is unfair to tax people for the benefit of future users.

"The present population does not want to see the open spaces disappear, their neighborhoods become more crowded, their roads more congested or their social services and recreational facilities more burdened.

"However, it is also clear that cities reach a certain point where future increases in population do not lead to equivalent increases in financial or social facilitation, but rather the opposite. When cities continue to grow beyond that point, not only does the livability rapidly decrease, but also the tax base and go-

Senate Approves Ford Nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Senate approved overwhelmingly today the nomination of Rep. Gerald Ford as new vice-president. The House is expected next week to complete the historic first for Congress in filling the nation's second highest office.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House voted today to place the United States on daylight savings time until the end of April, 1975, in order to conserve energy. If the bill is passed by the Senate and signed into law by President Nixon, clocks would be turned ahead one hour beginning at 2 a.m. on the first Sunday that falls 15 days after the law is enacted.

Stock Markets Waver

Times News Services

NEW YORK — The stock market hovered uncertainly today after taking massive losses Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was down 3.53 at 821.42. Gainers and losers were about even this morning on New York Stock Exchange, where trading swung slightly upward after the opening, but most of the gains had evaporated by noon.

At Montreal all sectors of the stock market were off and by noon in Toronto prices were off moderately in active trading.

(Wall Street analysts are saying the market is in a "creeping crash" rather than a precipitous decline, as explained in a business section story on Page 7.)

Monday, the Dow Jones average absorbed the fifth-largest loss in its 75-year history, plunging 29.05 points to finish at 824.95. It was the lowest closing for the bellwether indicator since Nov. 29, 1971 exactly two years ago — when it finished at 816.59.

U.S. Forcing Oil Use Cut

Times News Services

The U.S. government issued regulations to ration heating oil in such a way that Americans will be forced to make their homes and businesses cooler this winter.

The regulations are the specifics of what President Nixon announced in general Sunday. The government believes homes should be six degrees cooler and businesses and government offices 10 degrees cooler.

Every customer of heating oil will get a supply reduced by the amount necessary to force the lower thermostat settings.

The American move came as diplomats attending the Arab summit meeting in Algiers made no bones about their determination to deliver a virtual ultimatum to Western Europe to stop supporting Israel or face an even tougher oil boycott.

In private and public statements Arab leaders make it clear the European community rather than the United States will be the main target for their drive to isolate Israel because of Europe's heavy dependence on Arab oil.

In Paris, Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani warned today that any European attempt to help oil-deprived Holland would trigger retaliatory actions.

The minister, who is on a world-wide public relations campaign to explain the oil embargo by the Arab states, refused to spell out what retaliatory steps might be taken.

In Washington, President Nixon indicated to leaders of Congress he does not expect any loosening of the embargo until some progress takes place in Arab-Israeli peace talks.

Egypt said today it is reviewing its decision to attend a proposed international peace conference on the Middle East, and an Egyptian official warned Israel the Egyptian armed forces are fully perpared for action if Israel does not withdraw to the Oct. 22 ceasefire lines.

The situation on the southern sector of the canal front south of Ismailia, where the Israelis broke through to the west bank during the October war, has now become a "war of nerves."

Newsmen Monday saw plenty of evidence that both sides are anticipating renewed fighting and preparing defensive positions.

Ahmed Anis, the official Egyptian spokesman, was asked at a Cairo news conference Egypt might refuse to attend the December Geneva conference if the current negotiations with Israel on the separation of their forces along the canal are not successful.

He said Israel is "playing for time" at the military meetings held at Kilometre 101 on the Cairo-Suez road and that "this can only reflect adversely its intentions towards the peace conference itself."

Asked about progress at the Kilometre 101 talks, Anis said:

"The Egyptian side has honored to the letter the UN document on the ceasefire stabilization.

"There is nothing so far to indicate the Israelis are going to do the same."

UNITED LAYS OFF 1,000 WORKERS

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — United Airlines today announced it will lay off more than 1,000 employees, including 300 pilots, and cancel 100 flights daily because of the fuel crisis.

Edward Carlson, president of the largest U.S. airline, said the cancellations had been scheduled even before President Nixon announced Sunday an additional 15 per cent cut in jet fuel delivery for airlines.

The new cutback would result in still more layoffs, he indicated.

Airlines in the U.S. already have reduced flights 6 to 7 per cent to bring them down to the level of service they provided in 1972.

One of the major reasons for the acute scarcity of aviation fuel — the administration estimates a 400,000-barrel-per-day shortage in the first part of 1974, nearly one-third of the demand — is the sudden reliance of the defence department on domestic fuel supplies because foreign sources have been cut off, according to White House energy chief John Love.

No Buyers for Stocks, Institutions Selling

The New York Stock Exchange index tumbled 1.58 points to 51.51, a mark it had not seen since Nov. 29, 1971, when it finished at 51.47.

Nearly 10 times as many stocks fell as gained ground Monday. Noting the 1,518 losers — compared with only 149 gainers — one analyst commented, "a few years ago, there weren't even 1,500 stocks listed on the exchange.

The energy crunch — underlined but, according to some Wall Street opinion, not significantly helped by President Nixon's Sunday night announcement—remained the market's chief headache. Additional concern came from an increase in the prime lending rate (to 9¾ per cent from 9½ per cent), announced by the First National Bank of Chicago, and a report that the federal budget showed a deficit of $5.46 billion in October, the third red-ink showing in the first four months of the fiscal year.

The selling actually began before the markets here opened Monday. In Frankfurt and London, American stocks moved lower throughout the day. When the exchanges opened for business, more liquidation tumbled in. By the end of the first 30 minutes of trading, the Dow was off more than 13 points. After an hour, the average was down more than 20 points. The rate of decline slowed after that, and there was practically no buying interest until shortly before the closing bell, when a few points were shaved from the losses.

At its worst, the Dow was off more than 33 points and closing in on its record loss, 38.33 points, recorded on Oct. 28, 1929.

Wall Street analysts, noting the moderate volume in relation to the huge loss, used terms like "controlled panic" and "controlled hysteria" to describe the selling. Large investing institutions, they said, appeared to be choosing stocks for sale, then dumping them on the market once the decisions were made.

"The key thing is the buyers are missing," said Monte Gordon of the Dreyfus Corp. "That's why the volume is so low. Half the market is missing."

Another analyst said, "I think its a controlled type of panic, but nevertheless a panic." He singled out leisure-time companies, whose stocks have taken heavy beatings, and said, "Nobody seems concerned about how far down they have to go (in price) in order to sell, once the sell decision has been made.

The market's continued drop has also led to an increase in margin calls — demands for more cash from investors who buy on credit. A spokesman for Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, Inc., said today margin calls have reached "a significant level" and that many investors seem to be selling their shares instead of putting up more money.

At another large house, a spokesman said margin calls are "flooding out" as a result of the continued selloff.

Trading volume for the day came to 19.83 million shares — up from the 11.47 million turned over on Friday, a semi-holiday sandwiched between Thanksgiving and the weekend, but less than the 20 million-plus levels earlier this month.

In the list itelf, losses were everywhere. All 30 of the blue chips in the Dow Jones industrials lost ground. Only five of the 65 stocks in the Dow composite were able to gain. Of the 15 most actively traded issues, 13 lost ground and two were ahead.

One of those, McDonald's, came back from a loss of three points to finish with a ⅝-point gain at 47½. The hamburger chain has lost 24½ points since the end of October. Walt Disney, another leisure-time issue pounded by the gasoline shortage — which is likely to keep Disneyland and Disney World customers at home — came back from a loss of more than three to finish down 1¾ at 42⅛.

The biggest losses generally showed up in the chemicals, which rely on petroleum products for raw materials as well as fuel to run their machinery.

warning by another Egyptian official that Egyptian armed forces are "fully prepared"; to resume the fighting if Israel continues its stalling tactics.

The key point of dispute was the Security Council resolution asking Israel to return to the Oct. 22 ceasefire lines, a move that would free the Egyptian 3rd army and open the road from Cairo to Suez. Israel insists it is impossible to return to these lines because there were no ceasefire lines then.

The talks stopped Monday after one hour and 20 minutes. Israeli chief negotiator Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv walked out alone, strode round the Israeli tent about 25 yards from the United Nations tent, and appeared to speak angrily to Capt. Naftali Shimrat, the Israeli liaison officer. Yariv's behavior caused noticeable nervousness among the Israeli soldiers.

Shimrat, who has been stationed at the talks site for nearly three weeks, later told newsmen he was returning to Tel Aviv.

of Alberta, there will be no comment."

However, Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia said his province is "anxious and willing to co-operate" with the federal measures.

Regan said that while Nova Scotia believes it will have adequate supplies of petroleum this winter, "we would want to participate in voluntary restraints if it would help our neighboring provinces."

Leaders of the petroleum industry, meanwhile, were at odds in their reaction to Macdonald's plea for voluntary public energy conservation.

John Poyen, president of the Canadian Petroleum Association, said the voluntary measures would work. But C. S. Dunkley, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada, believed that permitting the free market price of petroleum to rise without interference would lower the demand more effectively.

Meanwhile, a Calgary newspaper says the Alberta government plans to increase royalties on crude oil production from Crown land by about 35 per cent.

It quotes a goverment source as saying that a new tax formula has not been completed but that a 35-per-cent increase in royalties appears probable.

They now average 22 per cent. A 35-per-cent increase would bring the tax rate to just under 30 per cent.

Speaking in Montreal, Premier Barrett suggested the federal government should mobilize the country's railway network immediately to relieve the threat of oil shortages in eastern Canada.

"If there is an emergency let the federal government move on an emergency basis," he said.

"There is no reason why Quebec and Ontario and the east should suffer because the resources are in the West."

He levelled a blast at the federal government for allegedly failing to develop a national energy policy. But he added that he favored the government putting a surcharge on oil exports.

"There have been five energy policies in five months out of the federal government and there is still no clear policy," he said.

In Ottawa, the National Energy Board has initiated a review of natural gas export prices to determine whether exporters are being paid enough for their produce.

A board spokesman said the review will attempt to find out whether exporters are receiving a "just and reasonable" price for natural gas in the wake of rising demand.

Companies with export licences have been asked to file submissions to the board before next Jan. 22, and a public hearing then will be conducted.

HOG FUEL EYED TO RUN HYDRO

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Resources Minister Bob Williams said Monday Vancouver's Island's electricity requirements may be met by giant generators powered by hog fuel.

B.C. Hydro is studying the possibility of using major hog fuel burners to provide residential and commercial electricity because of the rising price of natural gas, he said.

Following a tour of northwood pulp and timber's hog fuel generator, he said he is intrigued by the question of making use of present wastes.

"We have this natural resource in B.C. that we are wasting to a very great extent," Williams said.

"Now that gas prices have in effect doubled in the province, it may well be that hog fuel is a very realistic alternative."

meeting that lasted nearly two hours.

In other aspects of the energy crisis in the U.S.:

—Energy adviser John Love testified at a Senate hearing that higher prices — not more tax breaks — should be allowed to induce industry to find sources of energy the nation needs.

—The Baltimore Sun said among additional steps being considered to conserve fuels of various types are a four-day school week, reducing weekday hours for gasoline sales, a surtax on consumption of electric power and closing national parks to private cars.

States began lowering speeds to 50 miles per hour and closing gas stations on freeways and many major trucking firms ordered their drivers to slow down.

Elsewhere, sources in Algeria said Arabs are expected to ease oil restrictions to Japan because of Tokyo's endorsement of Arab views.

And in Britain, the government Thursday will issue gasaline rationing coupons.

vernability of the city deteriorate. If this were not true, New York and Los Angeles would be rich paradises.

"When the liability of a region begins a rapid decline, it is the young, the wealthy, the imaginative and the intelligent who generally leave first, leaving behind the elderly on fixed incomes, the handicapped, the poor and others whose taxes generally do not cover the cost of the social services they require."

The Province says the report suggested some alternatives to uncontrolled growth including the end of advertising the city's merits, improving social services in other parts of the province and controlled rents during housing shortages.

The report also suggested that young people be encouraged to seek careers outside the Vancouver region by locating new businesses and educational facilities outside the Vancouver region, says the Province.

Accountant Receiver For Triton

VANCOUVER (CP) — Triton Industries Ltd. of Richmond, an electronics manufacturing firm which appealed to the provincial government to buy 50-per-cent equity in the company, has been placed in receivership.

Chartered accountant Martin Linsley has been appointed receiver-manager for Triton.

He said the appointment of a receiver means "the powers of the boards of directors are effectly paralysed."

Linsley said he was appointed last week following action on two demand loans secured by Triton debentures. The first debenture, for $180,000, was issued Oct. 24, 1972, and the second, for $750,000, was issued Aug. 6, 1973.

Triton president Gordon Anderson placed a one-week deadline on his Nov. 1 request that the government buy 50-per-cent equity in the firm for $500,000 but Industrial Development Minister Gary Lauk said his department would have to study the matter before deciding.

TAPE ERROR 'UNLIKELY'

He described the Uher 5000 model used by Miss Woods as "a professional piece of gear which sells like hotcakes" and retails for $500.

Principally used for dictation, he said it was also used for "more or less so-called buggings,"

Bennett noted that the erased portion was described as containing a humming sound.

That puzzled him, he said, because if the tape had been erased by the Uher's own recording head "there shouldn't be anything but a slight hissing noise."

Tim Maddalon, service manager for the Sanyo Electric Inc., cited possible exposure of the tapes to a magnetic field to explain erasure.

Told it happened on the machine, Maddalon said, "that would be a little hard to believe, I'm afraid. I'm for the president, but it's a little hard to swallow."

An executive for the Sony Corporation of America, Fred Tushinsky, explained the working of the commonly used safeguard against accidental erasure, called an "interlock."

Most such systems, he said, require two separate and deliberate actions — depression of the 'record' button followed by engagement of the 'forward' or 'play' control.

"I know of no commercial tape recorder sold for consumer use that does not include an interlock against accidental erasure," said Tushinsky.

Asked to rate the chances of someone accidentally erasing existing recordings, he said, "I think it would be very hard to do it accidentally."

Pressure Cited By White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional investigator read memos today that he said showed White House pressure on the Small Business Administration to guarantee loans to a construction company owned by a co-chairman of the Athletes for Nixon committee.

Curtis Prins, chief investigator for the house banking committee, told the subcommittee on small business the loans concerned the Benny McRae Construction Co. of Portsmouth, Va., a company run by a former professional football player.

Prins read a memo from Thomas Reagan, director of the Richmond, Va., SBA office, to subordinates saying "please get out papers on McRae. This is a White House case and the heat is on."

Prins said the word "heat" was underlined twice.

McRae was identified by Prins as a former professional football player with the Chicago Bears and the New York Giants, an adviser to various presidential physical fitness committees and co-chairman of the Athletes for Nixon committee in 1968 and 1972.

Prins was the first witness before the subcommittee, which is investigating allegations of corruption and poor administrative practices in the SBA.

The SBA grants loans and makes loan guarantees to small businesses and minority businesses.

A disturbance that brought overnight rains to the South coast of B.C. produced snow in the interior this morning. The system should move into southwestern Alberta this afternoon and continue tracking eastward. Little relief is likely behind it however as an area of low pressure is expected to linger off the coast for the next couple of days. Sporadic rainshowers will persist in coastal areas while continued snowflurry activity is in prospect for the interior.

Farmers Threaten Milk Cut

Supplies on the milk shelves of Victoria stores could be sparse Saturday if the threat of a picket line by Vancouver Island milk producers is carried out.

A spokesman for the milk producers' association said today the farmers will picket all Vancouver Island dairies if the provincial government does not come through with increased subsidies before the weekend.

Herb Wheat of Nanaimo, president of the producers' association, said the Teamsters' Union which covers milk truck drivers, has vowed to honor the picket line.

Wheat said the producers are seeking increased government subsidies which would result in a five-cent increase in milk prices to the consumer.

"I've talked to a lot of people and they say they would be willing to pay that increase," Wheat said.

The increase, Wheat said, would only cover the increased cost of cattle feed to the farmers.

"We farmers have produced food cheap all our lives — we should be able to join the good life too, sometime before the end of our lives."

Victoria Canada Safeway Ltd. manager, J. F. Fidler, said today his stores would be affected if the producers effectively shut off the Victoria dairies distribution lines.

Although Safeway handles its own brand of milk from the Lower Mainland, Victoria stores also handle Island Farms milk, one of the dairies that would be hit by the picket line.

Neil Gray, Dairyland's assistant general manager at the Vancouver head office, said a picket line around the Victoria factory would affect distribution and processing of milk.

He said Dairyland was supplied from both Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland, but said all distribution to stores and homes would be affected if the Teamsters honor the picket lines.

"We can only try to get the picket lifted," Gray said, "but the farmers' quarrel is with the government, not with the processors."

Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich was not available for comment today, but Stupich said earlier in the week that a plan to help milk producers was being prepared but might not be ready this week.

GOLF COURSE BYLAW INVALID

Two proposed bylaws designed to minimize tax assessments for Oak Bay's two golf courses are invalid, Oak Bay council learned Monday.

At a special meeting called to deal with the bylaws, council unanimously, but reluctantly, decided against the go ahead.

In a letter to council, municipal solicitor Marsh Gordon said the golf courses were not "public" land and therefore did not qualify for tax exemption under the Municipal Act.

Under the act, municipal councils may exempt any land or improvements "owned or held by an athletic club" which is used "principally as a public park or recreation ground or for public athletic or recreational purposes."

The bylaws would have placed a 10 per cent ceiling on tax assessment increases for Uplands and Victoria Golf courses.

The idea of the bylaws, introduced by Ald. Brian Smith, was to keep membership fees as low as possible.

"It's a pity that we got this far down the road and found this out," said Smith, "It doesn't appear that these two golf courses can do anything to comply with the act unless they turn themselves into totally public courses."

Council earlier this month persuaded the provincial government to include the golf courses in the agricultural land reserve plan to protect the land from future subdivision.

"We have done that much and that's as much as we can do," said Mayor Frances Elford.

Ald. Doug Watts said council can only hope the provincial government passes legislation next spring to alleviate the golf courses' tax situation.

BOB TO OPEN TORY MEET

Federal Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield will open the provincial leadership convention of the party in Richmond on Friday.

Stanfield will attend a breakfast Saturday with leadership candidates. So far the only member of the party to fit that category is G. Scott Wallace, MLA for Oak Bay.

If another leadership candidate appears, election will take place Saturday afternoon.

The party leadership was thrown open after the Sept. 7 byelection in South Okanagan when leader Derril Warren failed in his second attempt to gain a seat in the legislature and subsequently resigned.

More than 350 delegates are expected to attend the convention — "the largest gathering of B.C. Conservatives in 10 years, according to a party statement.

Underground Wiring For Sidney Dropped

New subdivisions in Sidney will not have underground wiring.

Council rejected on Monday two bylaws which would have made "A1 residential zoning" compulsory in subdivisions of two acres or more.

The bylaws needed a two-thirds majority to pass and Aldermen Wilkie Gardner and Fred Robinson voted against them.

In an interview today Ald. Chris Andersen said council has worked two years toward underground wiring for Sidney and "I finally thought we had it fixed."

At a public hearing on the bylaws, held earlier this month, a number of developers opposed the bylaws saying they would pose an additional expense.

"It doesn't cost the town a nickel," said Andersen adding the costs would be paid by the developer and subsequently passed on to the homeowner.

He 'Framed' Escape

A William Head inmate who escaped Sunday while bowling in Saanich was still free this morning.

Garry Gerald Morey, 23, serving a four-year term for possessing heroin for the purpose of trafficking, left an alley where he and nine other inmates were bowling under the supervision of two correctional officers.

Morey, who is not considered dangerous, is five foot seven, weighs 150 pounds and has shoulder-length auburn hair.

A spokesman for the penitentiary declined to discuss the details of the escape pending an internal investigation.

But the spokesman did say the inmates will still be allowed out for cultural and recreational purposes.

Shortages and Such

Both the prime minister and the energy minister are obviously attempting to create in Canadians a coast-to-coast feeling of oneness and unity in regard to the gasoline and heating oil shortage which now is threatened for the winter. The impact of the shortages, however, will vary greatly in different regions of the country—from definite deprivation in Quebec and the Maritimes and a slight heating oil shortage in British Columbia, to almost no discernible effect in the central areas of the nation. To bring everyone into the common fold, if possible, Energy Minister Macdonald has for good measure tacked on some suggestions for conserving electricity as well.

It is clear, of course, that the reduction of oil shipments from the Arab states will upset the consumption pattern in the eastern provinces, which are almost totally dependent on foreign imports. The situation makes more obvious the desirability of extending the Canadian pipeline, which now connects Alberta with Ontario, further to Montreal.

The considerations of cost which a few years ago led eastern consumers and other interests to turn down the plan have now changed drastically, and the intrusion of Arab political policy into what had been a straight economic situation has further emphasized the need to make Canada's oil resources available to Canadians in all parts of the country.

In this respect we are one of the most fortunate countries in the world. With reasonable conservation and use we should be able to meet almost all our petroleum requirements for the few decades during which the resources will last.

In the present time of regional stringency it is important that official spokesmen should not resort to exaggeration when dealing with the public, merely to ensure an equaliziation of participation across the nation. Such a procedure would quickly result in a decline of confidence and a corresponding decline in conservation measures where they are really necessary.

Already, various versions of the situation are emanating from federal and provincial sources and it is necessary that there be no doubts on the part of the public regarding the real facts. Canadians will rally to support any genuine policy of restriction that is necessary to permit the country to function. But the facts should be eminently clear, the policy perfectly plain, and the current effects from time to time fully explained.

Enigmatic Statistics for Winter

In an impish, enigmatic statement Canadian born economist John Kenneth Galbraith summed up the so-called dismal science by saying that one of the greatest pieces of economic wisdom is to know what you don't know. It is the kind of soothsaying the Canadian government may be considering in light of the latest unemployment figures. Despite high interest rates and an impending energy crisis the country's unemployment rate dipped from six per cent to 5.8 per cent in the month of September — a time when jobs usually decline because of Canada's seasonal employment picture.

At the very least the figures indicate an economy with a fair amount of muscle, although part of the hyper-activity might be attributed to inflationary fever. But a closer examination of the statistics is not all that encouraging for the cold months ahead. In fact, unemployment edged up by 8,000 to 429,000 in September, but when normal seasonal figures are added in, Statistics Canada computed a 22,000 decline of jobless people. In basic terms the figures mean that Canadian unemployment was not as high in September as it has been in previous years.

It is an encouraging portent at the beginning of a long cold winter. But unemployment will rise in the coming months because of the usual seasonal factors. Added to normal winter layoffs, shortage of fuels in some eastern industries may cause additional labor reductions. Current high interest rates may deter large-scale industrial expansion during the next six months.

Still, the adjusted decline in unemployment is one bright spot in a fairly gloomy winter tableau. A few more economic smiles and the dismal science may be forced to chuckle in the spring — despite an energy crisis and morbid forecasts about higher interest rates.

A Road Without Reason

It's getting so the provincial government controls most of the wheeled mass transit on southern Vancouver Island. The New Democratic Party regime inherited B.C. Hydro, bought the London Omnibus operation, and now has offered to buy the employee-owned Vancouver Island Coach Lines. Not that there is anything inherently evil in these acquisitions. A good argment can be made for government-run mass transit since private enterprise cannot absorb the losses which such operations often entail in the public interest.

But the government has yet to articulate its philosophy in acquiring various transportation companies. Eyebrows were raised at the London Omnibus purchase which put the government in the tourist business with five London double decker buses—vehicles that have no application to local bus routes and serve mainly as a novel way in which to attract business. If the government offer on Vancouver Island Coach Lines is accepted the public will own the main north-south bus line on the Island.

Yet no statement as to why public money is being invested in this industry is forthcoming. As in its other dips into private enterprise, the government buys a company here, a mill there, without enunciating an overall policy, except for Premier Barrett's vague ideological statement that his government believes in partnerships between public and private industry. So do the Liberals, Conservatives and Social Credit parties, as past experience has shown. Nor has the government proved it can run companies any better than private enterprise.

The public can only judge the merit of government-owned industry if the government explains why it is going into business for itself. Meanwhile, more and more government wheels are turning on a road with few posted directions.

New Fields Threaten Arabs

CALGARY — There is a supply business axiom that goes something like this: "Get all you can while the getting is good, but never push your customers to a point where they are forced to seek alternative sources of supply or substitution of materials." That is an axiom that goes unheeded in the Arab oil state as they use their oil for political blackmail. The signs are already appearing that their short-term gains may be long term liabilities.

One immediate result of the boycott has been to force the United States to re-examine its profligate wastage in energy consumption. That re-examination alone could cut U.S. oil consumption over the intermediate term by upwards of 4 million barrels a day. It will also spur development of Alaska's surface-scratched resources.

Look Elsewhere

More important however is the fact that the watchword of the oil industry is becoming "look elsewhere: "There are millions of square miles of sedimentary rock in the earth's crust holding billions of barrels of undiscovered oil. These formations favorable to oil accumulation not only underlie Africa, North and South American, Arctica and Asia, they underlie the oceans as well, and the last five years has seen spectacular progress in development of offshore drilling technology.

As long as the Arab states were capable of supplying the bulk of the world's oil needs, and world oil prices remained depressed, there was little incentive to explore in the more remote and costlier areas. Not of course that exploration languished, for when one oil company makes a discovery all others rush for a piece of the action.

Even modest increases in prices last year sparked a drilling boom in western Canada that shows little evidence of abating. Then, as the Arabs became more aggressive, the Syncrude tar sands project, which had been dying on the vine, became economic on its own account and sparked advancement of other projects.

The speed with which conditions are changing can be illustrated by a single episode. Canada's largest firm of oil drilling contractors, Westburne International, had an offshore rig sitting idle off the west African coast. An inquiry came in from South America to tow the rig across the Atlantic for work there. Before the conversation really got started, a much better offer came in to put the rig to work off Gabon. If the company had only waited a few weeks it could have obtained a far better contract.

In the now booming North Sea area, rigs are running into trouble finding enough deep divers. Many Canadian companies have taken part of the North Sea action, some important discoveries are being made and hope is rising that self-sufficency of petroleum for the United Kingdom is a reasonable long term prospect.

Over the past decade, the British Government has been slow in issuing exploration permits. With the cutbacks in oil production, Canadians think the U.K. will be forced to ease the controls on offshore drilling permits.

Another result of the Arab hanky-panky is to take some second looks at what is going on in the world. One spectacular development in the past year has been the emergence of Nigeria as an important oil area. At least five new fields have been reported in recent months and production of 1,200,000 barrels a day in 1971 will reach well over 2 million by 1974.

On the other side of the world is New Guinea, where a consortium of Denver and Calgary companies has chalked up some extremely profitable discoveries. There the oil is in pinnacle reefs — pencil-type formations with great depths of pay but restricted area extent. Each reef required only four or five wells, drilled to a depth of only 3,000 feet, each producing upwards of 3,000 barrels a day. Within a few months that country will be exporting more than 100,000 barrels a day.

New Guinea is no Kuwait, and its 100,000 barrels a day won't solve the world's oil shortage. But as the Scots say, "mauny a mickle makes a muckle," and the discovery news will soon be coming in from everywhere. The boom is on in the straits of Malacca, in Indonesia, and in the North Sea.

Gigantic Windfall

Perhaps most of all, it is a boom being fueled by the gigantic windfall which is accruing to the international oil companies with production in the Middle East and Venezuela. The oil producing states have almost doubled the price for which their half of production is sold. In the process they have doubled the selling price for the other half of their production owned by the oil companies. This huge windfall will provide them with the money needed to take their exploration departments elsewhere.

Without that increased income, it might well be exploration would be much less intensive. The revolution in off-shore drilling techniques has made it possible to extend the limit of water depth from 600 feet two years or so ago to around 3,000 feet today. But not only do these deep off-shore rigs cost 20 times the price of conventional rigs, the cost of drilling the offshore wells is also 10 or 15 times as expensive.

Offshore wildcatting is not only expensive, it is more risky, so far at least, than conventional drilling. Shell Oil recently announced that it had spent over $120,000,000 in off shore exploration without success. Nevertheless huge expenditures on the North Sea, the tar sands, etc. have several important pluses. North Sea Oil is safe oil for western Europe. In the search for oil more natural gas will be found to provide additional energy sources. It will cost more to find, but it will flow from wellhead to nearby markets and will not face heavy transportation costs half way around the world.

In summary, the actions of the Arabs have reversed the emphasis in the oil business from production to exploration. Not only are the Arabs providing the profits for the oil companies to use, they threaten to "take over" the properties of the producing companies. And they have roused the concern of all the western nations to a point where they too will be searching for inducements and pressures with which to exert even greater influence on exploration policies.

C. L. SULZBERGER

Still the Ultimate Boss

PEKING — Mao Tse-tung is in effect chairman of the board of that great enterprise called China. No longer an active executive, 80 and semi-retired in terms of administrative routine, he is still the ultimate boss for major policy decisions.

Chairman Mao, as he is always respectfully called, is unusually versatile. He is probably one of this century's best Chinese poets. Lusty, strong, he has had four wives and at least six children, one of whom, a son, was killed in the Korean war. His first wife, sister and two brothers also died violently.

His will power and ambition have been formidable. He told a French group that while Robespierre was a great revolutionary, he was more impressed by Napoleon. Years ago he warned a comrade: "Never be associated with failure . . . Any person who receives our support and does not fulfil his part of the bargain must become the target for frontal attack of pitiless ferocity."

Chinese Ruthless

Ruthlessness is correctly implied by these words. The Chinese tend to be ruthless and, like the ancient Thracians, they created gods in their own image. Chairman Mao also represents the national tradition of wiliness. In July 1945 he gave his deliberately fostered personality cult a boost by writing in an anoymous article that the Chinese people wanted to follow "Mao Tse-tung's way."

Machiavelli observed: "The first impression that one gets of a ruler and of his brains is from seeing the men he has about him." One knows by his right hand, Chou En-lai, that Chairman Mao is remarkable. But one cannot forget the other outstanding persons, now dead or "un-persons," who formerly served the Chairman.

Mao always imposed his will upon himself, and, after that, upon others. He built his physique, as a youth, to a point where his endurance became famous. He earned his bread as an itinerant farm worker in his native Hunan while deliberately toughening his stomach by a Spartan diet.

He conceived and pushed through the famous Long March, which started in 1934, against overwhelming odds. Like Stalin, he imposed his personal regimen as well as his methodology on his followers. Thus still, in the Chairman's old age, China's top men work late and rise late to accord with his habits — although most Chinese prefer early hours.

MAO TSE-TUNG
. . . but mortal

Chairman Mao began life as a modest school teacher and attained more of his culture reading late by oil lamp than at university. His tastes have been simple: plain food, chess, Ping-Pong. His political language is studded with homely phrases: "bean-curd tiger," "sparrow warfare," "paper tiger," "running dogs."

He is just as ambitious as Stalin, whose self-advertising he emulates (although there has been a slight decline in public adulation over the last three years); and he is infinitely more patient. He thinks of revolutionary success in terms of decades or generations.

His practice is more original than his intellectual innovations. He has not created a new Marxist type of thought but he has profoundly adjusted some aspects of Marxism to Chinese circumstances. This is true in both politics and war.

He took the immensely important decision of basing China's revolution on China's peasantry rather thas its urban workers. And, although his traditional military doctrine is a bad digestion of Clausewitz via Lenin, he brilliantly adapted the 2,500-year-old strategist, Sun Tzu, to contemporary guerrilla warfare. Moreover, he proved himself a partisan hero.

Amalgam of Ideas

He has often produced an amalgam of others' ideas rather than synthesis; for example, his "continuing revolution" version of Trotsky's "permanent revolution." And, while keeping the army in discipline, he has made it a school for mass ideological transformation.

Nowadays, Chairman Mao is sinking gradually. He is rarely in this capital more than four months a year; although his portrait is everywhere, his real face is infrequently seen. When in Peking, he lives in the southwest corner of the Forbidden City enclave, among his books, in touch often, but for short stretches, with such lieutenants as Premier Chou. These visitors reach him easily through the capital's famous network of underground tunnels.

Mao Tse-tung has set the stamp of his personality on modern China just as Lenin set the stamp of his intellect on modern Russia. In one poem Mao wrote: "For heroes, now is the time." But "now" it is evident the Chairman is starting physically to fail. Resolute as he is, Mao has one ineluctable weakness: He is mortal.

Optimum Group

On November 19, members of the Optimum Group gathered for a special meeting in recognition of their first anniversary, in the all-purpose room at William Head Minimum Security Prison.

On this occasion, members of the Society for Autistic Children were invited to attend in order that they might be presented with a set of learning aids from the children in the class for autistic children at Sir James Douglas School.

The Optimum Group has long shown a special interest in helping the autistic child and has offered to make additional learning aids for the children.

In their search for suitable wood to make these special toys, members have found B.C. Forest Products willing to donate supplies of wood for the purpose.

The Society for Autistic Childden and the teaching staff of the class deeply appreciate the enthusiastic interest and concern that the Optimum Group has shown. — Mrs. Ann van Noordt, 610 Pine St.

Nurse's Aide

I am afraid your correspondent, Ms. S. Mahoney, has been terribly misled regarding the conditions which prevailed at the Richmond Heights Hospital.

I worked at that hospital as a nurse's aide but just could not tolerate the treatment given to the patients, especially the elderly. I was not fired but left of my own accord in spite of a request by the hospital administrator to continue. Her very words were, "the patients enjoy having a young face around".

I found that as a nurse's aide my fellow workers, like myself, were not trained in geriatrics and were, in fact, paid a very lowly wage — just above the minimum wage, and consequently the work to most of them was just a job which is, in my view, wrong from a nursing point of view. I remember one case when one of the aides, who was attending an elderly patient said, "move over you old bitch." When I discussed the general attitude of the aides with the administrator or head nurse I was told that such actions were not meant and in any case most of the elderly patients were deaf.

The hospital was continually advertising for staff, especially nurse's aides, and this fact, in itself, should justify my statement that all was not well in the institution prior to its take-over by the provincial government. The tragedy, in my view, was that these very patients were paying very high rates for a minimum of REAL care. After all, compassionate care surely is the first objective of nursing.

It should also be remembered that visitors were only permitted at the Richmond Heights Hospital, as in all other hospitals, in the afternoons when the work of attending to the care of the patients was finished and so they were not in a real position to judge the care given to the patients. I also worked for some time at Mount St. Mary's and I can assure you that the attitude at that institution was entirely different and the patients were treated with loving care. — "Ex-worker."

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of November 27, 1913

Work on the new building of the Windsor Hotel, at the corner of Broughton and Government Streets is proceeding apace. What promises to be an imposing structure with front of light-colored brick has been started and has practically reached the end of the first storey. Heavy steel girders have been placed in position, and altogether the building begins to assume the appearance of one which will be an additional architectural asset to the city. The old building was demolished about a fortnight ago.

By DAVID S. BRODER

WASHINGTON — The president's frenetic public relations efforts over the past two weeks have served to disguise, but not to alter, the stark seriousness of his situation.

He is fighting for his political life, with the knowledge that the whole story of his role in the transactions that have aroused public suspicion must now emerge. The president has not yet told that story; all he has done, in his meetings with Republican politicians and the press, is to say that it will be told. And in doing that, he is doing no more than acknowledging the obvious. The tough times for him still lie ahead.

For the past month, Nixon's position has been essentially the same as Spiro Agnew faced when the federal prosecutors in Baltimore last August put him on notice that he was under investigation on serious charges. The Agnew investigation had begun with a host of subsidiary characters, just as the Nixon investigation did. But in both cases, the focus worked its way to the top — and stayed there until the critical questions were resolved.

Agnew was never indicted, and Nixon may never be impeached, but there can no longer be any doubt in his mind that the whole story will come out. The political imperative which makes full disclosure inevitable in Nixon's case is the same as Agnew's: the Republican party, which nominated both, will not intervene to spare him, any more than it did Agnew, from the burden of full disclosure.

Agnew learned that when a Republican prosecutor, acting with the obvious approval of a Republican attorney-general and a Republican president, filed his formal notice of investigation last Aug. 2.

Nixon received the same word from Republican congressional leaders on Oct. 23, the Tuesday after the long holiday weekend on which Cox, Richardson and Ruckelshaus were eliminated. The president's emissaries went up to Capitol Hill that day to line up Republican support against impeachment demands. They were told, and bluntly, that no Republican leader would speak up on his behalf unless the president was prepared to come clean.

The first step in coming clean, Nixon was told, would be to turn over the White House tapes. That afternoon, two hours after the ultimatum had come from the Republicans on Capitol Hill, the president abandoned his three-month fight to withhold the tapes.

Even should Nixon now desire to backtrack and stop short of full disclosure, the pressures pushing in that direction appear irreversible. Every passing day brings the house Republicans one day closer to their day of reckoning with their constituents. To support the president against impeachment, they will require of him complete candor.

The new independent prosecutor, starting from the base Archibald Cox left behind, is moving toward indictments of some of Nixon's principal past associates. The Senate Watergate Committee is approaching the deadline for rendering its judgment on the matters it has been investigating.

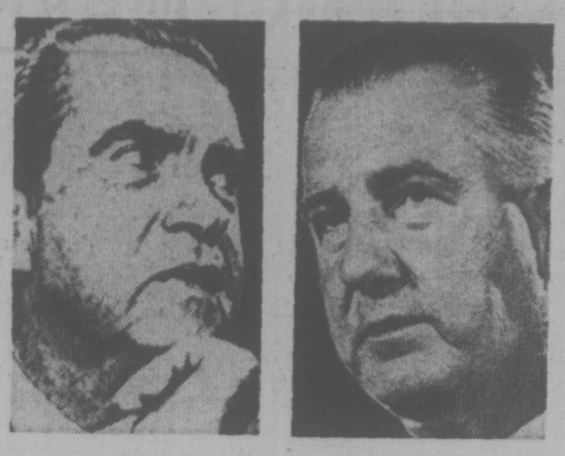
Any effort, however mild, by Nixon to interfere in these processes will come at high cost to his own depleted reserves of trust. He has already conceded about 90 per cent of the ground he set out to protect last spring, when Watergate broke. He cannot retreat much farther without literally being backed out of the oval office.

The proposition now for him is quite simple: Can he stand to come clean? If he can — if he can establish that he did not permit or direct the concealment by members of his campaign, organization and White House staff of the Watergate crimes; if his role in the milk producers case, the ITT case, and the campaign contributions cases was, indeed, innocent; if the handling of his personal finances has been in every respect above-board — then full disclosure will enable him to rout his critics and restore his credibility and power.

If, on the other hand, he cannot stand scrutiny, then he will be driven from office, as surely as Agnew was.

A reporter covering this story is the last one who should prejudge its final chapter. But certain ominous parallels are becoming obvious. Agnew lasted a little more than nine weeks after he knew he would have to come clean. He employed various tactics in that period, first pledging cooperation in the investigation, then finding reasons to delay turning over evidence, waging war with his critics in the press and government, and finally "going public" to mobilize sympathy for his stand.

In retrospect, we can see that those were the writings of an impaled creature. Agnew was dancing at the end of a rope.



Their tactics are the same

We do not know if Nixon's situation is as desperate, but his tactics this past month have been exactly those Agnew employed in his final weeks in office. Now, like Agnew, he has come finally to face the realization that it will all come out. He knows what that means for him. We will soon enough know, too.

WORKERS GET TIME, MONEY TO STUDY

France's Bold Education Program

By JUDITH MILLER
The Progressive

Betty and Francoise are secretaries performing stultifying chores at insurance firms. Although Betty works in New York City and Francoise in Paris, their daily routines are surprisingly similar. Every workday morning, each is faced with stacks of boring letters and forms to type for her empoyer. They share the nine-to-five doldrums and the prospect of a daily round-trip on rush-hour subways. Each is entitled to three weeks of paid vacation a year, plus ten days of sick leave with pay. They spend unoccupied moments thinking about the vacation, which always seems remote.

The only major difference between them is that next year, while Betty attempts to get one extra week off and perhaps applies for a job as secretary to the assistant marketing manager, Francoise will be studying poetry, full-time, at the Sorbonne, at almost her full salary, with no loss of job seniority. In France, thanks to a recently introduced education program, Francoise's year of study is not a privilege extended by her employer; it is her right.

1,200 Hours

The program is called "la Formation Permante" (Continuing Education). It became law in July 1971, and is credited to Jacques Delors, who served in the government under former Premier Chaban Delmas. Basically, the law entitles every French worker who has been employed by a firm for more than two years, and who has not received a degree in the last three years, to one year of full-time, or 1,200 hours of part-time, study or training, financed by the worker's employer and the government.

The study or training program may, but need not necessarily, be work-related. Thus, theoretically, an auto mechanic may study philosophy, poetry, mathematics, or other equally "useless" subjects at his employer's expense. If the employee is less than eighteen years of age, he or she need have been employed by the firm for only six months.

The program covers not only the nineteen million French agricultural and industrial workers, but the almost two million foreign workers in France as well. Only employees less than five years from retirement are ineligible. Although government workers, with the exception of school teachers, are not currently covered, a similar education program is being developed for them.

Keep Salaries

During the program's first year of operation, an estimated 300,000 workers were enrolled in full or part-time study or training. Officials estimate that half a million workers throughout the country will be participating this year.

Although many American vocational schools, community colleges, and university extension programs offer free or low-cost educational opportunities, neither the American employer nor the government is legally bound to pay workers' salaries while they study. In France, Continuing Education is financed by the government and employers. Under the law, employers must now invest 0.8 per cent of their gross payroll in worker study. By 1976, the law calls for employers to spend two per cent of their total payrolls on the project, ensuring that workers can study and still earn almost their full salaries. During the study period, the government contributes to the worker's social security account.

The program is unique. And it is especially remarkable since it was developed in France, a nation not known for progressive social legislation. There was opposition to the plan when it was proposed. Though many employers supported the concept of manpower training, they doubted that workers should have the "right" to study non-job-connected subjects.

Gradually, however, France's major industrialists realized that Continuing Education was good for business, since most workers would probably choose to study job-related subjects. In addition, employers sensed that the program would mitigate worker alienation and dissatisfaction, which had contributed sustantially to the turmoil of May 1968, when French shops, factories, and universities were closed by anti-government strikes and street fighting.

Educators feared the program would place an insupportable strain on resources of the already overburdened and underfinanced university system. Thus, some worker education programs, it was argued, would be left to industrialists to establish themselves, and to marchandes de soupe — those "soup merchants" who would profit by setting up courses and collecting tuition fees.

Some Inertia

The government, however, anticipated the potential educational rip-off factor, and provided that a special division of the Ministry of Labor would be responsible for certifying all study and training centers. If a program does not have the government's approval, it cannot receive employers' francs. As it turns out, business seems to be booming in the Continuing Education field. Universities have strengthened extension programs; in areas without a university, several companies have joined together to set up job-connected training requested by their employes.

The major problem encountered so far is human inertia. The government has launched a broad compaign of educating the working population about the new program, but has encountered some difficulties in interesting its citizens in returning to school and taking advantage of their new right.

French workers, moreover, are still suspicious, despite legal guarantees, that enrolment may result in forfeiture of a desired promotion or withholding of a salary increase. Thus, even though the program is being filled, retraining centers have not been deluged, as was predicted, by hordes of applicants.

Continuing Education, which gets such limited backing in the United States, has created quite a stir in Europe. Several Common Market nations — the Netherlands in particular — have been observing the program's progress with great interest. French officials predict the program will eventually spread throughout the Market countries.

French industry has come to view its monetary contribution to the program as a means of bringing the French working force into the Twentieth Century. French companies, above all, recognize that the labor force must be "industrialized" if France is to continue its rapid rate of economic expansion. An alienated work force, whose skills are antiquated and technologically unsophisticated, would inevitably limit economic growth. The government's commitment to the program is demonstrated by its willingness to permit up to two per cent of the labor force to be enrolled in the program in any single year, though France, with an unemployment rate of only 2.3 per cent (generally considered full employment by economists), imports foreign labor.

The program has also served to buy off the leftist sentiments of many French workers — in a country in which about 40 per cent of the population voted Communist or Socialist in the last election. French unions, whose rhetoric, at least, is much more left-oriented than that of their American counterparts, originally objected to the education project on ideological grounds: they did not want to be "integrated" into the capitalist system. The program's creator, Delors, denies that unions have impeded the project, but government officials report that, even now, unions are reluctant to support it.

Nevertheless, by any measure, la Formation Permanente is a stroke of genius on the part of the French government. It provides French workers an opportunity to train for their own advancement or cultural enrichment, and it helps France to increase worker productivity and counter worker discontent.

LEARNING FROM OTHERS

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

The justification given by the government rang familiar — the deeds were done in the interests of national security. Yet to such proportions!

A special committee of the French Senate reports that the government taps between 1,000 and 5,000 telephones daily, virtually all of them illegally — that is, without a judicial order. The committee says the taps have been used at times for political espionage and personal blackmail, that the costs of the operation drain $10-million to $15-million a year from public revenues.

The committee also says its investigations were hampered by "every obstacle" the government could throw in its way, that judges, civil servants and cabinet ministers, including the Minister of Justice, refused to testify about government wiretapping operations. Senator Pierre Marcilhacy, the Senate committee's president, says he is drawing up a bill with tighter controls. He will need all the help he can get.

So will Ronald Atkey, Conservative MP for the Toronto riding of St. Paul's. He has been leading the campaign to keep teeth in the wiretapping bill presented to Canada's Parliament by the government. He too is opposed by his country's Justice Minister.

The bill has now passed on from committee stage to the Commons for report, with every probability that Justice Minister Otto Lang will again try to crush the amendment pushed through by Mr. Atkey prohibiting police from making use in court of any evidence — direct or indirect — obtained from illegal electronic interception of a conversation.

In the committee's last days of considering the bill, help did come Mr. Atkey's way from a rather unexpected source — Claude Wagner (PC, Hyacinthe), former Crown prosecutor, former judge, former Justice Minister of Quebec and a man who in the past has lined up with the police position that they should not be hampered in using electronic surveillance to combat crime.

Following reports that police had bugged officials of Quebec's St.-Jean Baptiste Society for what Mr. Wagner called "political purposes," he suddenly gave full-hearted support to another of Mr. Atkey's amendments: making it necessary in most cases for the subject of a wiretapping to be informed of the bugging within 90 days.

One more politician to be enlightened, to start to understand as Mr. Atkey obviously does — and the government so obviously does not — the purpose of the government's own legislation: that this is a country where privacy is still cherished, where the authority to violate that privacy is vested in law, not in any group of men regardless of how right-minded their announced purpose. Justice Minister Lang and his fellow Liberals may never be convinced of that. And if that is true, it may be fortunate that they are a minority government.

A Man and His Dog

By SCOTT YOUNG
The Globe and Mail

The other day I heard the kind of commotion downstairs that goes with taking our old dog, MacGregor, for a walk. Someone had said to him, "Walk, Mac?" and he'd gone into his act: growling, barking, wiggling, clattering his claws on the kitchen floor, so excited that he can hardly stand still long enough to have his leash snapped on — although to him the appearance of the leash, as well as the word, walk, means happiness.

Then there was the sound of my wife, a friend, and our daughter closing the door and heading outside into the beautiful fall afternoon. But a few minutes later I heard a call, "I'm back!" It was our 11-year-old, Mac was with her and when he came in he stretched out on some papers on the floor and was quickly asleep. An hour later when the others returned, I heard what happened.

"Mac just didn't seem to be himself," my wife said. "He was so excited about going, but when we got out there he was just putting one foot after the other, as if it was labor." So our young one had brought him home.

It was simply another reminder. I can't remember exactly when —but it's a few months ago — I saw him get out of his basket and start across the floor, and stumble. The first time I thought it was maybe just a leg that had been cramped too long in one position. When it happened often, we took him to Dr. Bill Martin, the veterinarian who pulled him through a bad time seven years ago. He was examined. Nothing special was the matter with him.

"He's just getting old," Dr. Martin said. Mac will be 12 in December, and that is old for a dog, although it doesn't seem more than 11 years ago now that we went out to Claremont and in a cold barn north of there, by flashlight, we first saw this little Scotch terrier pup, black but brindled, wiggling in his bright and friendly way away from his brother over to us, joining the family.

He seemed happy from the start. Never made a sound, even the first night he was alone. Learned the orders fast: sit, stay, come and kitchen. When he comes in and would like to linger on a rug, and someone says, "Kitchen!" he trots there and settles down.

He still keeps himself, and the floors, clean. From the first, he seemed embarrassed to make a toilet error and learned that part instantly. It's only lately that sometimes I wake in the night to hear him yip, and go down to let him out. It's like a man said recently about humans: the only thing old age brings is getting up in the night. In winter I wait for him, as long as an hour to let him in. But in summer I go back to bed and when I get up later, he'll be sitting with his rear end against the back door, surveying the world, ready to fall in as soon as the door opens.

He's been across the country with us, sitting on the floor of the front seat with his nose to the air vent. He was left behind once in Seattle and when we noticed, miles later, and went back, there he was sitting in the strange city waiting quietly. Knew we'd come back.

He loves the farm. In the city, when I get out boots and parka, he begins to wiggle in anticipation because he knows where I wear those clothes. The woods, the fields, the groundhog holes — when I'm walking I can look back and see this little dark current in the long grass, plugging along. Always game, even in deep snow where his short legs just don't work. I've carried him in my arms many a time through snowbanks to set him down on the other side. But we all get older, and it seems happening faster and faster now to old Mac.

More Shares Sought

NEW YORK (AP) — Gulf and Western Industries has announced a tender offer aimed at doubling its holdings of Madison Square Garden Corp. to about 41 per cent. The New York-based conglomerate has offered to buy up to one million shares at $7 each.

Neonex Int.

Neonex International Ltd. reported sales during the first nine months of 1973 were $149,256,000, compared with $121,331,000 for the same period of last year.

Net earnings were $2,819,000 or .39 a share for 1973, compared with $2,687,000 or .37 for 1972.

President Jim Pattison said during the past nine months the consumer products division opened 22 new retail locations. He also said during the third quarter the company had completed arrangements to build a mobile home manufacturing plant near Moncton, N.B.

Genstar

A $4 million nitric acid plant will be built at Maitland, Ont., by Genstar Ltd.

Construction of a plant that will produce 500 tons a day is scheduled to start in 1975. Brockville Chemical Industries Ltd., a division of Genstar, will be administering the facilities.

BCN

Banque Canadienne Nationale's assets rose by 22.93 per cent in the past year to $3½ billion as of Oct. 31.

The bank's vice president, Germain Perrault, attributed the increase to loans: "Whereas loans granted by all chartered banks increased about 25 per cent during 1973, the BCN for its part made 43 per cent more loans than in 1972."

Cominco

Cominco Ltd. announced Monday its base price for zinc in world markets outside North America has been increased to $720 a metric ton from $600 a metric ton.

The company said the price increase is a result of a tight zinc supply situation.

IPSCO

Interprovincial Steel and Pipe Corp. Ltd., of Regina, reports net profit of $6.49 million for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, up from $3.78 million for the previous year.

Sales jumped to $75 million from $47.5 million.

Alcan, which holds a 50-per-cent equity in ASV, said it is selling its interest in Aluminord to ASV for $6 million to ensure "that the Danish operations can directly complement the Norwegian fabricating operations of ASV."

Unity

Unity Bank of Canada reports it made a profit in its first full year of operation to Oct. 31.

Balance of revenue for the year was $20,798 on total income of $3.87 million.

President Richard Higgins said balance of revenue was satisfactory in view of the rapid rate of branch expansion. Unity now has 16 branches in three provinces.

Assets at the end of the first year of operation totalled $99.2 million.

Fiscal Defect Sworn

EDMONTON (CP) — The former secretary-treasurer of P.A.P. Holdings Ltd. testified Monday the Alberta - based conglomerate contravened the Alberta Securities Act because the acquisition of a B.C. conglomerate was of "overriding importance."

Peter Van Rhyn of Vancouver made the comment as the start of the second week of a public inquiry into the collapse of P.A.P. and a related company, Cosmopolitan Life Assurance Co.

The inquiry was ordered by the Alberta attorney-general to investigate claims up to 33,000 western Canadian shareholders lost $5 million through a stock swindle.

Van Rhyn testified Friday Cosmopolitan used $65,000 of equity-based policy premiums in an attempt to purchase N. W. Financial Corp. of B.C.

He said Monday a certain percentage of an equity-based policy premium is required by provincial legislation to be put into a segregated fund for investment in approved securities.

However, "This was not done to a full extent" during 1970 when Cosmopolitan was trying to purchase N. W. Financial, resulting in a segregated fund shortage of about $170,000 by the end of the year, he said.

H. M. Liknaitzky, a government-appointed liquidator for Cosmopolitan, asked Van Rhyn why he had agreed to use the $65,000 to buy 668,000 N. W. Financial shares from Residential Resource Development, a Bahamas-based conglomerate, when Cosmopolitan had already forfeited $250,000 to directors of N. W. Financial by failing to make final payments for their 169,000 shares.

Van Rhyn replied he thought the 668,000 block would still give Cosmopolitan control of N. W. Financial. The president of N. W. Financial, Peter Ropchan of Vancouver, testified earlier the company had 2,200,000 shares.

Van Rhyn also said Cosmopolitan's failure to purchase N. W. Financial was caused by lack of capital and had nothing to do with the issuing of 800,000 additional shares by N.W.F.

The founder of P.A.P. and former president of Cosmopolitan, Albert Jaasma, said earlier after the purchase of N. W. had been arranged, the B.C. conglomerate issued more stock in an apparent move to decrease the interest Cosmopolitan would hold.

'Creeping Crash' Chills Market

By PHILIP GREER

NEW YORK (WP) — American industry, from the roadside pizza stand to the corporate giants, may be in for a hard winter because of the energy shortage, but in Wall Stret, the chill has already set in—and it may get colder.

Even before the crunch reaches homeowners, drivers, production planners and government managers, it has pounded the stock market into a decline that carried prices down faster and farther than at any time in recent years—and shows no sign of ending.

Some call it a "creeping crash," others sneer at the "insanity" that has blasted more than $100 billion from market values on the New York Stock Exchange. Whatever it is called, the sell-off has turned Wall Street around, exploded at least one myth — that of the supersophisticated institutional money manager—and brought dark clouds where only a month ago there was clear sunshine.

So far, the chief casualties have been oil companies, automakers, leisure time companies—and the former high flyers who manage huge pools of institutional assets.

The looming shortage of oil and petroleum products has been the basic cause of selling, although the facts of the situation seemed to hit Wall Street nearly overnight.

Near the end of October, the market was euphoric over the prospect the business day after day.

The sell-off caught Wall Street by surprise and left it utterly confused. Analysts hesitate to project a turn in the market. Institutional money managers — long renowned for almost superhuman cool under pressure—sold great gobs of stock, reacting to the unexpected just like the most inexperienced market newcomer.

Sidney Lurie is research partner at Josephthal and Co. He thinks this is a good time to buy stocks "if you buy the thesis that the energy shortage is so bad that it's gotta get better."

Anthony Tabell of Delafield, Harvey and Tabell, is not so positive. He thinks the market slowdown widely predicted for next year would not be as severe as thought earlier. With that idea foremost, the traders overlooked events like the Arab-Israeli war and the resulting embargo, as well as the resignation of Spiro Agnew and the problems of President Nixon.

Nineteen seventy-four wasn't going to be so bad after all, they said, and they bought enough stock to make October the most active month in New York Stock Exchange history.

At the end of the month, though, the energy problem pushed everything else aside. Stocks began to fall sharply. The Dow Jones industrial average the Street's most-watched barometer, registered losses in double figures, may be nearing a turning point but, he adds, "the dumbest thing you could do is try to pin-point a level at this time."

At the institutions, the people who manage bank trust funds, insurance investments and mutual funds have little to say, but their actions have left scant need for questions. The simple fact is the hardest-hit victims of the sell-off have been precisely those industries with the greatest institutional following—leisure-time companies, metals mining and refining, chemicals and oils. (Glamor stocks, which resisted the market decline throughout the summer because of support by institutions, began falling from favor in September, when the interest moved to basic "cyclical" industries.)

In the four weeks of market slide to last Friday, the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 13.4 per cent, shaving an estimated $108.4 billion from the value of stocks listed on the NYSE. Monday, it was off another 29.05 points. (The exchange's own index has declined somewhat less—12.68 per cent—in that time, indicating the blue chips that make up the Dow have taken a worse beating than the over-all Big Board list.)

The market has not been without its ray of sunshine. Despite the precipitous decline, brokerage firms have not been forced to send out waves of margin calls—demands for more cash from investors who buy stocks on credit. Said the president of one large firm last week, "we just haven't had that because it's our institutional department that's doing all the selling, and institutions don't buy on credit. Individuals have been moving out of the market for months, so they're not as exposed to this selling."

The most obvious sufferers have been the oil companies, and their losses have been impressive. Since Oct. 29, up to the weekend, for example, Texaco is down 14.8 per cent, Standard Oil of California is off 15.9 per cent, Mobile has lost 15.1 per cent.

Automobile manufacturers, facing increased demand for smaller, more efficient cars as gasoline becomes harder to find, are among the walking wounded. Chrysler is off 20.9 per cent, General Motors and Ford each are down 19.8 per cent.

It's the leisure-time companies, though, that have really caught it. Fast-food chains, outdoor equipment manufacturers and others that cater to the "time-off" crowd—whose fun-seeking always involves heavy use of cars and gasoline—have been probably the hardest hit.

For openers, there's Walt Disney, with two huge amusement parks at opposite ends of the country, both heavily dependent on cars to bring in the customers. The creator of Mickey Mouse has lost a near 36.4 per cent in the past four weeks.

McDonald's, whose billions of hamburgers—cooked on gas stoves—are sold to people jumping in and out of cars, has dropped 28.4 per cent. Outboard Marine, with its line of outboard engines, is off 45.5 per cent, Brunswick Corp. has dropped 37.8 per cent and AMF is down 24.2 per cent.

The story has been much the same throughout the list, with the oil shortage reaching out to grab first one group, then another. The experts say it has gone too far—and that may be true—but there are few voices in Wall Street willing to guess where it will end.

Ottawa Failed: Small Airlines

WINNIPEG (CP) — The new chairman of the Air Transport Association of Canada says the federal government has been too slow in developing a policy that spells out just where the various parts of the air industry belong.

R. A. Morrison of Winnipeg said the result has been a state of confusion over the last several years, with the three levels of air service — trunk, regional and local lines — all jockeying for positions.

The 33-year-old vice-president of Transair Ltd. said the five regional carriers, of which Winnipeg-based Transair is one, and the smaller local service carriers have been trying to identify areas of operation.

For instance, Morrison said, the regional carriers want to move farther into jet service but the two trunk lines, Air Canada and CP Air, take a dim view of expansion among the smaller lines.

Furthermore, he said, the regional air carriers have yet to receive the federal permission that was promised to them seven years ago to fly certain sections of the cross-Canada trunk lines.

Morrison, an executive assistant to the federal transport minister for four years prior to joining Transair in 1969, said there appears to be "a fair amount of pressure from Air Canada that the regionals not be given access to trunk lines."

He said development of a clear-cut transport policy is the most pressing problem facing the 206-member association, which represents about 95 per cent of the Canadian aviation industry.

"Each sector of the industry feels Ottawa hasn't clearly delineated duties, nor specified equipment acquisition and expansion."

Morrison said the regional air lines feel they were left out in the cold on the recent agreement between Canada and the U.S. on additional air routes.

U.S. Propane Gas Supply Shrinking?

NEW YORK (CP) — U.S. propane supplies are dwindling and a months-old unpublished U.S. government report says it is questionable whether the industry that now supplies more than 13 million American consumers will be able to do so a year from now.

Platt's Oilgram News Service, which reports daily on world-wide oil-and-gas-industry news, discloses the existence of the report, prepared by the interior department last summer.

Expected to be hardest hit by the impending shortage will be farm families, mobile home dwellers and a number of schools, particularly in the mid-west — which rely upon propane for heating.

The report, prepared by a group headed by L. A. D'Andrea, said: "Some forecasts suggest that there may be enough propane to satisfy demands for the 1973-74 winter heating season, but these forecasts are based on a set of optimistic assumptions."

The Nixon administration recently began to implement a mandatory allocation program inspired by concerns raised in the report. However, interior department sources, Platt's says, believe interior's conclusions remain valid despite the allocation program.

U.S. industry sources are concerned that next summer major refineries producing propane in the U.S. will sell their product to major industry users, such as utilities and factories, at higher prices than the 28,000 dealers can pay for resale to non-priority users.

The Grey Cup: Riders And Their Two Trophies

When Victoria's Dave Cutler said from Edmonton last week "everyone is fine" for Sunday's Grey Cup football final against Ottawa Rough Riders, he was simply echoing club policy. The Eskimos weren't about to give away any trade secrets or medical reports, and what Ottawa didn't know they would probably find out in due course anyway so why give them any help?

As it was the Esks were hurting in two key spots — Billy Cooper's hamstring pull and Bruce Lemmerman's arm. And when the Ottawas realized this they did what any normal football team would do. They took advantage of it. Knowing that Lemmerman couldn't throw the ball very far because of an 11-stitch job on his elbow, they decided to neutralize the other half of the Edmonton quarterbacking duo, Tom Wilkinson, as well. And when Ottawa's defensive end Wayne Smith hit Wilkinson with a wicked right arm early in the first quarter, the thought was that "get the quarterback" still was the name of this game. And it was.

Smith and Jerry Campbell later combined to drop Wilkinson heavily again. This time they smashed a couple of his ribs (one report said four). So they had their trophy, and when Lemmerman came on to replace Wilkinson he got more of the same, was dumped on his sore elbow, reopening the wound. Net result was that neither was up to snuff, couldn't throw the ball any distance, or with any authority; and if Wilkinson could hardly breathe, Lemmerman just kept bleeding from a fluid-filled elbow.

Esk Ground Game Stalled

In the meantime, Edmonton's Roy Bell had romped off tackle for 39 yards and Edmonton's first touchdown, and perhaps the Eskimos wouldn't need Wilkinson and Lemmerman to throw the ball?

But no, the Ottawas picked on another Edmonton cripple, Cooper, to prove their scouting report was indeed accurate. Quarterback Rick Cassata hit Rhome Nixon with a 38-yard scoring strike to tie the score, and to burn Cooper doing it. Cooper was immediately replaced, but it was too late, even if Gary Lefebvre and Larry Highbaugh were to do double duty, commendably so, the rest of the way.

The Eskimos responded however with a good march that ended with an 11-yard field goal by Cutler on a third and one (and maybe if Edmonton had gone for the down then, but they didn't) and it was after that with Wilkinson sidelined that Lemmerman just couldn't seem to move the ball club.

Oh, sure, the Esks came on late to get a touchdown in the final quarter, through Wilkinson, but by then the game was out of reach, just as many of the Edmonton passes were out of reach of their receivers, lame duck and too short, because of that previous physical assault.

And that is where Ottawa reigned supreme. The Riders' front four, sometimes five, completely contained the Edmonton ground game, a facet which all the experts said earlier would favor Edmonton. Bell was rendered powerless to move the ball, and if Calvin Harrell was the best Eskimo runner why he wasn't given the ball more often in the second half will forever remain a mystery.

Cassata, An Ignored Hero

Besides, the Eskimos fumbled the ball five times, losing it twice, and when tight end Tyrone Walls coughed up the ball on one play, nobody knew it at the time but he was suffering from a broken hand. So Larry Highbaugh didn't latch on to two passes either. Meaning, it wasn't Edmonton's day.

But all credit to Ottawa, because they did win, and to Cassata, who probably deserves more credit than he received for the part he played in the triumph. Oft maligned in the Eastern press, Cassata was forced to go the route alone because Ottawa's No. 1 quarterback, Gerry Keeling, was out with an injury.

He played well, called a sound game, and if Charlie Brandon, a lineman hadn't won the most-valuable-player award, the obvious choice would have been the second-string Ottawa signal caller. In this book he wasn't that far from being No. 1.

Or some might have voted for a former B.C. Lion, fullback Jim Evenson of the Riders. When he wasn't carrying the ball (he was the best power runner on the field and scored Ottawa's second TD on a third-quarter run of 18 yards) Evenson was doing excellent blocking for Cassata. And actually, it was his run, as he carried five Eskimos the final five yards, that finally established Ottawa's superiority. They had taken command, physically, on offence, as they had earlier, on defence.

And thus they had their two trophies — the Grey Cup, and Wilkinson. The latter one was the more important at the time, and in the end result, too.

Coming Soon: Little League for Girls?

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Baseball for girls?

It may come to pass if that's the wish of parents in the Gordon Head and Lakehill Little League areas.

A pilot program for a Little League baseball or softball program for girls in the 9-12 years age category will be the main order of business at a Wednesday meeting at Lambrick Park starting at 8 p.m.

A working committee of interested parents in the Gordon Head and Lakehill areas has already held preliminary meetings under the auspices of the Greater Victoria Little League.

Parental preference and interest will determine formation of the girls' league and the choice between baseball and softball. The league will not be formed unless sufficient support is indicated at Wednesday's meeting.

Further information may be obtained by phoning Mrs. Pat Bishop (382-8958), Norm Meunier (479-4620) or Joan Martin (477-6823).

Meanwhile, several changes have been made in the district executive of the Greater Victoria Little League following the recent appointment of Wilf Cain as the national executive director and the subsequent election of Don Wakelyn as Greater Victoria's district administrator.

Fred Kelly and Leon Hall have been appointed assistant district administrators.

Derek Brouard, Bob West and Greg Martell will continue as area administrators.

Completing the executive are Doug Hudlin (umpire consultant), Earle Reynolds (public relations and safety officer), John Murray (treasurer), Margaret Reeder (secretary), Pat Walton (assistant secretary) and Gar Taylor (executive member).

Pats' 'Sob' Story

Western Canada Junior Hockey League fans may be wondering just when Dennis Sobchuk, Regina Pats' million-dollar forward, will break out with a rash of goals.

Victoria Cougars would prefer that he wait until after tonight.

Cougars play the Pats, tied for first place in the Eastern Division with Flin Flon Bombers, in a game tonight at 8 at Memorial Arena.

The meeting is important to Cougars in their battle with Edmonton Oil Kings for fourth place — the last playoff spot — in the Western Division. Oil Kings hold a two-point edge on the Cats and are playing tonight in Medicine Hat against the third-place Tigers.

Sobchuk, who scored 56 goals and 67 assists two seasons ago and counted 67 goals and 80 assists last year, is off to slow start with the Pats and observers are wondering if the million-dollar bonus he got to sign with Cincinnati's new franchise in the World Hockey Association has anything to do with it. So far, he's scored 15 goals and 20 assists.

Cougars have their own scoring problems to worry about. Since beating the Tigers 6-1 in Medicine Hat last week, the Cats have managed only three goals in two games, a 3-2 loss to Edmonton and a 7-1 setback to Regina here Saturday, when Sobchuk scored once.

Brad Anderson continues to lead the Cougars in the points race with 25 on nine goals and 16 assists, but Mel Bridgman has emerged as the top goal scorer with 10 after counting two in the last three games. Bridgman also has four assists and is sixth in the scoring list.

In the only other WCHL game tonight, Winnipeg Clubs, here Saturday and next Tuesday, meet the first-place Centennials at Calgary.

Outstanding goaltending is a big factor in the success of the Centennials so far this season.

Garth Malarchuk has vaulted back into the goaltending lead with a 2.62 goals-against-average, allowing just 24 goals in 548 minutes and has a league-leading two shutouts.

Ed Staniowski of the Pats is right behind with a 2.82 mark, 56 goals in 1,191 minutes. Not far off the pace is the other Calgary goalie, Kelvin Erickson, third with a 3.13 goals-against-average, having allowed 34 goals in 652 minutes.

NIMBLE RECOVERY from slip didn't help Green Bay Packers' quarterback Jerry Tagge (with ball), who was still thrown for loss during first-quarter action in National Football League game against 49ers Monday night at San Francisco. 49ers went on to beat Packers 20-6. (AP Wirephoto).

49ers Jump on Bandwagon To Ride Past Erring Packers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco '49ers jumped on the National Football League's latest bandwagon Monday night, stressing the running attack on offence, but fell off briefly when Steve Spurrier entered the game against Green Bay.

"I only had to throw three or four passes. The big play that really turned it around was Vic Washington's run," said Spurrier, who tossed a 20-yard touchdown pass to Ted Kwalick in the final period to clinch the 20-6 National Football League victory over the Packers.

Spurrier, who started most of last season when he totalled 18 touchdown passes, didn't play Monday night until rookie Joe Reed left the game with a pulledd groin muscle early in the final period.

The former Heisman Trophy winner, who has played behind John Brodie most of his seven-year pro career, completed four of five passes for 50 yards. His first attempt produced the touchdown.

Washington, former Canadian Football League star with Ottawa, gained 94 yards on 21 rushing attempts. He started the 67-yard touchdown drive by running 25 yards around right end.

"There was some real good blocking . . . ; over-all, they executed and just did the job," coach Dick Nolan said of his offensive line, which has taken much criticism in the '49ers frustrating season.

The '49ers had 174 net yards rushing in their best ground performance of the year. Reed completed just five of 16 passes for 44 yards and all his completions were inside the San Francisco 50-yard line.

The Packers' running, powerful last year but sickly this season, revived somewhat Monday night with 131 yards led by John Brockington's 89.

But mistakes, especially penalties, killed the Packers' chances and kept them in their losing rut.

"I don't even want to talk about the penalties; I'm sick to my stomach," said coach Dan Devine after his Packers lost for the fifth time in the last seven games.

The '49ers broke a four-game losing streak, and Kwalick yelled later: "I feel like we've just won the Super Bowl."

Westerners Top Saints

Westerns, a newly-formed Victoria senior "A" women's basketball team, defeated First United senior "B" squad 75-50 in an exhibition tussle Monday at Oak Bay High School.

Mary Coutts led Westerns with 25 points and Denise Michaud added 15. Marcia Thompson set the pace for First United with 15 points and Elaine Grenon added 14.

Duncan Runner Places Second

PORTLAND — Wolf Schamberger of Duncan was runner-up in the annual Sauvie Island marathon Sunday with a time of two hours, 23 minutes and 11 seconds.

Joe Skaja of Portland Track Club won the event in 2:22.07.

Out of a total of 275 starters, from all parts of the Pacific Northwest, only 169 competitors finished the race.

PACKERS ALSO LOSE SHIRTS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Seven Green Bay Packers lost their shirts even before they took to the playing field against San Francisco '49ers in the National Football League's Monday night game.

Locker room manager Eddie Logan said he saw two young men run from Candlestick Park Sunday, carrying the visiting Packers' jerseys. He said the men leaped into a waiting car and sped off with the loot valued at $226.

Knight Shift Likely

By The Canadian Press

Baltimore has its Orioles in the summer, its Colts in the fall, and its Clippers in the winter.

And if Dennis Murphy succeeds, the Maryland City will have Jersey Knights sharing a piece of the hockey action.

Murphy, league interim president, wants to move the World Hockey Association franchise to Baltimore this season, the Baltimore News American says.

"We have three or four cities pursuing franchises," the newspaper quotes Murphy as saying. "But our preference is Baltimore. The city meets every requirement."

Murphy said Baltimore could have the franchise within three weeks.

Milwaukee, Montreal, Miami and Calgary were named by Murphy as other possible locations for the Jersey franchise, now being operated by the league.

However, there was a deathly silence Monday from potential franchise holders in both Montreal and Calgary.

Murphy said Sunday, when the former New York Golden Blades made a winning debut in the Cherry Hill, N.J., arena, he hoped some Cherry Hill businessmen would come forth with offers to take over the club and build appropriate facilities.

Meanwhile, the Knights reverted to form Monday, losing 4-2 to New England Whalers in Boston.

The victory for the home team, sparked by two goals within 15 seconds by Al Karlander and Tom Williams in the second period, moved the Whalers into first place in the East Division, two points ahead of Quebec Nordiques.

The Knights spotted the Whalers a 1-0 lead in the first period on Tom Webster's 16th goal of the season, then tied the score at 1:03 of the second period on a marker by Brian Perry. But the Whalers then rammed in three consecutive goals.

In tonight's action, Winnipeg Jets play the Sharks in Los Angeles and Quebec will attempt to regain a share of first place when they play the Toros in Toronto.

'Frisco Fielder Rookie-of-Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Gary Matthews, who hit .300 as a regular outfielder for San Francisco Giants, has been named Monday the National League's rookie-of-the-year for 1973.

Matthews received 11 votes from a 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America. He easily beat out Montreal Expos' pitcher Steve Rogers, the runner-up with 3½ votes.

Catcher Bob Boone of Philadelphia Phillies, relief pitcher Elias Sosa of San Francisco and third baseman Dan Driessen of Cincinnati Reds, drew two votes each. Los Angeles Dodgers infielders Ron Cey and Dave Lopes and San Diego Padres outfielder Johnny Grubb each received one vote. Outfielder Richie Zisk of the Pittsburgh Pirates received the other one-half vote.

The 23-year'old Matthews, who currently is playing winter ball in Santo Domingo, is the fourth Giant to win rookie-of-the-year honors. The others were Willie Mays, 1951; Orlando Cepeda, 1958, and Willie McCovey, 1959.

Matthews appeared in 148 games for the Giants, batting an even .300 with 12 home runs and 58 runs batted in. He teamed with Bobby Bonds and Garry Maddox to give the Giants one of the fastest outfields in the major leagues. He had 22 doubles, 10 triples and 17 stolen bases.

Garlits Cracks Drag Records

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Veteran drag-racer Don Garlits of Feffner, Fla., capped a record-setting spree Sunday with a $20,000 victory in the supernationals at Ontario Motor Speedway.

The 42-year-old driver sailed through four rounds of competition, setting records with each outing until the final, when he was clocked at an all-time low of 5.78 seconds for the quarter mile.

Earlier, Garlitts set the national speed standard of 247.25 miles an hour.

Garlits' victory, his 10th in major competition, came on a single run for the money. He was to meet L. Gaines Markley in the final, but the Federal Way, Wash., driver demolished his fuel dragster in a spectacular crash during the semi-finals. Markley was not injured.

Before that, Garlits defeated Carl Olson with a 5.98, then took out 21-year-old Randy Allison with a 5.86 before beating Dan Richins in the quarter-finals with a 5.79.

Markley's accident was the first of two spectacular crashes that marred the $177,000 event and came as Markley crossed the end of the quarter mile.

The supercharger exploded, tearing the rear end out of the car, which went out of control and barely missed crashing into John Stewart, Markley's opponent on the run.

A short time later, a supercharger explosion tore the body from Dale Emery's funny car and caused him to crash, but he, too, was uninjured.

The accident enabled Tom McEwen of Fountain Valley, Calif., to win the funny car championship on a solo run.

World champion Wayne Gapp, Birmingham, Mich., was the pro stock winner, driving a 1973 Pinto.

FRANK GETS FIRST COINS

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank Mahovlich of Montreal Canadiens will be presented with the first set of Olympic coins before Wednesday night's hockey game here against Los Angeles Kings, the National Hockey League Club announced Monday night.

The presentation will be made by postmaster-general Andre Ouellet in recognition of Mahovlich's contribution to hockey in Canada.

New Drug Test Set for Games

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand (Reuter) — Tests to detect body-building drugs will be carried out for the first time at the 1974 Commonwealth Games, a Games official said today.

Dr. Ken Usher, chairman of the Gamed medical committee, said in an interview: "We will be taking random tests and the samples will be sent to London."

A month ago, a team of doctors at St. Thomas' Hospital, London, claimed to have devised an infallible test for detecting the presence of body-building drugs — anabolic steroids — in the body.

The steroids, based on male sex hormones, produce body bulk without causing loss of speed or motion and are known to be widely used by top athletes in field events requiring great muscle power.

The claim of an infallible detection test has been met with some sceptimism in sporting circles, where it is pointed out that the steroid treatment can be halted weeks or even months before an event and the taker could still be reaping the benefits when all traces of the drug had been expelled from the body.

Thorburn Blanks Snooker Rival

LONDON (Reuter) — Cliff Thorburn of Victoria beat Pat Houlihan of Britain four frames to none in competition at the world snooker championships Monday.

'GOOD CURLING'

Why Not Play The Last End Like Steal Try?

By MATT BALDWIN

Curling strategy is not as stereotyped as it used to be.

Curling has progressed from the straight draw game to the hitting game of the fifties, and then through further refinements as demonstrated by Ernie Richardson, Ron Northcott and Don Duguid in recent years.

The first time the Richardsons went to the Brier in 1959, they didn't believe in guards. They amazed everybody. They just kept putting rocks in the rings and putting pressure on their opposition by sheer offence.

It was surprising the number of times they stole the big end. The opposing skip seldom had a decent shot with his last rock. He could draw against three, or four, or five and come away with one, or cut them down to one. But eventually he would make a bad shot and they would steal a bundle.

In subsequent Brier trips, the Richardsons played it more orthodox, using their hitting to keep things clean and Ernie always had the big shot when he needed it.

Then came Northcott, with his strong sweeping front end, and he loved to draw the four-foot with his last rock.

But as soon as he got the lead in a game, say 3-1 after three ends, he would put on a move and attempt to steal a point right away. If he succeeded, it would shake up the opposition, and even if it backfired, he still had lots of ends remaining.

Early in the game, if he was leading and had last rock, if his opponent dropped one out front, Northcott would go behind, rather than removing it, figuring he could eventually pick up more than one.

That started a lot of skips re-examining their thinking about playing the last end, especially last end with a one-shot lead, without last rock.

There was a time when a lot of skips would almost automatically call for their first rock through the rings in this situation. Then they would attempt to kill everything the opposition threw. Eventually the skip would draw the rings with his last and put it up to his opponent either to hit and stick or draw for shot to tie.

This whole strategy was designed to keep things clean and concede one and win it on the extra end.

Then one day somebody decided this was playing the end backwards. If you throw away your first rock, all it takes is one miss to turn things around and give your opponent a chance for two to win. All the pressure is on the team that is winning and the whole idea is to put the pressure on your opponent.

So why not play last end as if you are trying to steal? You lay down a shot rock, and let your opponent peel it off. Then he's playing defensively. Maybe the end result is the same, but certainly it is easier to play short rocks than to peel them.

If everybody makes their shots, then it's an extra end, and you've got the hammer.

Wilkie Gets Most Cheers At Homecoming for Esks

By The Canadian Press

Edmonton Eskimos gained a lot of yardage on the ground Monday night as they marched around the 5,200-seat Edmonton Gardens, and it didn't seem to matter to 4,500 cheering fans that they didn't have the Grey Cup with them.

The crowd gave the smiling but subdued Eskies a standing ovation on their return from the Canadian Football League championship game in Toronto, reserving their loudest applause for quarterback Tom Wilkinson.

Wilkinson suffered two broken ribs in the first quarter of Sunday's game, won by Ottawa Rough Riders 22-18, but returned to the field to throw a touchdown pass in the final quarter.

Paying tribute to Wilkinson and other injured Eskimos, Edmonton Mayor Ivor Dent said at the civic reception:

"They went back in there although other people in a similar situation may have wanted to get out of the game."

"Last year," centre Pete Travis told the fans, "we made a pact that we would go to the Grey Cup. We lost."

"Sunday, in the dressing room, we made another pact: Next year we win."

Coach Ray Jauch told the fans their support was important.

"These guys know when you're with them and don't you ever forget it."

Earlier in the day, the players were greeted at Edmonton International Airport by about 400 fans.

There were only a few hundred on hand at the airport in Ottawa to greet the champion Rough Riders, but that was probably due to the fact that the players chose different modes of transportation to return to the capital. Some travelled by train and others by private car.

The welcoming group included two busloads of school children.

As the Riders walked through the throng to collect their baggage, one player ordered "all you kids get back to school right now, you hear."

The Riders didn't have the Grey Cup, either, and nobody could say for sure where it was.

Coach Jack Gotta was unavailable. He slipped into Ottawa unnoticed on a flight earlier than the one taken by the players.

Ottawa newspapers carried front-page stories of the victory and both dailies also reserved space on their editorial pages to praise the champions.

Said The Citizen:

"Gotta and his coaching crew and the Rough Riders deserve all the applause they are getting. They don't have superstars but they are a superteam."

Said The Journal:

"The Rough Riders may be a throwback to earlier days when fun played more of a part in football. The Riders have at least provided fun for their supporters in a season that seems hard to believe, in retrospect. Every cheer they get is deserved."

SCHOOLS SHARE SOCCER CROWN

Doncaster and Willows were declared Greater Victoria elementary school boys' soccer co-champions Monday after battling to a 1-1 deadlock at Royal Athletic Park.

After the team had tussled through two overtime sessions it was decided the schools should share the title.

Graeme Littler gave Willows an early lead with a first-half penalty kick but Mike Stinson knotted the count for Doncaster midway through the second half.

A total of 36 teams competed in league and playoff competition leading up to the championship encounter.

Girling Sparks Gulls' Triumph

Brad Girling hammered in three goals Monday, including the last two in the third period, to lead Juan de Fuca Metro Toyota Gulls to a 6-4 South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League victory over Saanich Braves at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Gulls moved back into first place, one point ahead of runner-up Saanich, with the victory.

Braves led 3-2 after the first period and 4-3 going into the final session before Girling went to work, assisting Kevin Alexander on the tying goal, then scoring the winning and insurance tallies.

Norm Baker and Don Hansen scored single goals for Gulls while Perry Carrigan (2), Darryl Borden and Tom Davies replied for Saanich.

Ratty Sparks Ranger Climb

NEW YORK (CP) — As Jean Ratelle goes, so do New York Rangers. Right now, Ratelle and the Rangers are sizzling.

Ratelle centres the experienced GAG line, with Rod Gilbert and captain Vic Hadfield on the wings. "They are the big thing going for us," says Ranger goalie Ed Giacomin.

"When Ratty's hot, his line is hot; when his line is hot, we're hot."

In the last three weeks, the Rangers have lost only one of their 11 starts — a 10-2 defeat at the hands of the Bruins in Boston Nov. 15.

Giacomin, still feeling the effects of a concussion when his head hit the back of the net in a previous game, let all 10 Bruins goals past him. But coach Larry Popein says Eddie wasn't to blame. "There were a lot of guys who were but not Eddie."

Giacomin has had a couple of bad games since then — six goals by Buffalo and five by Los Angeles. But he added three shutouts to his record, including 5-0 over Vancouver Canucks Sunday night.

Ratelle's play against the Kings and the Canucks at Madison Square Garden during the weekend showed his worth. He scored three goals against Los Angeles Saturday as the Rangers rallied for a 5-5 tie and he got one goal and an assist against Vancouver.

"Ratelle means as much to the Rangers as Jean Beliveau did to the Canadiens," says Vancouver coach Phil McCreary.

Ratelle is difficult to check when he has the puck, and he does as much checking himself as any centre, McGreary notes.

A torn stomach muscle kept Ratelle out of the lineup for the first six games this season and the Rangers blew hot and cold. There was talk of trades, club morale was low and even Popein's job was on the line.

Then Ratelle started clicking, scoring nine goals in his last 12 games. Over-all, the tall graceful centre has 13 goals and seven assists for 20 points in 16 games. In only three games has he missed the scoresheet.

Meanwhile, Phil Esposito of the Bruins continues his better than two points per-game pace and leads the individual scoring race with 49 points, including a league-leading 23 goals.

Defenceman Bobby Orr, also of the Bruins, is second with 40 points, a total that includes 28 assists, the best in that department.

Right winger Ken Hodge of Boston is third with 34 points, six more than left winger Richard Martin of Buffalo Sabres.

Soccer Search for Hangover Cure

LONDON (Reuter) — English soccer, currently suffering a giant-sized hangover after the national team's elimination from the World Cup, is to undergo a full-scale investigation.

The English Football Association's ten-man executive committee is to launch the inquiry into "the state of football at all levels in this country."

FA secretary Ted Croker, announcing the investigation, said "concern was expressed because we have not been as successful as we might have been at international level. It may be that the team was not good enough, but there might be some other fundamental changes we ought to consider."

Monday's announcement came at a time when English football, both at club and national levels, has reached new depths with fans staying away in protest against the defensive strategy and niggling tactics of many teams.

The general mood was summed up in The Daily Express Monday by soccer correspondent David Miller who wrote: "England gave football to the world. It could now bring sanity back to the game by advocating changes without which its public support will continue to plunge."

England failed to reach the World Cup finals for the first time since it first entered the competition in 1950 when it was held to a 1-1 draw by Poland in the decisive Group Five qualifying match last month.

This reverse was followed by the elimination of English teams from the European Cup and Cup Winner's Cup, Europe's top two club competitions.

The long-suffering fans are no longer prepared to pay to see the sterile tactics which produce too many boring scoreless draws and are clamoring for more entertainment and goals.

Another discussion point is whether Sir Alf Ramsey should continue as England's manager. He led England to its only World Cup victory in 1966, but recent displays suggest his powers are on the wane.

All these questions will no doubt be discussed by the investigating committee which is expected to have its report ready by Jan. 14.

Dockers Take Runner-Up Slot

SARDIS — Quesnel defeated Esquimalt Dockers 65-50 Sunday to capture top honors in the annual Sardis invitational high school basketball tournament.

Esquimalt defeated Sunderland 79-61 in its opening game, then tripped Sardis 69-57 in the semi-finals of the eight-team tournament.

Bob Banderford topped Dockers in scoring with 55 points in three games.

LACROSSE BANS ZONE DEFENCE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian Lacrosse Association officials passed two rule changes at their annual meeting, which concluded on the weekend.

Rules banning zone defence and requiring a shorthanded team to take a shot on goal or lose possession within the normal 30 seconds were put into force during the three-day meeting here.

The zone defence is widely used in games in Eastern Canada.

In the past a penalized team could hold the ball for the duration of a penalty. With the new rule, however, a team does not have to bring the ball out of its own zone within 10 seconds or lose possession.

Gordon Hammond of London, Ont., was re-elected president.

The CLA also announced that the Mann Cup playoff, for the national senior title, will again be a one-game affair. It is scheduled Sept. 6 in Vancouver.

The Minto Cup, for the junior title, will be a best-of-seven series, beginning Sept. 8 in the home of the eastern champion.

Esquimalt Stages Speed Skate Meet

Esquimalt Speed Skating Club will stage the Pacific Coast international indoor championships, Dec. 29 and 30 at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Members of the Esquimalt club captured seven of 12 class titles at Mission during a weekend inter-club meet with Vancouver and Mission skaters.

Class winners from Esquimalt in men's and boys' events were David Shields (junior), Mark Cammiade (juvenile) and Keith Robinson (midget).

Topping distaff divisions were Kelly McMillan and Paula Gillies, tied (junior); Debbie Bourgeois (juvenile), Cheryle Sanderson (midget) and Brenda Shields (bantam).

Ashe Loses To Connors

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — Jimmy Connors won the $6,900 men's singles prize in the South African open tennis championships Monday with a powerful 6-4, 7-6, 6-3 defeat of fellow-American Arthur Ashe.

Ashe, the black star who waited four years for permission to play in South Africa, produced some fine shots, but Connors, the second-seed, used his kicking serve, powerful drives and two-fisted backhands at the net to good advantage against Ashe, the fourth seed.

Revisions to Certain Telecommunications Rates in Canada

Canadian Pacific Limited and Canadian National Railway Company have applied to the Canadian Transport Commission for authority to revise the tariff of rates charged for Public Message Service (Telegraph), within Canada.

By such revisions the general message tolls would be increased approximately 11%; the surcharges for such optional supplementary services as home delivery, message pick-up, and due bills would be increased and altered somewhat in application; the service charge for teltex service would be increased by 50 cents and an additional charge of $1.00 would be imposed for optional messenger delivery for a teltex message; and the discount of five-sixths, presently available for press dispatches, would be reduced to two-thirds.

The Canadian Transport Commission has directed that a schedule of the proposed new rates be made available for public inspection at all CNCP commercial telegraph offices during business hours.

Persons who intend to intervene to oppose, support or modify the said application are required to file their interventions, setting out the grounds therefor, with the Secretary, Telecommunication Committee, Canadian Transport Commission, Ottawa K1A 0N9, Ontario, not later than the 14th day of January, 1974, and are also required to serve a copy of their interventions upon the applicants at the addresses set out hereunder:

SHARING NOT SELLING

EDMONTON (CP) — Sharing a liquor bottle isn't bootlegging and sharing a hashish pipe isn't trafficking, provincial judge John Couglan said Monday.

Judge Coughlan ruled James Miller, 19, of Edmonton was not guilty of trafficking in hashish. He was remanded for a pre-sentence report and sentencing.

Miller admitted ownership of one ounce of hashish — worth about $165 if sold in gram pieces — but said it was for his use only. He said, however, that he would share a pipeful with friends if they didn't have any hashish of their own.

Crown prosecutor Jim Odishaw said Mr. Justice Mike O'Byrne of the Alberta Supreme Court had found a man guilty of trafficking when evidence showed the man and two other persons had each contributed a piece of hashish to fill a pipe which they had shared.

'Prices Will Go Through Roof In the Next Six Months . . .'

CALGARY (CP) — Food on their tables and clothes on their backs will concern Canadians more than oil policy during the next federal election, the national vice-president of the Liberal Party said Monday.

Michael Webb said the party that has "the guts to face the whole issue" of skyrocketing food and clothing prices will capture the most support in the next election.

The Calgary lawyer told a meeting of the Calgary Liberal Association the current controversy over oil resources has overshadowed the major problem facing the electorate.

"Prices will go through the roof within the next six months," he predicted, adding the questions of resources and pricing now surrounding the oil debate "have to be expanded to include the whole economy.

"This is the issue that's going to win or lose the next election for the party that will take hold of it."

So far, neither of the two major parties have adopted this stance, he said.

"We're terrified of being called socialists, but we have to step back and take a look at controlling our whole economy."

He predicted the national party would return from the Christmas recess with a "punchier, more aggressive" approach to policy making.

"I hope they (the federal caucus) comes out in January with say 10 things they want done. And I hope there won't be any backing off to accommodate the PC's or Social Credit."

B.C. OFFERS SANDS FUNDS

MONTREAL (CP) — British Columbia would be willing to invest surplus funds into any publicly-owned company established to develop the Alberta oil sands, B.C. Premier Barrett said Monday.

Barrett, speaking to a national convention of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said he had made that proposal some months ago to Alberta's Premier Peter Lougheed in informal talks.

Lougheed's response then was negative, Barrett added.

Alberta has granted development rights to a private firm— Syndrude, a consortium of four large oil firms, formed to develop the Athabaska oil sands.

The B.C. premier suggested that if Alberta would place oil sand development under public ownership B.C. would be willing to participate financially.

He also suggested the federal government should make a similar offer to invest funds.

Barrett said as of last week B.C. had $135 million "in the bank" and expected to have another surplus budget at the end of this fiscal year. B.C. had a surplus bf $98 million when the NDP gained power last year, he said.

By doubling the price of natural gas exported to the U.S., his province expected to collect an estimated $40 to $60 million in profits next year, he said.

Government Boom Hit by U.S. Critic

Mushrooming governmental power was tongue-lashed Monday when noted American author and staunch small "c" conservative Reid Buckley took a stand against liberalism in a debate at University of Victoria.

Powers are being inflated by technocrats to such an extent, that a monster is being created, he said,.

"No higher echelon of government should usurp what lower governments or private enterprise can do just as well.

"Socializing industries is obtuse," he said, defining the conservative stand as against a heavy federal power base.

"You can make a mess in this province and you are doing that, but at least it doesn't have to affect another province. But it will if the federal government continues to grow."

Buckley, with American syndicated columnist and university professor Max Lerner, were debating "Liberalism" — as the doom or the hope of modern society — sponsored at a price of $2.000 by the UVic Alma Mater Society. The debate drew about 50 spectators.

"I'm all for everyone getting a better deal" said Buckley, "but I'm not willing to give up power to self-appointed technocrats."

Arguing strenuously against "liberal" solutions to modern day foibles, Buckley criticized government attempts to curtail the growing power base of private enterprise:

"We've all seen how dismal and fatal the outcome is. Liberals establish federal regulatory agencies to deal with the problem and the agencies associate themselves so closely with industry, they become exponents of the industry."

Describing himself as a "Christian Libertarian Conservative," Buckley added, "The state says we should provide for you. You're too stupid. We'll do what has to be done and you'll do the voting.

"I think each individual has the dignity and right to make those decisions for himself.

"The ultimate end is lining up for things you wouldn't ordinarily buy without liberalism."

Lerner argued for hope.

Criticizing Buckley for his negativism, he said, "what bothers me, is a conservative is constantly saying no to life.

"Government to a liberal is simply the way in which humans act together. It sets a floor below which the dignity of human beings can't fall and sets a ceiling over which power cannot rise.

"Things happen," he said, "to individuals beyond their capability of action. Someone has to step in. Government is caring for people, even at the risk of sometimes being harsh."

He used the example of fuel and energy now being severely limited by the U.S. government.

"It's not something we could do as individuals — but the individuals working within the framework of government are driving slower along American highways and cutting down on consumption where we can.

"We're acting as liberals."

Summing up debate, Lerner said, "where there is not trust, language is an empty dangling of sound."

Owl Ogles Dining Room

Patients at the Ropal Jubilee Hospital had an unexpected visitor Monday — a snowy white owl.

The caller perched itself on top of a roof, staying there for more than an hour.

It may have been coincidence — or hunger pangs — that made the bird alight on the roof facing the hospital's Harmony dining room.

Religious Rampage

NEW DELHI (UPI) — A group of robed religious fanatics ran amok through a small Punjab village, killing 15 persons and injuring 25 others, police said.

A guru and 150 of his followers were arrested Monday and charged with the attack.

Police said the guru, Sant Baghel Singh, and his followers would face charges of murder, robbery, rioting and arson for their attack.

The spokesmen said Baghel Singh, wearing a golden crown, was leading an armed procession of some 200 of his red-and-black-robed Sadhus (holy men) through the village when villagers apparently made some remarks which enraged the holy men, who attacked the crowd.

PISTON SIDELINED

DETROIT (AP) — Guard Stu Lantz of Detroit Pistons will be out of basketball action for at least six weeks after fracturing his left wrist.

$2.8 BILLION CUT FROM U.S. DEFENCE

WASHINGTON (WP) — The House of Representatives appropriations committee Monday cut almost $2.8 billion from the Pentagon's fiscal 1974 budget request, including a $240 million reduction in the navy's Trident missile-submarine project which will slow but not stop future production.

In approving a $74.5 billion defence department appropriation, the committee chastized the Nixon administration for withdrawing money from the budget to cover a military pay raise already in effect.

The committee estimated that a supplemental request later this fiscal year of between $2 and $3 billion will be needed to cover this.

Senate Gets Bill on Foreign Investments

OTTAWA (CP) — Lengthy Commons debate of the government's foreign investment review bill ended Monday in final approval.

Senate approval and routine royal assent are required before the bill, establishing a screening agency for some foreign investment, becomes law.

After lengthy debate, there were only about 40 of the 264 MPs in the House when it was read a third time. The vote was not recorded.

Eventual approval was not in doubt because the Conservatives and New Democrats both said they would vote with the minority Liberals despite reservations on some of its provisions.

First introduced in January by Industry Minister Alastair Gillespie, the bill would establish a screening agency for some foreign investment and restrict expansion of foreign controlled firms.

It provides the first comprehensive federal foreign investment controls. An earlier attempt to introduce similar controls died on the Commons order paper when Parliament dissolved for the October, 1972, election.

The bill passed Monday is a beefed-up version of the earlier bill but still leaves much foreign investment untouched.

It applies only to foreign firms entering new fields of interest in Canada.

The screening agency decisions on takeovers of Canadian firms by foreigners are to be made on the basis of whether the proposed deals are of significant benefit.

When the bill emerged from committee study, 14 amendments were proposed. Four were ruled unacceptable by the Speaker, two were accepted and eight voted down by the Commons.

Throughout debate, the New Democrats argued the controls were not tough enough and would do little to place the economy under Canadian control.

Conservatives expressed fear that implementation of the bill could hurt investment in poorer regions of the country which they said depend on foreign investment.

When third reading debate began last Tuesday, Gillespie said 60 per cent of capital employed in manufacturing is foreign controlled.

The bill would change this situation and allow Canadians to control their own destiny and build a distinctive country.

Unless the proposed controls were put into effect, Canada would remain no more than "a mere appendage of foreign corporate giants south of the border" and resource-hungry countries elsewhere.

Businesses whose gross assets are less than $250,000, or whose annual gross revenue is less than $3 million, are exempted from the screening process.

Latest Statistics Canada figures show foreign ownership of industry, land and government securities in Canada may total more than $50 billion.

The United States is estimated to have $21.5 billion invested, with the United Kingdom next in line at $2.5 billion.

Despite Commons approval, the bill might face a rocky road in the Senate. The banking committee there began studying it last May and a report released by the committee two months later contained some strong criticism.

Should the Senate attempt amendements, the bill would be returned to the Commons for reapproval.

West MPs Fear East to Benefit

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Two Manitoba MPs expressed fears in the Commons Monday that the government's new foreign investment control legislation will be detrimental to Western Canada while at the same time being beneficial to Central Canada.

Both Dan McKenzie (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) and Gordon Ritchie (PC—Dauphin) were critical that the provinces will not be able to help decide whether a takeover of an existing company or a proposal for a new company by foreign investors will be of "significant benefit" to Canada as a whole.

The two Manitoba members suggested a review board to be set up by the federal government to decide which takeovers are of "significant benefit" will be dominated by Central Canadian bureaucrats with no real knowledge of the West or the Maritimes.

Ritchie, championing the case of small businessmen, said the review tribunal will quite likely decide a company shouldn't be taken over by a U.S. corporation thus forcing the owner to sell out to a Toronto or Montreal-based company.

If this happens, said the Dauphin MP, the Central Canadian company may decide to close down the new operation in Manitoba and centralize activities in Toronto or Montreal and continue to serve western or Maritime market from there.

Ritchie said because of new capital gains and estate tax regulations most small businesses in Manitoba with a capitalization of more than $300,000 face the problem of raising half that for capital gains or death duties if the owner dies. To avoid this problem "virtually every small business" would have to be sold in the owner's lifetime.

The Winnipeg South Centre MP charged the effect of the legislation will be to "allow for the complete domination of the peripheral portions of this country by the centrally controlled Ottawa bureaucracy" which includes and makes up the industrial triangle of Ottawa-Toronto-Montreal.

U.S. Again No. 1 Immigrant Supplier

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States has resumed its No. 1 position as a supplier of immigrants, quarterly figures released Monday by the immigration department indicate.

In the first nine months of 1973, the U.S. supplied 15,598 immigrants; England was second with 14,405.

Immigration from all countries increased by 27.6 per cent from January to September 1973 compared with the same period in 1972, the department reports.

By the end of September, 119,890 immigrants were admitted, compared with 86,787 by that month last year.

The U.S. had been a major supplier of newcomers since 1971. At the end of June this year England led all other countries as the major supplier of immigrants.

Immigration from England was 8,889 last year, from the U.S. 16,951.

STILL CLIMBING

Immigration from three East African countries from June to September continued to surpass their total immigration contribution for all of 1972. There were 355 Kenyan immigrants, 574 Tanzanians and 298 Ugandans.

Ontario received more new immigrants than all other provinces and territories combined—67,661 by the end of September, compared with 45,290 during the same period in 1972.

British Columbia has been the second favorite settling spot with 18,625 immigrants. Quebec is third with 17,490.

A Lion Keeps Her Warm

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Ten-month-old Julie Ann Burnor doesn't need a teddy bear. She has a month-old African lioness cub to keep her warm.

Eve Burnor, Julie Ann's mother, says the cub Tonya eats at the same time as her daughter and feeds on basically the same formula of milk fixed with water and syrup.

The cub also receives a commercially-prepared supplement in the bottle.

"I get them up at the same time, feed them the same formula at the same time and put them to bed at the same time," she says.

University Complains Of Fund Lack

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — The University of Lethbridge may be forced to relinquish its role as a degree-granting institution if the provincial government does not change estimates for university expenditures, says university president Dr. Bill Beckel.

Beckel told the university senate the amount of funds earmarked by the advanced education department in the 1975-76 academic year will force the administration "to reconsider our role as a degree-granting institution."

Beckel and several members of the board of governors met Monday with Jim Foster, advanced education minister, in an attempt to "convince the government it has gone too far."

The government has announced that the university will receive $5 million in 1973-74, $5.4 million in 1974-75 and $5.8 million in 1975-76.

Beckel said the grants do not even keep up with inflation.

CALGARY (CP) — Four employees of a paint and sandblasting firm were shaken but uninjured Monday following an explosion and fire that destroyed the building.

Total loss to J. Mason and Sons in the city's east end was about $350,000 including building and contents which were insured.

The explosion also blew out the front windows of a Zellers store about 200 feet across the street. Four or five vehicles parked nearby were damaged.

"How anybody got out I'll never know," Bob Sprouse, fire division chief, said.

EDMONTON (CP) — A agreement which guarantees equal pay for equal work for about 1,000 civil servants has been reached between the provincial government and the Civil Service Association of Alberta.

The agreement follows a complaint by the CSA to the Alberta Human Rights Commission earlier this year in which it claimed female institutional workers were performing the same duties as male caretaking and maintenace staff for less pay.

CSA president Bill Broad said the workers in question will receive retroactive pay increases as compensation.

CALGARY (CP) — Insulators' picket lines were lifted from city construction sites Monday as union and contractor negotiators continued negotiations.

The Alberta Construction Labor Relations Association did not break off negotiations Friday as was their announced intention and talks continued Monday.

ACLRA negotiators announced a breakdown of talks after alleged vandalism at the public library extension site. Heat and frost insulators denied knowledge of the vandalism. There also were reports of two workers, hired to replace union men, being roughed up.

Dailly Plans To Cut Classes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Education Minister Eileen Dailly said Monday she plans to act on a request from the British Columbia Teachers Federation that the government reduce class sizes in 1974.

In a presentation last week to a cabinet committee, including Mrs. Dailly, the federation said B.C.'s pupil-teacher ratio is the worst in Canada for elementary classes and the third-worst for secondary classes. The BCTF urged the government to spend $48 million extra next year to combat the situation, arguing that research shows smaller classes enhance the quality of education.

Mrs. Dailly said she expects to ask the cabinet for additional funds, but won't be able to say how much until detailed estimates are prepared by her departmental officials.

She said she was impressed by documentation supporting the BCTF's brief, and confirmed a statement by federation president Jim MacFarlan that the education department had taken no surveys of pupil-teacher ratio. She said the department will gather its own data before she makes recommendations to cabinet.

Kickback Queried

SURREY (CP) — Surrey Council voted Monday night to hold an investigation into allegations that Mayor Bill Vander Zalm approved a mobile home development in return for campaign funds.

This and a second allegation were brought by Alderman Don Ross, defeated in an attempt to gain re-election, and mainly supported by Alderman J. C. Karpoff, also defeated in a bid for re-election, and Alderman Ron Ross, who campaigned against the mayor and lost.

Those elected in the Nov. 17 election will not take office until the beginning of next year.

Mayor Vander Zalm denied all allegations and told the three aldermen they were just bringing another smear against the people of this Vancouver suburb.

Pop Sale Protest

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Merchants Service Guild has protested the sale of soft drinks manufactured by Wometco B.C. Ltd. on B.C. Ferries. Members of the Teamsters Union have been on strike against the firm since early October seeking payment by salary instead of the present commission basis. Wometco are bottlers of Coca-Cola and other soft drinks for the Lower Mainland.

Thefts Charged

SURREY (CP) — A 16-year-old Newton youth, a 21-year-old escapee from Campbell River Prison Camp and a 17-year-old girl have been charged with breaking and entry after RCMP recovered several thousand dollars worth of stolen stereo sets, color televisions, guitars and other articles.

Rural School Study

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial education department has set up a committee to study problems of small and remote secondary schools. The committee, to be chaired by W. D. Reid, superintendent of field services, is to report by June 30 to Education Minister Eileen Dailly.

Cruiser Theft

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — James Brent MacLean, 20, of Vancouver, was to appear in court today on a charge of stealing a $70,000 cabin cruiser from the Thunderbird Marina in Fisherman's Cove here Sunday.

Two-Year Term

DELTA (CP) — Donald A. Reid, 26, of Delta has been sentenced to two years in jail for abducting a 26-year-old Delta woman Oct. 30. Reid was sentenced to two years for abduction and a year each on a charge of possession of a restricted weapon and a charge of pointing a restricted weapon. The terms will be served concurrently.

NOT PREGNANT, SO SHE SUED

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A woman who for seven months thought she was going to have a baby and didn't has filed a $110,000 damage suit against her doctor.

In a suit filed against Dr. Rose McClanahan in Circuit Court Monday, Mrs. Angela Fields said:

Mrs. Fields went to Dr. McClanahan in January, 1972, after missing a menstrual period. Following examination and laboratory tests, Dr. McClanahan said she was pregnant.

During the presumed pregnancy, Dr. McClanahan told Mrs. Fields she could detect a heart beat and that the baby would be a girl.

In July, 1972, Mrs. Fields was admitted to General Hospital here for x-rays and was advised by Dr. McClanahan that cesarean birth might be necessary.

Mrs. Fields was taken to the hospital's labor room Aug. 7, 1972, and remained there all night. She was released the following morning and readmitted for a period of three days. Dr. McClanahan told her on Aug. 10 that the baby had died.

Mrs. Fields then consulted a second doctor and was advised that she had never been pregnant.

Camosun Can't Find Day Care Quarters

Day care is still an overwhelming need that isn't being met at Camosun College, college councillor Gerry Tromp told the council's finance committee Monday.

Tromp reported on months of searching for suitable quarters to set up a non-profit day care centre for Camosun students.

None of the houses and other buildings in the vicinity of Camosun's Lansdowne campus that were investigated were suitable, she said.

A portable day care centre unit on campus that would handle 25 children and meet provincial standards is the answer, Tromp and other members of the Camosun Day Care Society have concluded.

A proper day care centre on campus could be used by pre-school education and psychology students as part of their training, as well as providing a service, said Tromp.

She will ask Camosun college council next week to write the department of education asking for money to help set up the day care centre.

Cost of a suitable centre is estimated at $52,145.

The department of human resources has agreed to pay $20,000, and Tromp is looking for the education department or someone else to pay the rest.

Camosun bursar Dean Winram said the college has an extra $47,000 in its current budget and could seek department approval to divert it to help finance the day care centre.

Telesat Offers Time To Charlottes' MD

VANCOUVER (CP) — Telesat Canada Ltd. said at a meeting Monday it would be interested in conducting experiments on medical data communication through its Anik Satellite both from the far north and from the Queen Charlotte Islands.

But it is asking Dr. Hugh McGuire, administrator of the Queen Charlotte Islands General Hospital, who has been campaigning for months for such an experiment, to organize the medical team and arrange for the necessary financing.

Dr. McGuire said the meeting "is a great step forward. We already have the team. And I'm sure we can find the money."

He said he hopes the satellite can be used for transmitting x-ray photographs and other visual data from remote rural hospitals to specialists in city centres.

Dr. McGuire claims that while 70 per cent of all Canadian hospitals are in rural areas, it is becoming increasingly difficult to obtain city-trained doctors and health-workers in remote communities.

He said a new concept is needed for health care in rural areas—on-the-spot traning to understand the community and environment backed up with professional expertise made available "through sophisticated and exquisite technology."

Dr. McGuire said at the moment it's costing the province $500,000 a year to ship patients to Vancouver, treat them, and send them back to the Queen Charlottes.

"I think we can prove through simple arithmetic it would save us, and save hundreds of thousands of dollars for Canada as a whole, if we could do much of this diagnosis and treatment advice through satellite communication."

Dr. McGuire said satellite would be faster and provide better definition than microwave telephone systems. "Anyway, up in the Queen Charlottes we're socked in half the time. Communication is poor."

He said he has asked for such experiments before but Telesat claimed the Anik satellite could only be used for commercial purposes.

ICBC SITE REJECTED

RICHMOND (CP) — Richmond council for the second time has rejected a rezoning application from the Insurance Corporation of B.C.

The council refused to rezone 20 acres of agricultural land for a proposed drive-in claims centre for the first time on Oct. 9. Monday, the council adopted a recommendation by the planning committee supporting the first refusal because "the selected site was not the best location to serve the residents of Richmond."

Ottawa Dragging: Cocke

VANCOUVER (CP) — Health Minister Dennis Cocke of British Columbia said Monday plans for the B.C. Medical Centre Complex at the Shaughnessy Hospital site will go ahead despite the federal government "dragging its feet" in transferring the veterans' hospital to the province.

Cocke said in a news conference that "it's not that the federal Liberals don't want us to take over the Shaughnessy site, it's just that they are beginning to drag their feet a little bit."

Estimates Soon For Apartments

Cost estimates for Victoria's first senior citizens' apartment project financed on a federal-provincial-municipal basis should be available within two or three weeks, Ald. Alf Hood said Monday.

Hood, the city's housing committee chairman, said council's recent decision to reduce the parking requirements for such developments eliminated the last major hurdle to the apartment scheme, which should begin construction next year.

Property at Rupert and Collinson already has been purchased by the provincial government for the building, which will be several storeys high and comprise from 80 to 85 units, Hood said.

The project's capital cost will be financed on a 75-25 per cent basis by the federal and provincial governments, although amortization costs are included in the city's 12.5 per cent responsibility for operating losses.

SECOND SECTION

Saanich Rejects Second Works Ballot

Saanich council decided Monday by a 6-3 vote against putting a reduced public works referendum of $2,765,000 to the voters this year.

The referendum would have covered part of the road and drainage work that was contained in the $4,115,000 referendum which was narrowly defeated Nov. 17.

At its last meeting, council with the exception of Alds. Frank Waring and Alan Newberry, approved the first three readings of the pared-down referendum with the intent of putting it to the voters Dec. 15.

Ald. John McDonald was the first to say he had changed his mind Monday and would vote against another referendum this year.

He said he was in favor of the referendum but because of adverse publicity and the inability of council to present a united front the referendum might fail to get through now and "just cost taxpayers money."

Ald. Fred Severson said he was "very disappointed" but also felt he had to reverse his position for the same reasons. So did Ald. Sandy Noel.

Alds. William Campbell, Edith Gunning and Leslie Passmore stood firm in favor of the referendum being presented Dec. 15.

Campbell said Saanich would never get the work done any cheaper.

"We'll also save a year," he said, "and it would alleviate some drainage problems."

Gunning agreed the items were essential and money would have to be found some way.

Waring said the referendum should be presented after the mill rate had been set "so people will know where they are" and Newberry said in 1974 "we can look at it, modify it and take it to the electorate again."

Stating that he was voting against the referendum "with regret," Mayor Hugh Curtis rapped the Victoria Labor Council's condemnation of the referendum at its meeting Wednesday.

"I cannot let pass the irresponsibility of the labor council on this matter," he said. "Surely they should understand what is being debated before they put forward such a resolution.

"It's demeaning to, not us, but the labor council."

TASTES HAVE CHANGED, as Bella Morris, wearing 1973 fashions, can see as she examines the styles of the past decades. The Provincial Museum is running an exhibit of women's clothing from 1830 to 1950 in the Human History exhibit's Capital Curios Shop. A hostess at the museum, Bella will be able to study the styles at her leisure until Feb. 4 when the display comes down.

Camosun Plots Ways to Ease Overcrowding

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Camosun College is bursting at the seams and looking at ways to ease the situation.

The college is preparing contingency plans to relieve a growing space shortage at its Lansdowne campus, principal Dr. Grant Fisher said today.

Those plans may include cutting some programs next fall that the college planned to introduce, said Fisher, if the situation isn't better by then.

New students starting courses in January will make the present space situation more acute, he said.

The first priority, Fisher said, it to examine all existing space on campus, including unlikely spots never before considered for classroom use.

Under consideration is putting to use a "damp and musty" storage area on the bottom floor of the college cafeteria, he said.

This might be converted into a student recreation area and the present table tennis room (which was once a shower room) turned into a classroom.

Fisher said a second possibility is cutting back the number of sections ofered in various courses in the new year.

Right now some courses are given at dfferent times (or sections) to fit into different students' timetables. Combining some sections would save classroom space.

Fisher reported to Camosun councillors Monday evening that efforts to find classroom space in the community have failed.

College staff has looked at church halls, municipal recreation centres, and some buildings owned by the University of Victoria.

People in charge of the recreation centres were reluctant to lease space to the college on a long-term basis, he said, as were some church halls. Other church halls charged extremely high rates.

Fisher said it was "extremely difficult" to obtain portable classroom units to ease the situation.

Greater Victoria School District has its own overcrowding situation in its Gordon Head area schools, so its portable classrooms are in use.

"The space problem is one that we're really having to struggle with," Fisher told the councillors.

The college has extensive plans for expansion of both the Lansdowne and the Interurban campuses.

However expansion at the Lansdowne campus must wait until the campus land is bought from the University of Victoria by the provincial government, and then leased to the college, said Fisher.

The sale is now being negotiated.

He said he'd be surprised to see the Lansdowne campus expansion completed by the target date of the fall of 1976.

Cost, Facility Sharing Eyed

Camosun College will share costs and facilities with the University of Victoria, if the college council approves a suggestion made by its administration and personnel committee Monday.

The suggestion, outlined in a report by Camosun principal Dr. Grant Fisher, is for sharing by the college and UVic of such things as athletics and recreation facilities, library, health program facilities and social work labs.

"Every effort should be made to minimize unnecessary duplication," said Fisher's report.

As an example, said Fisher, Camosun could perhaps help finance the university library and in return get full borrowing privileges for its students and faculty, rather than expand its own library.

College council chairman Dr. Harold Knight suggested that informal talks with UVic officials be held before a formal proposal is sent to them.

In other business, the committee agreed to ask the college council to set up an ad hoc committee to prepare a brief for the provincial regional colleges task force.

Committee members approved several recommendations included in a working paper written by Fisher on community colleges, and these recommendations will probably be included in the council's brief.

Each regional (or community) college council should be two-thirds elected by voters in the region, and should include students and college employees, the committee agreed.

The committee also agreed there should be no intermediary body set up to act between the provincial government and the college council, as has been suggested for universities.

"It's another gatekeeper that prevents direct communication," Knight said.

CONSERVING ENERGY in their fight for protection against continuing showers, Bob Higginbottom and Mary Jane Apcar shared an umbrella in the downpour today. There have been showers 22 days since the beginning of the month for a total rainfall of 6.14 inches. Although the sun is expected to make a brief appearance Wednesday, occasional showers are also predicted. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Control Tower Ready To Guide Shipping

The top floor of a 14-storey highrise in West Vancouver will become the nerve centre for control of west coast shipping beginning Jan. 1.

Atop Camp 100, which overlooks Vancouver harbor, a ministry of transport station will begin monitoring all shipping plying the waters from Cape Flattery at the mouth of the Strait of Juan de Fuca up as far as Cape Scott on the northwest tip of Vancouver Island.

In charge of the new system, which is part of a three-point program to cut down the risk of marine incidents, is Capt. Dave Johns, newly-appointed regional superintendent of marine traffic, regulating and information systems.

Johns said ships have been reporting their positions at "23 critical points" in the area on a voluntary basis since July 1.

This "bridge to bridge" reporting was introduced as a first stage in order to familiarize ships' masters with sector reporting, and will eventually lead to them reporting to the West Vancouver centre.

As of Jan. 1, Johns said, reporting to the station will be on a voluntary basis but will become mandatory for all ships in Canadian waters by next summer.

Ships in American waters will report to the station on a voluntary basis.

"We have been working a great deal with the 13th district of the U.S. Coast Guard in Seattle," Johns said, "on a joint voluntary system.

"Now Washington and Ottawa are working out details for a compulsory system. It is now in the hands of the external affairs and state departments and will lead to an international agreement."

Johns said traffic lanes are being planned, to run from Vancouver to Cape Flattery, including the pilot pickup point off Victoria.

A VHF (very high frequency) radio network is "just about completed," Johns said.

Johns said that negotiations are under way to obtain sites for four radar surveillance stations, which will be installed as the third stage of the traffic control program.

"We are still negotiating on some of the sites," Johns said, "There will be one in the Gulf Islands near Active Pass, one in the Bowen Island-Point Gray area, one in the Saanich area and another in Victoria city."

Johns estimated the radio surveillance system would start by early 1976.

Vote Or Wait

A by-election to fill a vacant Saanich school board seat could be a long time coming if it isn't held before Jan. 1.

Delays well into late spring could be caused by changes in the Municipal Act which come into effect in 1974, Central Saanich clerk Fred Durrand said today.

Central Saanich trustee Gordon Ewan resigned his seat on the Saanich board two days after the Nov. 17 municipal election.

The municipality of Central Saanich is supposed to hold a by-election within 30 days of Ewan's resignation, but the Christmas holiday season may make it difficult to hold the by-election before the New Year.

Any election held after Jan. 1 will operate under the changed Municipal Act, which broadens eligible voters to all residents of the municipality.

A new voters' list will have to be prepared by house-to-house enumerations, as for federal elections, said Saanich school board chairman Rubymay Parrott.

"This kind of list enumertion is going to take one heck of a long time," she said.

If no by-election is held within the time limit the school board, with approval of the minister of education, may appoint someone to fill the vacancy.

Sidney Bylaw Reprieves Sanscha Hall Once More

Sanscha Hall, Sidney's main recreational facility, will remain open at least another year.

Council unanimously passed a bylaw to exempt the hall from property taxes after brief discussion Monday.

A former decision not to pass the bylaw was rescinded after a number of Sanscha directors protested, saying the hall would have to close if taxes were levied.

At a special meeting Nov. 20 Mayor Stan Dear told the Sanscha delegation total taxes at the 1973 mill rate would be $8,058.

Sanscha treasurer Reg Muskett said last year's operating costs were $12,484 and the association would be unable to afford an additional $8,000.

Ald. Chris Andersen, who persuaded a two-thirds majority to vote against the bylaw, told the delegation his intentions were not to close the hall but to force North Saanich to pay its fair share of the operating costs.

At that meeting Andersen said if North Saanich was willing to share the costs "I am not too tall to put my tail between my legs and change my mind."

Sanscha director Eric Sherwood, elected to North Saanich council Nov. 17, later told the meeting there will likely be greater co-operation between Sidney and North Saanich in future.

Sanscha rental chairman Eleanor Sowerby said today "it was a shock" when council decided not to pass the bylaw, which they have done annually.

She described Monday's decision as "a surprise" adding Sanscha directors will be spending some time in 1974 looking for a permanent solution to the association's tax problems.

ANDERSEN
. . . goal achieved

Acting Sanscha chairman Murray Stockhaul said a meeting held Monday was rather unproductive because there were not enough executive members attending and "we didn't know where we stood or what we were in for."

None Injured In Explosion

Workmen escaped injury this morning when a gasoline explosion occurred at Advance Collision, 741 Pembroke, while they were cleaning dirty gas tanks.

A spokesman for the fire department said the explosion was caused by gas vapor escaping from a cleaning vat coming in contact with a gas heater. Damage was negligible.

Mayor-elect Brian Smith and son Chris

Oak Bay's Yo-Yo Champ Became a Go-Go Citizen

By BRUCE OBEE
Times Staff

Back in the days when Oak Bay Theatre was showing Humphrey Bogart, Brian Smith was the local yo-yo champ.

He's got the sweater to prove it.

He took another Oak Bay championship Nov. 17 when he topped the polls in an exciting mayoralty race.

From yo-yo champ to mayor is a big step and Smith has spent a lot of time in between stockpiling the qualifications which Oak Bay residents expect and demand from their elected representatives.

During an interview at his Island Road home, Smith took time out to reminisce about his days as a youngster in Oak Bay.

"I used to pride myself on being a tremendous golfball scrounger . . . In my day no self-respecting scrounger would go into the rough with a dog."

When the golfball business was down his small-time property development business was up.

"I built beach forts all along Willows Beach"—(low-key, single-youngster units).

Smith often defended his "formidable fortresses" from the "bad guys" through great seaweed throwing battles.

"I still like playing with seaweed," admitted Smith.

"One time he put seaweed on his head and had a sleep," said his seven-year-old son Chris.

Disgruntedl with "busted" forts, Smith joined the yachting crowd.

"I was a fanatical raft-builder . . . I used to build them at the golf course end of Oak Bay or else I'd build them at the Cattle Point end and I'd try and bring them around."

As he got older he spent his summers working.

"I did have a summer in which I worked briefly on the Oak Bay garbage detail. I was a can roller. I wasn't a dumper because I had not progressed sufficiently in the heirarchy to dump, but I rolled.

"And I think that like tea-cup readers, garbage collectors are very wise and know a great deal about the people that they service from the state of their garbage."

Smith's first encounter with development was in 1962. He'd been away with his father and when he returned Beach Drive's Olde Charming Inn had been replaced by the Rudyard Kipling — 10 stories of concrete.

Since then he has taken a firm stand against highrise and high-density development for Oak Bay.

Golfball scrounger, garbage man, caddy, survey helper, research assistant, history teacher and lawyer make up only a small part of Smith's history.

Born in 1934 Smith was raised in the Willows Beach area and received his public school eduation in Oak Bay.

After two years at Victoria College he moved to Vancouver where he got a BA in English and history at UBC. He later studied at Queen's University in Kingston where he got an MA in Canadian history before returning to UBC where he got his law degree.

After he married Barbara in 1961 he practised law with a Vancouver firm for three years then moved to Victoria where he specializes in criminal law.

"I always tutored or taught Canadian history in some form all the time I was a graduate student," said Smith glancing at the walls of his den lined with Canadian history books, "and I have done so right up till the spring of this year over a period of 16 years."

Municipal politics didn't particularly interest him "until I was married and had a young family and began to get concerned with things that were going on around me — development and apartments, that sort of thing."

Notable changes which Smith has in store for Oak Bay and the council include "a little more public participation and public exposure for the rest of the council so the mayor isn't always in the limelight."

JELLY SIDE DOWN
nancy stahl

As I remember, it all started when I refused to let him eat lunch with his hockey helmet on.

The situation deteriorated rapidly during a lecture entitled "I'm Fully Aware that Creamed Chipped Beef on Toast is Not Your Favorite Meal, But This Doesn't Happen to Be the Army, and Don't You Ever Call It That Again."

An hour later, wearing blue ski pajamas and his hockey helmet, he confronted us in the living room.

"You don't have to pretend any more," he announced gravely. "I know."

"He KNOWS!" I gasped, icy fingers of panic clutching at my heart.

"OMIGOSH!" my husband replied, his face ashen. We sat in stunned silence for thirty seconds.

"Do you have any idea what he's talking about?" I finally asked.

"Not the slightest," my husband admitted.

"I'm adopted, ain't I?" our son said.

"What ever gave you that idea?"

"If I were your own little boy, you wouldn't pick on me all the time."

I was momentarily tempted to remind him that if he weren't our own little boy, we'd have given him back five years ago.

"Of course you're not adopted," my husband replied. "I'll show you your birth certificate to prove it."

"Besides," I reminded him, "being adopted doesn't mean that your parents don't love you. Being alopted means being chosen by two people who want that particular baby more than anything else in the world. They choose him out of all the other babies to take home with them and love."

"See," added his father, who had finally located our son's birth certificate in a folder containing the warranty on the blender. "You weren't adopted."

To our surprise, our son took one look at his birth certificate and burst innto tears.

"If I were your chosen child," he sobbed, "you wouldn't pick on me all the time."

Who Is It That Likes Toys? Certainly Not the Children

By JUDITH MARTIN

WASHINGTON (WP) — As tight as money is, multitudes of people are about to go out and squander heaps of it on junk which they know will bring them and theirs nothing but grief.

It is almost Christmas. One must buy toys for the children. Why is not clear. Who is it, after all, who really likes toys?

Not children, certainly. What children like is your scotch tape, your scissors, your typewriter, your new shoes, your razor and your automobile. Second choice is any of these things belonging to a sibling; especially if the sibling is trying to hold onto the other end of it.

If you want to drain all innocent pleasure from those playthings, try giving the children toy or real versions of their very own. That will be the end of that.

Adults hate toys just as much, if they'll only admit it. What gets in the way and ultimately onto the charge account is that there is a submarket of toys aimed especially at vulnerable adults:

● No-color, natural finish, abstractly designed Scanadavian toys which go with the furniture.

● Obsolete toys, such as electric trains, delight new generations which have never seen trains in their lives and have been brought up to believe that if the shuttle isn't running, we stay home.

● Useless toys, such as old-fashioned dolls with china faces which are given into the custody of children who are admonished not to play with them.

But real toys are things which any adult can recognize immediately as his natural enemy. They have hundreds of pieces to be put together according to Japanese directions printed on tissue paper. Or they have hundreds of little pieces which are not supposed to be put together, but are supposed to be scattered all over the house so that the toy is unplayable and the house is unlivable.

They make noise: Either they can be clanged together, or they burst, or they have long strings which set them talking in high, squeaky voices when you pull.

They come with wheels, and either the wheels fall off, in which case the house looks like a wrecking establishment, or they stay on, in which case the house becomes a wrecking establishment.

They turn icky. If you think there's nothing like coming across a puckered old crone of a balloon in a forgotten closet, take a look at the aging process of clay. Or bubble gum, for that matter.

They have eyes or heads that come off, according to a well-known principle that just when dolls begin to revolt grown-ups with their macabre looks, children start to love them. Or else they come with parts missing and the children want to know if they're built funny. (The question may not embarrass you, but can you think of an answer?)

But the redeeming quality of all these things is that they don't last. With any luck, you can have a clean-sweeping and Happy New Year.

Cookie Stealers Will Like These

By MARY MOORE

Recently our summer cottage was broken into and lo and behold didn't the thief run off with my recipe box. I'm sure he thought the cottage belonged to "Mary Moore," as most of the recipes had your name on them! Luckily I had a duplicate copy of most of these treasures on file at home. However, there is one — Oatmeal Coconut Drop Cookies — which I no longer have. The children have been asking for them and I would enjoy putting them in their lunch boxes. I thoroughly enjoy your column and have tried many of your delicious recipes. Many thanks, Mrs. Erma A."

That cookie recipe has been tampered with by several readers. The variation that is a favorite follows.

OATMEAL DROP COOKIES

1-3 cup butter or margarine
⅞ cup brown sugar
1 large egg
½ tsp. vanilla
½ cup coconut OR raisins
½ cup flour
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. baking soda
⅛ tsp. mace
½ tbsp. grated orange rind (optional)
1½ cups rolled oats

Cream butter or margarine with the sugar until light. Beat in egg and vanilla. With beaters on "low" add remaining ingredients as you measure them. Drop from wet teaspoon onto greased cookie sheets about 2" apart and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 10 minutes.

Note: A delicious addition for a fruitier flavor is 1-3 cup mixed peel.

Free For The Asking

By HARRIET HART

Leukemia is a type of cancer affecting the tissues which produce the bloodcells that are vital to our well-being.

The 4-page folder "Facts About Leukemia" explains that there are two forms of leukemia. The acute kind which spreads rapidly and the chronic kind which progresses slowly. Unfortunately, some 60 per cent of leukemia cases are acute.

The cause of leukemia has not yet been discovered. It is known, however, that like other types of cancer, leukemia is not contagious.

Most leukemia sufferers are men. Acute leukemia affects people of all age groups, but particularly children under ten. Chronic leukemia occurs more often in people past fifty.

The folder states that years ago, acute leukemia was considered fatal. Chronic cases were treated with radiation as a palliative.

Fortunately, certain medication is now able to put the disease "in remission." This prolongs the life of the patient. Sometimes blood transfusions achieve the same result.

In all parts of the world the search continues for more effective drugs to combat leukemia.

For the folder on leukemia contact your local unit of the Canadian Cancer Society. Please allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

Super Booth Traps Hoaxer

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The Baltimore fire department plans to test a fire alarm device designed to trap anyone making a false report and hold him until help arrives.

The device, which looks like a public telephone booth, is made of metal with tough plastic windows and is honeycombed with electronic circuits.

A person must enter the booth and close the door before an alarm can be activated. A buzzer then sounds, a red light flashes on top and the door is locked for three minutes—time enough for firefighters to arrive.

The device will be tested for six months beginning in February in three areas of the city with a high incidence of false alarms.

The booth was invented by Vincent Di Paula, Pikesville, Md., musician and Joseph Casseri, a Parkville, Md., electronics engineer.

It costs $1,650 compared with $450 for a standard fire alarm box. But fire officials say it can save up to $1 million now wasted on responding to false alarms.

The fire department said 5,329 of the 9,013 alarms turned in from street boxes between July, 1972, and July, 1973, proved to be false.

Howard Owen, president of the Baltimore fire board, said the board views the booth as "one of the most promising innovations ever to be advanced to combat the false alarm problem."

Deputy Fire Chief Bert Bedford, who has been monitoring the project, says: "It's indestructibility must be proved in actual tests but . . . it's the best thing I've seen in 23 years in the department. The threat of detention is the biggest thing."

Di Paula offered $500 for anyone who can fool the box or break it. He said hundreds tried and one man even wielded a fire axe against the booth without success.

Les Enfants de Cinq Ans Apprennent le Francais

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Fleur-Ange Lamothe's kindergarten class at Richmond elementary can count up to 22 now, and can identify the major colors.

They can sing a few songs, and are learning the words to O Canada.

Not so astounding for five-year-olds — except these five-year-olds are doing it all in French.

The 18 youngsters attend Greater Victoria School District's first French immersion class, which started in September.

Their teacher, Mrs. Lamothe, has spoken nothing but French to them from the first day of school.

The school district also started two 50 per cent French kindergarten classes this fall. Mrs. Lamothe teaches one in the afternoon, and Marie Lessard teaches another at Cloverdale elementary.

So far no parents have withdrawn their child from any of the classes because they were unhappy with it, said Ted Callbeck, school district assistant director of curriculum.

Callbeck, who is trilingual himself, favors the 100 per cent French program over the half-French one.

"Immersion is the thing," he said.

With the total immersion kindergarten the first few days were the hardest, said Mrs. Lamothe.

Everything she told the children was totally incomprehensible to them, and she had to bring in a teacher's assistant to keep order.

Today the classroom is as orderly as any kindergarten.

When Mrs. Lamothe says "Venez", or "Ou est David?", or "Faites un beau cercle", they know what she's saying.

The children usually answer Mrs. Lamothe in English, and of course talk English among themselves, but they do know a few French words.

By the end of the school year they should know a lot of nouns and simple sentences, she said.

Most important, she said, they already have the right attitude to languages.

"They think of French as a natural means of communication now," said Mrs. Lamothe.

Games and songs help the class to learn new words — parts of the body like "le nez" and "Les cheveux" which they point to, articles of clothing, or fruits and vegetables.

They learn to move like animals — hopping around like "un lapin", galloping like "un cheval" and flapping their arms like "un oiseau".

Callbeck said the school board has committed itself to providing French-Language classes for these students up to Grade 7.

After a few years of totally French instruction the classes will use more and more English until by Grade 7 they are half French, half English, he said.

Research shows that children in the French immersion are "considerably behind" in their learning after the first year compared with regular classes, said Callbeck.

This lag lasts until around Grade 3 or 4 when the immersion classes not only catch up but surge ahead of the others, he said.

He said it seems the students' "ability to communicate ideas and meanings" in English is enhanced by their knowledge of a second language.

Mrs. Lamothe has 14 children in her half-French kindergarten. She teaches all in French one day, all in English the next, to avoid confusion.

Miss Lessard teaches her half-French kindergarten of 22 pupils in French the first part of each morning, in English the second part.

GERMAN SITE PROPOSED FOR CAMPUS

OTTAWA (CP) — University students may soon be able to study in Europe without the usual red tape of having to transfer course credits obtained at foreign schools to Canadian universities.

Dr. Bernd Maurach, a professor at University of Ottawa, wants to set up a Canadian University in Europe (CUE). As part of his campaign he has been canvassing presidents and deans of universities across the country with information about it.

Reaction to his mail campaign will determine whether his brainchild gets beyond the embryo stage.

Dr. Maurach has already done some solid groundwork. Through his efforts a university in Kassel, West Germany, has agreed to turn over one of its buildings to accommodate a Canadian university in Europe.

Kassel is an ideal location for a Canadian university, said Dr. Maurach. It is centrally located, offers reasonably priced accommodation, good transportation and abundant cultural diversions.

A summer school program involving 16 Canadian universities, held in Kassel this year, has convinced Dr. Maurach that an extension university there has a good chance of success.

The CUE would not be a degree-granting institution. It would simply provide space to Canadian universities interested in offering some of their courses in Europe.

It would also serve children of military and diplomatic families stationed in Europe who wish to continue their studies abroad with a Canadian university curriculum.

The university would be staffed with Canadian and local instructors, with Canadians making up the largest part of the faculty.

If reaction to the idea is good, he said the university could open as early as next September.

About 300 students probably could be accommodated the first year, he said.

Poor Nutrition Linked to Dieting

CALGARY (CP) — Canadian men are better nourished than women because women are overly preoccupied with dieting, says one of the authors of the Nutrition, Canada report released this month.

Dr. Zak Sabry, national co-ordinator of the two-year national survey, told a news conference that by reducing their caloric intake, women are also restricting their supply of proteins, vitamins and minerals.

The $2.5 million study, commissioned by the federal Department of Health and Welfare, surveyed 27,000 Canadians and found two-thirds of the adult population was overweight.

But the overweight don't necessarily eat huge quantities of food in comparison with their slimmer neighbors, Sabry said.

"Obesity hinges on physical activity. The proper solution to losing weight is not in dieting but in eating normally and getting more exercise."

The report also says one out of three pregnant women were found to have protein deficiencies.

"This could be, at least in part, due to physicians encouraging their patients to control their weight during pregnancy. Pregnancy is a very delicate time and not one to be fooling around with weight control."

Although the problem did not appear to be severe, children born to malnourished mothers could end with "behavioral problems, learning disabilities and, in severe cases, retardation."

The solution to the number of vitamin and mineral deficiencies that showed up in the survey is not taking vitamin supplements but eating a balanced diet of natural foods, he said. People need about 40 nutrients daily that they can get only by eating real food, "the old-fashioned way."

"Taking supplements instead of food is a mistake. There is no such thing as a complete vitamin supplement."

Scientists know very little about many of the vitamins and minerals found in food and have not yet been able to analyze them, he said.

Summer Love Fades

Dear Abby: Last summer I met a woman I'll call "Dotty" at a housewares show. We had booths near each other, and were instantly attracted to one another. I'm a 42-year-old married man, but the fire had gone out of my marriage a long time ago. Dotty is 40. She said she and her husband were on the verge of splitting up.

We had an exciting thing going for the duration of the convention, but I never made her any promises.

After I got home, Dotty started calling me at work every day. She even came to my town to see me several times! Now she says she's in love with me, is divorcing her husband, and wants to marry ME! Abby, I am not in love with this woman and divorce never entered my mind. I have three children and Dotty has two. She's talking about telling her husband and my wife about "us." That's the last thing I want.

I admit she's physically exciting, but I don't want to break up my home for her. I've been so nervous lately, my wife keeps asking me what's wrong. How do I get out of this mess?—Jumpy Clutch.

Dear Jumpy Tell Dotty it was just a summer romance and you're not a man for all seasons. If she's srious about telling your wife and her husband, you'd be ahead to tell your wife and start furnishing the doghouse. What Dotty's husband will do is worry number two. If you're lucky, Dotty will let you off the hook and disappear, after which you should keep your mind on your business when you go to the housewares show.

Dear Abby: Recently our pet dog, a 60-pound German shepherd, dug her way out of our backyard, and was returned to us the same afternoon by two teen-age boys.

These boys found her about six blocks from our home. Since the dog had no leash, the boys had to hold her by her collar (which bore our address) and walk her home, mostly uphill.

I gave each boy a dollar for his trouble. My wife and children (both teen-agers) felt that I had cheapened and demeaned the boys' good deed by giving them money. They compared it to returning a lost child, while I thought it was closer to returning a lost wallet.

What is your opinion?—F.M.

Dear F.M.: I think a reward was in order, assuming you didn't force it on the boys over their protests.

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest your opinion of wife-swapping. Thank you for saying: "To me, the sexual expression of love is a beautiful, private thing between two people, and using sex to achieve the ultimate in a thrill which could conceivably include the whole neighborhood is for animals."

Now, may I relate my own experience in that regard? After my husband and I had been married for 10 years, he suggested wife-swapping. The idea was disgusting to me, but he kept insisting it would improve our relationship, and even though I thought our relationship was fine, because I loved him and wanted to please him, I agreed to try it. It was the most foolish decision I ever made.

The result: Two divorces, and five beautiful children who now miss their daddies.

Contrary to what the swingers say, there can be no sex without some emotional involvement. Because I loved my husband, I went too far to please him, and lost my self respect. — Too Late.

DEAR TOO LATE: My mail concerning wife-swapping is running 20 to 1 against it.

Ransom Demand Agreed

ROME (Reuter) — The mother of J. Paul Getty III has agreed to a demand by her former husband that she turn over her three younger children to him in exchange for his paying a ransom of $1 million to Paul's presumed kidnappers.

The announcement came in an open letter issued by Gail Harris Monday night, in which she appealed to her son's kidnappers to accept the $1-million offer.

Although the offer was less than one-third of the $3.6 million which the kidnappers are reported to have demanded, Mrs. Harris said she and her former husband were willing to pay before their son is freed.

They had insisted before that the 17-year-old youth be returned at the same time as any ransom payment was made.

The missing youth's grandfather, oil magnate J. Paul Getty, who lives in England and is reported to be one of the world's richest men, has repeatedly refused to contribute to the ransom. He has said that to do so would place the lives of his 14 other grandchildren and other relatives in jeopardy.

Paul Getty Jr., who lives in London, announced last weekend he was willing to pay a ransom but did not specify at that time what sum he was offering.

THE DRIVER, Joe Goodman, 26, of Port Orchard, Wash., is missing and presumed drowned after his pickup hit the guard rail on a bridge near Eugene, Oregon, and burst into flames. State police and Eugene firemen look over the rail where witnesses report seeing a person engulfed in flames jump into the McKenzie River. Police are searching for the body.

Abortion Rate Jumps

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The abortion rate in Canada during 1972 jumped again, this time to 11.2 abortions per 100 live births, according to Statistics Canada.

This compares with a rate of 8.6 abortions per 100 live births in 1971 in Canada, a rate of 16 in England and Wales, of 26 in the United States, and of 158 in New York City.

Yet despite the increase in the number of legal abortions domestically at least 6,000 Canadians decided to have abortions in New York state, including New York City, during 1972, Statistics Canada estimates.

The number going to New York is down slightly from the previous year. During 1972 in Canada, 38,853 therapeutic abortions were reported, compared to 30,923 recorded in 1971 an increase of 25.6 per cent.

The largest increase during 1972 was reported by the Yukon, where there was a 500 per cent increase from eight cases to 48 cases.

The second largest increase was in Quebec, traditionally a province where abortions are hard to get. There, legal abortions increased from 1,881 cases in 1971 to 2,847 in 1972, an increase of 51.3 per cent.

The abortion rate per 100 live births jumped from 2.1 in Quebec to 3.4 in 1972.

Ontario and British Columbia continue to have the largest number of legal abortions, with 20,272 and 8,179 cases respectively.

But B.C. continues to be the most lenient province, with a rate of abortions per 100 live births of 23.2, followed by Ontario with 16.2 and Alberta with a rate of 13.3.

Incomplete domestic statistics suggest that about 30 per cent of the women getting abortions are married, about 60 per cent are single, and the rest are widowed, divorced or common-law.

About 40 per cent are age 20 to 29 and almost as many are under 20.

The majority of abortions are performed between nine and 12 weeks of gestation, with 33 per cent performed at 13 weeks or over.

ASSISTANT 'NAIVE' SAYS NORTHERN NDPer

Times News Services

PRINCE GEORGE — Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich's executive assistant was "carried away" when he told a Prince George audience no one should own land in B.C., Fort George MLA Alf Nunweiler (NDP), said Monday.

"He was carried away with verbal diarrhea and his own personal, naive opinions," said Nunweiler of Alex McLellan, the assistant, who was booed by farmers at a Prince George Chamber of Commerce dinner.

"It is too bad that the minister couldn't come so he could speak from a position of government. What this man said is not government philosophy — he had no authority to say what he said.

"If, as he said, this is his personal opinion, he should just keep his opinions to himself."

22 Plead Not Guilty In Big U.S. Swindle

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Twenty-two former executives of the Equity Funding Life Insurance Co. pleaded innocent Monday to charges of fraud and conspiracy in what is alleged to be the biggest insurance swindle in U.S. history.

Equity Life's former president, Stanley Goldblum, 46, was named in 45 counts. Fred Levin, 36, former executive vice-president in charge of insurance operations, was named in 33 counts.

Most of the others were former executives of Equity Funding Life Insurance Co., the insurance subsidiary which was the centre of the alleged swindle.

The alleged swindle, which involved a complex rigging of the firm's computer, was based on phony insurance policies made out to fictitious persons.

Equity Funding Life allegedly swelled its books with these nonexistent customers. The policies held by the fictitious "customers" were then allegedly sold for cash to other insurance companies.

CUPE Backs Off in Dispute But Still Demands Reform

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's largest national union, the 185,000-member Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE), has backed off in a dispute with the Canadian Labor Congress over provincial employees but is still pressing for a major reform of the CLC.

The decision by CUPE leaders to compromise on the bitter provincial-employee issue required approval today from about 800 convention delegates.

CUPE had threatened to leave the 1.8 million-member congress if it had not been given exclusive membership rights to tens of thousands of provincial government workers.

But even as one dispute seems resolved, CUPE leaders are tackling a wider issue. They are demanding, with support from other public service unions, that the congress become more dynamic.

Stan Little, CUPE president, made public Monday a reform program and a resolution giving the CUPE executive the right to withdraw from the congress if the proposals fail.

Backed by Claude Edwards, president of the 145,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada, and Don Secord, president of the 36,000-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, Mr. Little said his union would agree that non-CUPE provincial employees could join the CLC providing the congress sets up a strong nationwide provincial workers' organization.

CUPE had claimed exclusive membership rights to all provincial government workers save those in British Columbia, who were in the congress before CUPE formed 10 years ago.

Although that dispute seems to have been put aside, Mr. Little lists a series of other complaints against the congress today in his president's report to the union.

He says in his report he is disappointed that the congress does not have more public employee representatives on the 30-member executive council, is critical of lack of services and leadership from congress officers, and expresses exasperation with CLC efforts at organizing white-collar workers.

Congress leadership had shown a lack of imagination. Only raiding by nationalist unions had caused "a noticeable twitch in the corpse" of the CLC lately.

Mr. Little adds that the congress officers have been hostile to CUPE, siding with unions within the CLC that have competed with his union.

Although Mr. Edwards and Mr. Secord worked jointly with Mr. Little in preparation of the reform program for the CLC, neither would commit themselves to a departure from the congress.

While CUPE is threatening to leave at the May convention of the CLC in Vancouver unless the reform platform is adopted, the leaders of the other two unions said they would not leave the congress before 1976 when their conventions are held.

The three union chiefs said the reform will require new leadership in the CLC and a slate of candidates will be prepared. CLC chief Donald MacDonald is retiring in May.

The three leaders say they can count on support from about 500,000 CLC members, more than one-quarter of present membership. Among their supporters they count the United Auto Workers, all major public service unions at three levels of government and the Canadian Food and Allied Workers.

Economic Man Named

W. Winston Mair, former Manitoba deputy minister of resources, has been named director for British Columbia of the federal department of regional economic expansion.

His appointment, announced in Ottawa Monday is part of a decentralization program in the department. Three other regional directors were also named.

Mair, 59, is a wildlife biologist who worked in the B.C. predator control program in 1951-52 and later joined the Canadian Wildlife Service. He has been with the Manitoba government since 1967.

He will be stationed in Victoria.

A Song for UVic?

University of Victoria students and faculty will compete in a contest designed to restore some traditional spirit to the campus.

The competition is called the Alma Mater Society School Song project.

The idea for the competition to compose music and lyrics for a university song came from Chancellor Emeritus Dr. Joseph Clearihue who will provide a prize of $200 for the best composition submitted by a student.

A selection committee will meet in November, an AMS spokesman said today, when rules will be established for the competition.

Auditions are scheduled for January and the winning entry will be chosen at the end of January.

If the contest is won by a non-student the prize money will be awarded to the student entry judged best.

AMS president Linda Flavelle described the song project as a "worthy attempt to restore some traditional spirit to the campus."

UVic has never had a official school song in the traditional sense, another AMS spokesman said, "not as long as I can remember anyway."

7 Years For Rape

NANAIMO — Two men were sentenced in B.C. Supreme Court Monday to seven-year terms for rape and another person received a four-year sentence for attempted rape.

Ronald Gerald Breckinridge, 31, and Ronald Barrill, 33, both of Nanaimo, received the seven-year terms for raping a teenage girl May 22 who was hitch-hiking on the Island Highway.

Arthur William Thorpe, 30, of Mesachie Lake, was sentenced to four years for attempted rape and one year concurrent for indecent assault. He was convicted Nov. 1 for attempting to rape a 14-year-old girl and indecently assaulting another 14-year-old.

Mini-Climates Surprise Newcomers

Climatic differences between adjacent sections of Greater Victoria are known by long-time gardeners of the areas, but newcomers are surprised by such local conditions.

Even as early as end of November these differences can be seen. Basically they seem to depend on distance from salt water, but there are other factors such as altitude and type of vegetation.

Gardens within a few blocks of salt water in Esquimalt and Oak Bay are retaining their late fall flowers, leaf coloring and fruits, though similar nearness to water at Sidney does not assure a prolonged mild fall. The exposure to northeast winds from the Straits of Georgia shortens the season there.

In Esquimalt, leaves are still on many of the ornamental cherry trees, rowans and birches, even though color is fading. Crops of fruits on the huge shrubs of cotoneaster horizontalis have never been so spectacular. Perhaps last summer's dryness contributed in some way. Or, more likely, with dry weather at the time of flowering, the pollinating bees had time to do a fine job.

A sharp frost lasting two or three days usually depletes the crop of berries, first by causing them to drop from the shrubs, second by bringing robins and starlings to feed on them.

In the colder parts of Saanich, some dropping of the fruits occurred in the two periods of hard frost this month, though even the upright C. simonsi is still plentifully loaded.

In shopping plaza carparks you will see many fine cotoneasters still heavily berried. The gracefully arching evergreen species and varieties make a splendid sight in foliage and fruit.

Take a look at them. They may be just what you want for hedges four to five feet high, to filter noise and toxic fumes.

While there are now dozens of named varieties, some are so similar it will pay you to visit growers and nursery retailers to choose plants by their growing habit and fruiting.

Cotoneasters are reasonably fast growing, yet have not the gross feeding habit that is the fault of most hedge plants.

Pruning is no problem for you simply cut out the one branch you wish to eliminate. Make the cut low down on the shrub never clipping the top, for this results in poor appearance and fewer flowers and berries.

Do the removal of unwanted branches in late fall when berries are at their finest and you have readymade, artistic indoor arrangements for large vases and bowls.

Greater Victoria is a unique area for its variable microclimates. Take advantage of this feature while there is still the chance for choosing and planting. Tomorrow may be different.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Every bridge player in the world develops blind spots every once in a while. The non-expert is, quite naturally, more prone to develop them than the expert. Today's deal is an example of an elementary blind spot that did in our non-expert South declarer.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 NT	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
5 ♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ♠.

South's rebid of two no-trump was an overbid, and its result was that it made North slam-conscious. When North then bid four clubs, South signed off at five clubs. After some thought, North decided to pass.

On West's opening lead of the spade nine, declarer unthinkingly finessed dummy's queen. Upon capturing the trick with his king, East made the normal shift to a low heart. Declarer now really had no choice but to finesse again, which he did. As is evident, West won the trick with his king. Declarer eventually went down a trick, since the loss of a trick to East's ace of trumps was inevitable.

Declarer's blind spot came at trick one, when he finessed dummy's queen of spades. Had he stopped to count his tricks, he would have perceived that there was no necessity to risk that finesse.

The opening spade lead should have been captured by dummy's ace. A trump would then be led, driving out East's ace. Assuming that East then returned a heart, declarer would also have spurned this finesse. He would take the trick with his ace, and then gather in the two outstanding trumps. He would next cash four diamond tricks, dummy's two remaining hearts being discarded on the third and fourth leads of diamonds. South would now lead his queen of hearts, which he would ruff in dummy. Played as recommended, declarer's only losers would have been a spade and a trump.

From a technical aspect the point of the hand is to avoid losing a heart trick. This can be accomplished by not running the risk of allowing East to win the opening spade lead. This, in turn, can be accomplished by declining to take the spade finesse at trick one.

But, as happens on occasion, our declarer could not resist the lure of a finesse. The penalty he (and North) paid was the loss of a game. My condolences are hereby extended to North.

TORONTO (CP) — Gerry Smith, 25, a truck driver from Richmond, B.C., was named National Truck Hero of the Year today for rescuing a fellow trucker from Vancouver harbor last November.

Last November, Smith, who had loaded the last trailer onto a transport ship at Burrard Inlet, Vancouver harbor, noticed another truck back into the water, its driver unaware that the ship had pulled away from the pier.

Although a non-swimmer, Smith jumped into the water and was able to keep the driver afloat until crew members of the transport ship were able to pull the men aboard.

GROWING UP

Caroline, the eldest daughter of assassinated president John F. Kennedy and Jaqueline Onassis will be 16 years old Wednesday.

She is shown above in her birthday portrait — and the dewy-eyed debutante is a far cry from the winsome tot (right) who mourned her slain father in November, 1963, 10 long years ago.

KENNEDY FAR AHEAD

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — The Gallup Poll said its latest survey shows Sen. Edward Kennedy far ahead of other possible candidates for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination.

The poll indicated Alabama Gov. George Wallace and Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine were next leading choices, but both were far behind Kennedy.

Of the 627 adults who identified themselves as Democrats and questioned between Nov. 2 and Nov. 5, 41 per cent chose Kennedy, 15 per cent Wallace and 9 per cent listed Muskie as their choice.

Sens. George McGovern and Henry Jackson of Washington were tied at 6 per cent.

Liz Facing New Operation

HOLLYWOOD — Elizabeth Taylor will undergo abdominal surgery at UCLA Medical Centre Wednesday for what may be complications of many previous operations she has had over the years.

A spokesman for the 41-year-old actress said "Elizabeth may have an internal hernia or adhesions from an appendectomy, a hysterectomy or a couple of Caesarian sections."

There was no truth in a report published in London that Miss Taylor may have cancer, he added.

LONDON—Desmond Hunter, an Irish male model, has formed a society to campaign for the rights of men and women to walk the streets of Britain naked.

Hunter, 56, said the society, Nudist Challenge, is backed by a small group of men and women dedicated to the cause of "nudist liberation."

SHEFFIELD, England — The Sheffield Housing authority has given Betty Wilkinson permission to change the number of her house at Kiveton Park from 13 to 11A. Since she moved into No. 13, she has had a fire, an auto collision and eight burst water pipes.

WASHINGTON — Columnist Maxine Cheshire reported today that former vice-president Agnew's legal fees are being raised through solicitations from singer Frank Sinatra.

The original Agnew Defence Fund, created to deal with Agnew's problems stemming from a federal investigation of political kickbacks, was expected to raise "only a small percentage of the money" needed for complete legal expenses, she added.

HOLLYWOOD — Constance Talmadge, 72, last of the three Talmadge sisters who were stars of the silent films, will be buried Tuesday.

She and her sisters, Norma and Natalie, were celebrities in the 1920s for their films and running marital adventures.

LANCASTER, Calif. — It may not be true that you can't go home again but at the very least it's good advice for an escaped convict. Robert Aden, a convicted burglar, escaped five weeks ago from the Mira Loma detention centre's honor farm. He appeared at the centre Sunday night, using a fictitious name, alert deputy recognized Aden and returned him to the other side of the bars.

NEW YORK — Victor Riesel, a newspaper columnist blinded 17 years ago when a man said to be allied with the underworld threw sulfuric acid into his face, went back to work Monday after the second in a series of eye operations. Riesel said the operation was "extremely successful. It looks like there will be some recovery of sight in the left eye." Riesel, who wrote a syndicated column on labor affairs, was blinded as he walked out of a restaurant in New York at about 3 a.m., April 5, 1956, when a man stepped out of the shadows and threw acid across his forehead, eyes and nose.

Have You Heard About The Great Revival?
JAZZ is an art form. Right now, in the United States, Britain and Europe, Jazz is once more the "In" thing. Its moody poetry, high spirits and pure joy reflect every facet of the human condition. On Sunday, December 2nd, Victoria will have a chance to hear some of the elite of the jazz world. They have played with the immortals, such as Ella Fitzgerald, Count Basie, Tommy Dorsey and Benny Goodman.

Youbou, Honeymoon Mills Resume Work

The 120 International Woodworkers of America tradesmen who booked off their jobs in Youbou and Honeymoon Bay Monday are back on the job today and both mills expect to be in full operation later today.

The men, 70 at the Youbou division of B.C. Forest Products and 50 at the Honeymoon Bay Western Forest Industries' sawmill, stayed home Monday to protest the forest industry's latest offer in contract negotiations.

In Youbou, the 500 men laid off Monday because of the tradesmen's absence, are expected to be back at work on the 4 p.m. shift today.

"We're having a planning meeting later today and if all goes well we will start the full production shifts later this afternoon," Youbou's industrial relations supervisor, Spence Simmons, said.

In Honeymoon Bay, where the mill was running a "nip and tuck" operation while the transmen were off, full production will be resumed later today.

Alex Walker, the sawmill's personnel manager, said the transmen were back at work at 8 a.m. today.

The 120 men stayed off the job after Forest Industrial Relations', the bargaining agent for the forest industry, made a wage offer last week of 38 cents an hour to millwrights.

The union is seeking an across-the-board increase for all IWA employees, while FIR is looking for a settlement based on different increases for different categories.

A Victoria IWA spokesman said no further negotiation meetings have been set up and it is up to FIR to arrange the next session.

IWA workers in Victoria are still on the job, the spokesman said, "but I wouldn't say that they're a very happy bunch."

He said several "study sessions" have been held by union workers in Victoria and that no overtime was being put in.

Spot Zoning Cited In Rejecting Plan

Spot zoning could lead to the eventual obliteration of residential areas along Quadra, residents decided at a Saanich public hearing Tuesday.

As a consequence, service station operator Harold Sadler was refused permission to have 3790 Quadra rezoned from residential to commercial, in order to provide a parking lot at his station.

During the public hearing:

—Approval was given for the building of a two-storey office building on the east side of the 3900 block of Quadra, immediately south of the Lake Hill shopping centre.

—Approval was given for the constructon of 11 townhouse condominiums at 1809 and 1711 McKenzie, the units to cost in the neighborhood of $40,000.

—Approval was given for the operation of a farm market at 5540 West Saanich, occupied by the Big Barn.

—Approval was given to have Garden City United Church at Carey and Norwood zoned for church use. There has been a church on the site for 60 years and tre present building has been there since 1956. For some reason, the property had never been zoned for church use.

BARIUM CLOUD SNAPPED

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 3 astronauts today shot pictures of a huge barium cloud that had been fired into space by scientists seeking new information on how the earth's upper atmosphere both protects and disrupts life below.

Crewmen Gerald Carr, Edward Gibson and William Pogue were also gathering data on natural resources during their first picture taking sweep across the earth, a tour delayed one day by weather.

Mission pilot Pogue aimed a hand-held camera out the kitchen window of his space house to photograph the barium cloud, fired from the Poker Flats test range in Alaska atop a Canadian Black Brant rocket.

Detonated by an explosive charge when it reached an altitude of 350 miles, the radioactive barium collided with radiation from the sun and illuminated the earth's geomagnetic field lines that were surging upward to an altitude of 22,000 miles.

"Got it," was Pogue's comment as he snapped pictures of the lighted lines shooting high over the Pacific Ocean.

Pleasure Boats Must Leave Sidney Fishermen's Wharf

Sidney council is looking for moorings to accommodate pleasure boats which will be towed away from a federal government wharf in Tsehum Harbor.

"We have to find a place to put them," Mayor Stan Dear told a delegation from Sidney's fishermen's committee Monday. "They can't just be set free."

The fishermen were complaining pleasure boats are taking mooring space needed by fishing vessels during the winter months and many boats are tied four and five abreast.

Council agreed to meet with the fishermen and the town wharfinger next Monday.

At the request of the fishermen Sidney council leased the wharf from the ministry of transport for three years last July in the hopes that the town would be able to improve parking and wharfing conditions.

Spokesman for the fishermen William Lumley said, "We're beginning to wonder when we're going to get the place cleaned up and make room for the fishermen."

Lumley reminded council the wharf was built primarily for fishing boats and fishermen were to be given priority during the winter months.

He also said the fishermen had asked for additonal parking facilities but council had painted more yellow lines prohibiting parking near the wharf.

After the meeting a number of fishermen complained the conditions have worsened since Sidney took over the wharf.

There are 24 pleasure boats currently moored at the wharf and nine of them have "C licences," said one fishermen.

He explained that a C licence classifies the boat as a commercial vessel and allows the owner to dock it at a federal wharf.

The fishermen said they pay between $200 and $400 for a A licence while a C licence costs $10.

With boats tied four and five abreast a line could easily snap in a strong wind and all the boats in that chain would be lost, they said.

Moorage costs are 40 cents per foot each month and each boat is charged even though four or five boats may be using only one mooring spot, said the fishermen.

There are about 50 fishing boats using the wharf, they said, and therewere no problems with accommodation until recently when boating became so popular that marinas are trying desparately to keep up with mooring demand.

None of the fishermen suggested they take their own boats to private marinas.

Recreation Fund Is All Used Up

The provinces Community Recreational Facilities Fund has been used up and no further grants will be made until Feb. 1, 1974, Recreation Minister Dan Radford said Monday.

Radford said not only had the original $10 million in the fund been spent, but also an additional $5.5 million added by the government during the year.

He said the heavy demand on the fund was caused by a substantial backlog in community recreation facilities in the province.

He expects that demand to slacken next year according to a report he received Nov. 14 from the New Westminster consulting firm Benson Associates Ltd., commissioned by his department to analyse construction trends in recreation facilities.

He said more than 90 communities had received one or more grants for a variety of facilities.

The governments main objective is that rural communities "which particularly lack recreational amenities be favored by the fund, Radford said, and this has been realized in the past year.

Alberta Increases Welfare

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government will increase payments Feb. 1 to persons receiving public assistance.

Increased family allowance payments will also be passed on to families on welfare, Social Development minister Neil Crawford said in a news release.

Welfare payments to men for food and clothing will be increased from $42 to $58 a month on Feb. 1. Payments to women will increase from $40 to $58 a month.

Crawford said the increase in public assistance payments will cost the Alberta government $9 million during the fiscal year 1974-75.

The increased welfare payment, together with increased federal family allowance payments. will increase the monthly income of a mother with two children, eight and 13 years of age, from $290 to $332, Crawford said.

Vandals Wreck Phone

Vandals have damaged the telephone booth beside the Trans-Canada Highway at Goldstream, a B.C. Telephone official said today.

They broke the receiver hook, coin shoot apparatus, damaged the face plate on the lock, the protection box hanging below the receiver and punched a hole through the plexiglass booth, he said.

He estimated it will cost $600 to replace the telephone and booth.

The booth was also damaged last year.

"We feel the damage to this booth is serious because of its location," he said. "We put it there mainly at the requests of motorists."

The spokesman said there were many people at Goldstream during the weekend and the phone might have been needed if an accident or injury had occurred.

'Renter' Linked To Theft

Victoria police believe there may be some connection between a man inquiring about renting a house and the theft of $4,000 worth of goods from the house a few days later.

Police said the back door of a house at 402 Parry, owned by T. Coyne, was kicked in between 1 p.m. Saturday and 4 p.m. Sunday and a color TV, a stereo set and 350 long-playing records taken.

Three days earlier, a man inquired at the house about renting and said he had been sent by B.C. Land and Insurance Agency Ltd.

However, B.C. Land said later it had sent no one.

Lawyer Seeks Presidency Of Conservatives

Saunders, 33, formerly of Victoria, was a member of the PC's 1972 federal campaign committee and has been vice-president for federal matters of the provincial association.

Former association president Peter Hyndman announced Oct. 30 that he would not seek re-election to his second term as association president.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

An "emotional orgasm" created during a lacrosse game contributed to an assault by a 31-year-old coach on a six-year-old player, Judge William Ostler said in provincial court Monday.

But he decided the excitement of the game, played July 23 at Stevenson Park, did not excuse Barry Thompson of 1159 Tattersall for picking up and shaking player David Saunders.

The boy's father, Robert Saunders, 5000 Sooke Road, who coached his son's team, said Thompson "shook the boy so hard he could have killed him."

David, his father said, was lifted shoulder-high and "shaken like a top."

Defence lawyer William Hitch said Thompson picked up David to prevent him from continuing a slashing assault on a member of his team.

Thompson was exercising a form of parental authority, Hitch said.

Ostler found Thompson guilty and placed him on probation for six months.

The judge said Thompson could have prevented David from slashing by holding him with one hand.

Two men who pleaded not guilty to mischief were found guilty by Judge Fred Green, fined $300, ordered to make restitution, and placed on probation for a year.

Police said Michael Vincent Kimola, 22, and Mervin Percy Winters, 21, both of 1520 Pembroke, broke windows, gouged a wall and damaged furniture at their residence, owned by Joseph Schmidt of 1162 McClure.

Shoplifting goods from two Victoria stores Saturday cost Keith Reynold Janson, 28, of 305—1312 Government, $500 when he appeaded before Ostler.

Janson pleaded guilty to taking $13.91 worth of clothes from Eatons and then stealing a sweater worth $8.99 from the Metropolitan Store.

He was fined $250 on each charge.

George Franklin Brooks, 21, of 1663 Ross, pleaded guilty to obtaining food by fraud Saturday from the Ask Harry's Steak House, 741 Fort.

Police said Brooks left the restaurant without paying a bill for $6.04.

Brooks was fined $35 and ordered to pay the bill as well.

Wayne Richard Parnett, 25, of Campbell River, received a suspended sentence and eight months probation for false pretences regarding two cheques worth $254.93 cashed Aug. 25 and Sept. 4 at White's Diving Equipment at 832 Fisgard. He pleaded guilty.

Parnett was also fined $75 after he pleaded guilty to possessing marijuana Sept. 27.

And Ostler fined him another $50 for failing to appear in court Nov. 13.

David Marks, 1180 Rock, an 18-year-old student, was fined $50 less than the regular fine for possessing marijuana because Ostler said a $25 fine would be just as onerous for a student as the standard $75 fine for an employed person. He pleaded guilty.

A seven-day sentence for possessing marijuana was given to a youth who had been convicted in Kelowna of possessing marijuana in August.

Larry Ernest Binder, 19, of 928 Bay, pleaded guilty to his second charge.

In Judge Harold Alder's traffic court three persons pleaded guilty to impaired driving and were fined $350.

Jack Anderson, 33, of 3135 Somerset, was arrested Saturday after an accident at Bay and Shelbourne. Douglas John Craig, 23, of Apt. A, 1757 Fort, was charged following an accident Sunday at Government and Johnson and Michael James Blanshard, 19, of 2324 Dowler Place, was charged Friday after his car went into a ditch on Mortimer Street.

Bryan J. Parker, 29, of 6003 Castley Road. Duncan, pleaded guilty to driving Saturday in the 600-block Yates with more than .08 per cent of alcohol in his blood. He was fined $500.

Weekend Publishers, Union Agree to Pact

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Standard Publishing Co. and its 150 employees agreed in principle to a new contract Monday, ending a four-week strike, company president W. A. Goodson said.

The men, members of the Montreal Newspaper Printing and Pressman's Union and the Montreal Paperhandlers Union, will be returning to work during the next few days, Goodson said.

He was unable to predict when the company would resume deliveries of its four weekly and one monthly supplement to 42 Canadian daily newspapers and one weekly.

Terms of the new contract won't be revealed until next week," he said, "because some details are still being worked out."

It was expected the new contract would be ratified by union members later this week.

Union spokesmen had said the conflict centred around wages, seniority, overtime pay and vacations.

The four weekly supplements—The Canadian, Weekend, Perspectives and Perspectives-Dimanche — and the monthly, Canadian Homes, have a combined circulation of approximately 4.9 million.

The unions involved are affiliated with the International Printing and Graphic Communications Union.

CADILLACS, SCHOOL BUSES ARE RECALLED

DETROIT (UPI) — The owners of 380,000 Cadillacs and operators of nearly 3,700 school buses are being warned by Detroit automakers of possible defects that could affect the safe operation of the vehicles.

Genreal Motors said nearly its entire 1971 and 1972 production of Cadillacs, with the exception of Eldorado models, was affected by a defect which could lead to loss of steering control.

He said the defect could result in the idler arm assembly pulling loose from the car frame under certain conditions.

The buses being recalled by Ford have chassis built by Ford. There are 3,527 in operation in the United States, 23 in Canada and 112 in export markets. While there have been five field reports of defects, there have been no accidents, a Ford spokesman said.

Owners will be notified to take the cars to dealers to have a lubrication fitting installed on part of the steering linkage.

A Cadillac spokesman said the problem has resulted in at least three accidents, but no injuries.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles." It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief—here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions.

All this was accomplished by a healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

U.S. Court Hears 'Humming' Tape

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — One of President Nixon's Watergate tapes — marred by whistles, hums and garbled voices — was played in public for the first time today in the court of Judge John J. Sirica.

The tape contained portions of conversations Nixon had with former key aides, John D. Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman, on June 20, 1972, three days after the Watergate break-in.

Sirica ordered it played as part of an effort to try to find out whether the recordings had been altered in any way.

This tape was chosen because Rose Mary Woods, Nixon's personal secretary, testified Monday she apparently accidentally erased an 18-minute segment while transcribing it on Oct. 1. She was on the witness stand as the tape was played.

Miss Woods herself threaded the machine she had used to transcribe the tape, punched the play button and as newsmen and spectators leaned forward in their seats, the president's voice was heard in the courtroom.

The quality of the tape was extremely poor — marred by a low hum and echoes in his executive office building, where the conversation took place.

At first only occasional words, including some profanity, could be heard as Nixon discussed news conferences and other matters with Ehrlichman.

Their words were obscured by background noises including such things as a jet plane and the toot of a car horn.

Twenty minutes into the tape, the voices were replaced by a loud, persistent hum that sounded like an electric razor or an outboard motor at trolling speed.

The hum diminished about four minutes later to a lower pitch. It changed slightly in pitch four minutes later, stopped briefly after another three minutes and eventually returned to its original high level.

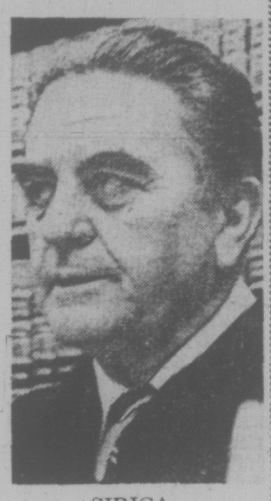
When voices were heard again, 18¼ minutes later, Nixon was speaking with Haldeman and could be heard to say "either way, either way."

The president could also be heard at one point saying, "I work better when even I go to a place like that," and at another point he asked a White House steward to bring him some consomme.

Miss Woods, who had testified Nov. 18 that the quality of that particular tape was "very bad" and that it took her some 30 hours to transcribe it, frequently shook her head as the tape was playing.

"You see how difficult it is?" she said quietly to one of the Watergate prosecutors who hovered over the machine attempting to hear.

WOODS



SIRICA

Sirica listened with little expression from the bench, but grinned broadly when the president broke into a cheerful whistle at one point.

Over-all, the tape sounded much like a short-wave radio broadcast — scratchy and with voices fading in and out. The voices were almost impossible to understand.

In a related development, the Senate Watergate committee, delayed in investigating Nixon's alleged milk fund and Howard Hughes' $100,000 gift to C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, apparently has finished its hearings for this year.

'IT COULDN'T HAPPEN . . .'

Times News Services

Experts in the U.S. familiar with the recorder involved say Rose Mary Woods' version of how a key White House tape was erased describes an accident that is either technically impossible or highly unlikely.

In Los Angeles, the service manager for an electronics company distributing the tape recorder used by Miss Woods said the chances of a mistake such as she described were "poor . . . very, very low because of the way it (the machine) is designed."

Carl Bennett and other recording experts emphasized there are built-in safeguards on nearly every tape recorder against the kind of accidental erasure described by Miss Woods.

"To erase, you have to manually depress two buttons simultaneously said Bennett, "if you press either one first, it won't do anything."

"It's not easy to do at all. It's hard for me to see where it's a mistake," he said.

The only other way erasure could have occurred, Bennett said, would be if Miss Woods had been using the tape recorder with a microphone which has a one-stage record mechanism.

It was unlikely though that, as a secretary, Miss Woods would be using the microphone.

"Most secretaries don't use a mike. They use a foot switch which has 'play' and 'rewind,' but no 'record' capability," Bennett said.

Greek Students Freed

ATHENS (UPI) — Police authorities in Salonica, under orders from the new military rulers, today began releasing scores of persons arrested last week for participation in anti-government demonstrations. An Athens newspaper said most of those arrested in the capital also would be freed.

About 1,500 students held a sit-in demonstration in Salonica University Nov. 16 and authorities rounded up scores of persons and charged them with instigating the protest. Some charges will stand.

The Athens newspaper To Vima said 250 persons, mostly students, would be released today.

The new military regime today consolidated its power, purging opponents from the armed forces and drafting a policy statement outlining Greece's future course.

Sources close to the new rulers said Brig.-Gen. Dimitrios Ioannides, the military police chief who masterminded the coup, has completed a shakeup of the armed forces and had purged officers refusing to go along with the ouster of Papadopoulos, putting at least 16 generals under house arrest.

Next Stop Aden?

Times News Services

DUBAI — A hijacked Dutch jumbo jetliner took off from this Persian Gulf state today after a stop of four hours.

Airport sources said its planned destination was Aden.

The aircraft carrying three Arab hijackers and 11 hostages had landed here after its captain radioed to the control tower here that he was running short of fuel.

The Royal Dutch Airlines 747 carried the three Palestinian hijackers, 10 crewmen and KLM vice-president A. W. Withholt on a five-and-a-half hour flight from Malta while the guerrillas were refused permission to land in Baghdad and Kuwait.

Officials said they believed that by releasing 244 passengers and eight stewardesses in Malta, the hijackers indicated the purpose of their mission was accomplished.

They had demanded and received pledges from the Netherlands not to provide facilities for Soviet Jews emigrating to Israel and not to permit transportation of arms or volunters to Israel.

Witholt had offered himself as a hostage in Malta to win the release of eight stewardesses and the passengers, mostly Japanese who were hijacked Sunday night when they left Beirut on their way to Tokyo.

It was the second time in four months Dubai had been the scene of a hijack drama. For three days in July, 137 passengers aboard a Japan Air Lines jumbo sweated in 100-degree temperatures on Dubai's tarmac while four hijackers, three Arabs and a Japanese, haggled with local officials.

West Scoffs At Fuel Plan

LEAN FACE of ascetic would seem to belong more to a desert hermit than being that of a man who holds the standard of living of millions in the western world in his hands. King Faisal of Saudi Arabia today joined his fellow Arab leaders at the Algiers summit in presenting an implacable face against countries favoring Israel.

Western province politicians hedged Monday on the question of co-operation with Ottawa's new energy conservation policy.

Saving energy in the West won't be of much help to the eastern part of the country that needs it, Manitoba Energy Minister Len Evans commented.

Evans, who is also chairman of the Manitoba Energy Council, said Manitobans can drive at the speed limit, keep their thermostats up and turn on their Christmas lights without fear of being unpatriotic.

Voluntary restraints called for by federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald really don't apply to Western Canada, he said.

"As a good Canadian, I would like to see Manitobans help their eastern cousins, but the facts are that whatever we do here would be of very little help to the East. There's no way of getting any oil that's saved here to the East."

B.C. would be willing to "bail out the East," Attorney-General Alex MacDonald said, but there are two conditions the province wants to see included in the energy package.

"Meaningful controls" on gasoline prices so British Columbians won't be "driving their cars on Arab oil prices when we've got oil in the ground here," is one demand, he said.

The other is for a Canadian Petroleum Corporation to conduct the necessary exploration, to build pipelines, to have marketing powers over all petroleum products in the country, and to control the "skyrocketing" profits of multi-national oil corporations.

Macdonald denied that B.C. was facing any serious fuel shortages this winter.

Gasoline supplies are "okay", he said, home heating fuels are "marginal" but should last through the winter and bunker fuels for industry are "questionable" since they are imported from California.

"This kind of tinkering around on the consuming side of energy is not going to be effective," was Saskatchewan Industry Minister Kim Thorson's attitude.

The Saskatchewan government is preparing "fairly extensive measures" to deal with long-term conservation of energy to ensure that large corporations do not make windfall profits on the energy crisis, and perhaps control retail prices of gasoline, he said.

Another Saskatchewan government spokesman, Attorney-General Ray Romanow, said that in asking Canadians to reduce their energy consumption Ottawa in effect is telling the West to cut back on production of grain.

Reduced supplies and higher costs for petroleum products would have a detrimental effect on production and efficiency in the farm industry, he said in a speech to the Weyburn, Sask., chamber of commerce.

The Alberta department of federal and intergovernmental affairs said in a statement:

"Until the provincial government considers the full implications, if any, on the citizens

OJIBWA WARRIORS OCCUPY CENTRE

KENORA (CP) — The Warrior Society of the Ojibwa Indian Nation today occupied Indian Affairs offices here to draw attention to a list of grievances.

Louie Cameron, one of four chairmen of the society, said the occupation will last 25 hours.

"There are about 100 of us here now and more are coming," Cameron said.

"We walked in and politely gave the superintendent his eviction notice. We told the employees to take a day off and have a good time."

Report Urges Zero Growth

VANCOUVER (CP) — Population growth must be stopped if Vancouver is to remain habitable, according to a Greater Vancouver Regional District report leaked today.

The Province says the report, "still under wraps and in draft form," slaps hard at planners at every level of government and at politicians in regional and local governments for failing to meet the problems of growth.

Produced during the past year by a committee of 37 persons, the report is one of several being prepared by 250 citizen volunteers in a regional project called the livable region program.

The Province quotes the report as saying: "It would seem all of our municipal, regional and provincial planners, together or separately, have not been able to anticipate or to provide for the human needs of a growing population."

The report, according to the newspaper, says that people have been told that growth is inevitable and must be planned even though planners have failed to maintain livability in the face of growth and are unlikely to do so in future.

"Repeatedly the public has been forced to rally against its own planners and to defeat growth-oriented schemes such as the third crossing, downtown freeways and the Four Seasons complex," the Province quotes the report as saying.

Planners were not creating facilities for the future because it is unfair to tax people for the benefit of future users.

"The present population does not want to see the open spaces disappear, their neighborhoods become more crowded, their roads more congested or their social services and recreational facilities more burdened.

"However, it is also clear that cities reach a certain point where future increases in population do not lead to equivalent increases in financial or social faciliation, but rather the opposite. When cities continue to grow beyond that point, not only does the livability rapidly decrease, but also the tax base and go-

Stock Markets Waver

Times News Services

NEW YORK — The stock market hovered uncertainly today after taking massive losses Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was down 3.53 at 821.42. Gainers and losers were about even this morning on New York Stock Exchange, where trading swung slightly upward after the opening, but most of the gains had evaporated by noon.

At Montreal all sectors of the stock market were off and by noon in Toronto prices were off moderately in active trading.

(Wall Street analysts are saying the market is in a "creeping crash" rather than a precipitous decline, as explained in a business section story on Page 7.)

Monday, the Dow Jones average absorbed the fifth-largest loss in its 75-year history, plunging 29.05 points to finish at 824.95. It was the lowest closing for the bellwether indicator since Nov. 29, 1971—exactly two years ago — when it finished at 816.59.

U.S. Forcing Oil Use Cut

Times News Services

The U.S. government issued regulations to ration heating oil in such a way that Americans will be forced to make their homes and businesses cooler this winter.

The regulations are the specifics of what President Nixon announced in general Sunday the government believes homes should be six degrees cooler and businesses and government offices 10 degrees cooler.

Every customer of heating oil will get a supply reduced by the amount necessary to force the lower thermostat settings.

The American move came as diplomats attending the Arab summit meeting in Algiers made no bones about their determination to deliver a virtual ultimatum to Western Europe to stop supporting Israel or face an even tougher oil boycott.

In private and public statements Arab leaders make it clear the European community rather than the United States will be the main target for their drive to isolate Israel because of Europe's heavy dependence on Arab oil.

In Paris Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani warned today that any European attempt to help oil-deprived Holland would trigger retaliatory actions.

The minister, who is on a world-wide public relations campaign to explain the oil embargo by the Arab states, refused to spell out what retaliatory steps might be taken.

In Washington, President Nixon indicated to leaders of Congress he does not expect any loosening of the embargo until some progress takes place in Arab-Israeli peace talks.

It's Become War of Nerves Along Southern Canal Zone

Egypt said today it is reviewing its decision to attend a proposed international peace conference on the Middle East, and an Egyptian official warned Israel the Egyptian armed forces are fully perpared for action if Israel does not withdraw to the Oct. 22 ceasefire lines.

The situation on the southern sector of the canal front south of Ismailia, where the Israelis broke through to the west bank during the October war, has now become a "war of nerves."

Newsmen Monday saw plenty of evidence that both sides are anticipating renewed fighting and preparing defensive positions.

Ahmed Anis, the official Egyptian spokesman, was asked at a Cairo news conference if Egypt might refuse to attend the December Geneva conference if the current negotiations with Israel on the separation of their forces along the canal are not successful.

He said Israel is "playing for time" at the military meetings held at Kilometer 101 on the Cairo-Suez road and that "this can only reflect adversely its intentions towards the peace conference itself."

Asked about progress at the Kilometer 101 talks, Anis said:

"The Egyptian side has honored to the letter the UN document on the ceasefire stabilization.

"There is nothing so far to indicate the Israelis are going to do the same."

The government's spokesman's statement followed a

UNITED LAYS OFF 1,000 WORKERS

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — United Airlines today announced it will lay off more than 1,000 employees, including 300 pilots, and cancel 100 flights daily because of the fuel crisis.

Edward Carlson, president of the largest U.S. airline, said the cancellations had been scheduled even before President Nixon announced Sunday an additional 15 per cent cut in jet fuel delivery for airlines.

The new cutback would result in still more layoffs, he indicated.

Airlines in the U.S. already have reduced flights 6 to 7 per cent to bring them down to the level of service they provided in 1972.

One of the major reasons for the acute scarcity of aviation fuel — the administration estimates a 400,000-barrel-per-day shortage in the first part of 1974, nearly one-third of the demand — is the sudden reliance of the defence department on domestic fuel supplies because foreign sources have been cut off, according to White House energy chief John Love.

No Buyers for Stocks, Institutions Selling

The New York Stock Exchange index tumbled 1.58 points to 51.51, a mark it had not seen since Nov. 29, 1971, when it finished at 51.47.

Nearly 10 times as many stocks fell as gained ground Monday. Noting the 1,518 losers — compared with only 149 gainers — one analyst commented, "a few years ago, there weren't even 1,500 stocks listed on the exchange.

The energy crunch — underlined but, according to some Wall Street opinion, not significantly helped by President Nixon's Sunday night announcement—remained the market's chief headache. Additional concern came from an increase in the prime lending rate (to 9¾ per cent from 9½ per cent), announced by the First National Bank of Chicago, and a report that the federal budget showed a deficit of $5.46 billion in October, the third red-ink showing in the first four months of the fiscal year.

The selling actually began before the markets here opened Monday. In Frankfurt and London, American stocks moved lower throughout the day. When the exchanges opened for business, more liquidation tumbled in. By the end of the first 30 minutes of trading, the Dow was off more than 13 points. After an hour, the average was down more than 20 points. The rate of decline slowed after that, and there was practically no buying interest until shortly before the closing bell, when a few points were shaved from the losses.

At its worst, the Dow was off more than 33 points and closing in on its record loss, 38.33 points, recorded on Oct. 28, 1929.

Wall Street analysts, noting the moderate volume in relation to the huge loss, used terms like "controlled panic" and "controlled hysteria" to describe the selling. Large investing institutions, they said, appeared to be choosing stocks for sale, then dumping them on the market once the decisions were made.

"The key thing is the buyers are missing," said Monte Gordon of the Dreyfus Corp. "That's why the volume is so low. Half the market is missing."

Another analyst said, "I think its a controlled type of panic, but nevertheless a panic." He singled out leisure-time companies, whose stocks have taken heavy beatings, and said, "Nobody seems concerned about how far down they have to go (in price) in order to sell, once the sell decision has been made.

The market's continued drop has also led to an increase in margin calls — demands for more cash from investors who buy on credit. A spokesman for Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, Inc., said today margin calls have reached "a significant level" and that many investors seem to be selling their shares instead of putting up more money.

At another large house, a spokesman said margin calls are "flooding out" as a result of the continued selloff.

Trading volume for the day came to 19.83 million shares — up from the 11.47 million turned over on Friday, a semi-holiday sandwiched between Thanksgiving and the weekend, but less than the 20 million-plus levels earlier this month.

In the list itelf, losses were everywhere. All 30 of the blue chips in the Dow Jones industrials lost ground. Only five of the 65 stocks in the Dow composite were able to gain. Of the 15 most actively traded issues, 13 lost ground and two were ahead.

One of those, McDonald's, came back from a loss of three points to finish with a ⅜-point gain at 47½. The hamburger chain has lost 24½ points since the end of October. Walt Disney, another leisure-time issue pounded by the gasoline shortage — which is likely to keep Disneyland and Disney World customers at home — came back from a loss of more than three to finish down 1¾ at 42⅛.

The biggest losses generally showed up in the chemicals, which rely on petroleum products for raw materials as well as fuel to run their machinery.

warning by another Egyptian official that Egyptian armed forces are "fully prepared"; to resume the fighting if Israel continues its stalling tactics.

The key point of dispute was the Security Council resolution asking Israel to return to the Oct. 22 ceasefire lines, a move that would free the Egyptian 3rd army and open the road from Cairo to Suez. Israel insists it is impossible to return to these lines because there were no ceasefire lines then.

The talks stopped Monday after one hour and 20 minutes. Israeli chief negotiator Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv walked out alone, strode round the Israeli tent about 25 yards from the United Nations tent, and appeared to speak angrily to Capt. Naftali Shimrat, the Israeli liaison officer. Yariv's behavior caused noticeable nervousness among the Israeli soldiers.

Shimrat, who has been stationed at the talks site for nearly three weeks, later told newsmen he was returning to Tel Aviv.

vernability of the city deteriorate. If this were not true, New York and Los Angeles would be rich paradises.

"When the liability of a region begins a rapid decline, it is the young, the wealthy, the imaginative and the intelligent who generally leave first, leaving behind the elderly on fixed incomes, the handicapped, the poor and others whose taxes generally do not cover the cost of the social services they require."

The Province says the report suggested some alternatives to uncontrolled growth including the end of advertising the city's merits, improving social services in other parts of the province and controlled rents during housing shortages.

The report also suggested that young people be encouraged to seek careers outside the Vancouver region by locating new businesses and educational facilities outside the Vancouver region, says the Province.

TAPE ERROR 'UNLIKELY'

He described the Uher 5000 model used by Miss Woods as "a professional piece of gear which sells like hotcakes" and retails for $500.

Principally used for dictation, he said it was also used for "more or less so-called buggings,"

Bennett noted that the erased portion was described as containing a humming sound.

That puzzled him, he said, because if the tape had been erased by the Uher's own recording head "there shouldn't be anything but a slight hissing noise."

Tim Maddalon, service manager for the Sanyo Electric Inc., cited possible exposure of the tapes to a magnetic field to explain erasure.

Told it happened on the machine, Maddalon said, "that would be a little hard to believe, I'm afraid. I'm for the president, but it's a little hard to swallow."

An executive for the Sony Corporation of America, Fred Tushinsky, explained the working of the commonly used safeguard against accidental erasure, called an "interlock."

Most such systems, he said, require two separate and deliberate actions — depression of the 'record' button followed by engagement of the 'forward' or 'play' control.

"I know of no commercial tape recorder sold for consumer use that does not include an interlock against accidental erasure," said Tushinsky.

Asked to rate the chances of someone accidentally erasing existing recordings, he said, "I think it would be very hard to do it accidentally."

of Alberta, there will be no comment."

However, Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia said his province is "anxious and willing to co-operate" with the federal measures.

Regan said that while Nova Scotia believes it will have adequate supplies of petroleum this winter, "we would want to participate in voluntary restraints if it would help our neighboring provinces."

Leaders of the petroleum industry, meanwhile, were at odds in their reaction to Macdonald's plea for voluntary public energy conservation.

John Poyen, president of the Canadian Petroleum Association, said the voluntary measures would work. But C. S. Dunkley, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada, believed that permitting the free market price of petroleum to rise without interference would lower the demand more effectively.

Meanwhile, a Calgary newspaper says the Alberta government plans to increase royalties on crude oil production from Crown land by about 35 per cent.

It quotes a governent source as saying that a new tax formula has not been completed but that a 35-per-cent increase in royalties appears probable.

They now average 22 per cent. A 35-per-cent increase would bring the tax rate to just under 30 per cent.

Speaking in Montreal, Premier Barrett suggested the federal government should mobilize the country's railway network immediately to relieve the threat of oil shortages in eastern Canada.

"If there is an emergency let the federal government move on an emergency basis," he said.

"There is no reason why Quebec and Ontario and the east should suffer because the resources are in the West."

He levelled a blast at the federal government for allegedly failing to develop a national energy policy. But he added that he favored the government putting a surcharge on oil exports.

"There have been five energy policies in five months out of the federal government and there is still no clear policy," he said.

In Ottawa, the National Energy Board has initiated a review of natural gas export prices to determine whether exporters are being paid enough for their produce.

A board spokesman said the review will attempt to find out whether exporters are receiving a "just and reasonable" price for natural gas in the wake of rising demand.

Companies with export licences have been asked to file submissions to the board before next Jan. 22, and a public hearing then will be conducted.

meeting that lasted nearly two hours.

In other aspects of the energy crisis in the U.S.:

—Energy adviser John Love testified at a Senate hearing that higher prices — not more tax breaks — should be allowed to induce industry to find sources of energy the nation needs.

—The Baltimore Sun said among additional steps being considered to conserve fuels of various types are a four-day school week, reducing weekday hours for gasoline sales, a surtax on consumption of electric power and closing national parks to private cars.

States began lowering speeds to 50 miles per hour and closing gas stations on freeways and many major trucking firms ordered their drivers to slow down.

Elsewhere, sources in Algeria said Arabs are expected to ease oil restrictions to Japan because of Tokyo's endorsement of Arab views.

And in Britain, the government Thursday will issue gasaline rationing coupons.

Accountant Receiver For Triton

VANCOUVER (CP) — Triton Industries Ltd. of Richmond, an electronics manufacturing firm which appealed to the provincial government to buy 50-per-cent equity in the company, has been placed in receivership.

Chartered accountant Martin Linsley has been appointed receiver-manager for Triton.

He said the appointment of a receiver means "the powers of the boards of directors are effectly paralysed."

Linsley said he was appointed last week following action on two demand loans secured by Triton debentures. The first debenture, for $180,000, was issued Oct. 24, 1972, and the second, for $750,000, was issued Aug. 6, 1973.

Triton president Gordon Anderson placed a one-week deadline on his Nov. 1 request that the government buy 50-per-cent equity in the firm for $500,000 but Industrial Development Minister Gary Lauk said his department would have to study the matter before deciding.

Pressure Cited By White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional investigator read memos today that he said showed White House pressure on the Small Business Administration to guarantee loans to a construction company owned by a co-chairman of the Athletes for Nixon committee.

Curtis Prins, chief investigator for the house banking committee, told the subcommittee on small business the loans concerned the Benny McRae Construction Co. of Portsmouth, Va., a company run by a former professional football player.

Prins read a memo from Thomas Reagan, director of the Richmond, Va., SBA office, to subordinates saying "please get out papers on McRae. This is a White House case and the heat is on."

Prins said the word "heat" was underlined twice.

McRae was identified by Prins as a former professional football player with the Chicago Bears and the New York Giants, an adviser to various presidential physical fitness committees and co-chairman of the Athletes for Nixon committee in 1968 and 1972.

Prins was the first witness before the subcommittee, which is investigating allegations of corruption and poor administrative practices in the SBA.

The SBA grants loans and makes loan guarantees to small businesses and minority businesses.

HOG FUEL EYED TO RUN HYDRO

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Resources Minister Bob Williams said Monday Vancouver's Island's electricity requirements may be met by giant generators powered by hog fuel.

B.C. Hydro is studying the possibility of using major hog fuel burners to provide residential and commercial electricity because of the rising price of natural gas, he said.

Following a tour of northwood pulp and timber's hog fuel generator, he said he is intrigued by the question of making use of present wastes.

"We have this natural resource in B.C. that we are wasting to a very great extent," Williams said.

"Now that gas prices have in effect doubled in the province, it may well be that hog fuel is a very realistic alternative."

A disturbance that brought overnight rains to the South coast of B.C. produced snow in the interior this morning. The system should move into southwestern Alberta this afternoon and continue tracking eastward. Little relief is likely behind it however as an area of low pressure is expected to linger off the coast for the next couple of days. Sporadic rainshowers will persist in coastal areas while continued snowflurry activity is in prospect for the interior.

Saanich Rejects Second Works Ballot

Saanich council decided Monday by a 6-3 vote against putting a reduced public works referendum of $2,765,000 to the voters this year.

The referendum would have covered part of the road and drainage work that was contained in the $4,115,000 referendum which was narrowly defeated Nov. 17.

At its last meeting, council with the exception of Alds. Frank Waring and Alan Newberry, approved the first three readings of the pared-down referendum with the intent of putting it to the voters Dec. 15.

Ald. John McDonald was the first to say he had changed his mind Monday and would vote against another referendum this year.

He said he was in favor of the referendum but because of adverse publicity and the inability of council to present a united front the referendum might fail to get through now and "just cost taxpayers money."

Ald. Fred Severson said he was "very disappointed" but also felt he had to reverse his position for the same reasons. So did Ald. Sandy Noel.

Alds. William Campbell, Edith Gunning and Leslie Passmore stood firm in favor of the referendum being presented Dec. 15.

Campbell said Saanich would never get the work done any cheaper.

"We'll also save a year," he said, "and it would alleviate some drainage problems."

Gunning agreed the items were essential and money would have to be found some way.

Waring said the referendum should be presented after the mill rate had been set "so people will know where they are" and Newberry said in 1974 "we can look at it, modify it and take it to the electorate again."

Stating that he was voting against the referendum "with regret," Mayor Hugh Curtis rapped the Victoria Labor Council's condemnation of the referendum at its meeting Wednesday.

"I cannot let pass the irresponsibility of the labor council on this matter" he said. "Surely they should understand what is being debated before they put forward such a resolution.

"It's demeaning to, not us, but the labor council."

Camosun Plots Ways to Ease Overcrowding

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Camosun College is bursting at the seams and looking at ways to ease the situation.

The college is preparing contingency plans to relieve a growing space shortage at its Lansdowne campus, principal Dr. Grant Fisher said today.

Those plans may include cutting some programs next fall that the college planned to introduce, said Fisher, if the situation isn't better by then.

New students starting courses in January will make the present space situation more acute, he said.

The first priority, Fisher said, it to examine all existing space on campus, including unlikely spots never before considered for classroom use.

Under consideration is putting to use a "damp and musty" storage area on the bottom floor of the college cafeteria, he said.

This might be converted into a student recreation area and the present table tennis room (which was once a shower room) turned into a classroom.

Fished said a second possibility is cutting back the number of sections ofered in various courses in the new year.

Right now some courses are given at different times (or sections) to fit into different students' timetables. Combining some sections would save classroom space.

Fisher reported to Camosun councillors Monday evening that efforts to find classroom space in the community have failed.

College staff has looked at church halls, municipal recreation centres, and some buildings owned by the University of Victoria.

People in charge of the recreation centres were reluctant to lease space to the college on a long-term basis, he said, as were some church halls. Other church halls charged extremely high rates.

Fisher said it was "extremely difficult" to obtain portable classroom units to ease the situation.

Greater Victoria School District has its own overcrowding situation in its Gordon Head area schools, so its portable classrooms are in use.

"The space problem is one that were really having to struggle with," Fisher told the councillors.

The college has extensive plans for expansion of both the Lansdowne and the Interurban campuses.

However expansion at the Lansdowne campus must wait until the campus land is bought from the University of Victoria by the provincial government, and then leased to the college, said Fisher.

The sale is now being negotiated.

He said he'd be surprised to see the Lansdowne campus expansion completed by the target date of the fall of 1976.

Cost, Facility Sharing Eyed

Camosun College will share costs and facilities with the University of Victoria, if the college council approves a suggestion made by its administration and personnel committee Monday.

The suggestion, outlined in a report by Camosun principal Dr. Grant Fisher, is for sharing by the college and UVic of such things as athletics and recreation facilities library, health program facilities and social work labs.

"Every effort should be made to minimize unnecessary duplication," said Fisher's report.

As an example, said Fisher, Camosun could perhaps help finance the university library and in return get full borrowing privileges for its students and faculty, rather than expand its own library.

College council chairman Dr. Harold Knight suggested that informal talks with UVic officials be held before a formal proposal is sent to them.

In other business, the committee agreed to ask the college council to set up an ad hoc committee to prepare a brief for the provincial regional colleges task force.

Committee members approved several recommendations included in a working paper written by Fisher on community colleges, and these recommendations will probably be included in the council's brief.

Each regional (or community) college council should be two-thirds elected by voters in the region, and should include students and college employees, the committee agreed.

The committee also agreed there should be no intermediary body set up to act between the provincial government and the college council, as has been suggested for universities.

"It's another gatekeeper that prevents direct communication," Knight said.

CONSERVING ENERGY in their fight for protection against continuing showers, Bob Higginbottom and Mary Jane Apcar shared an umbrella in the downpour today. There have been showers 22 days since the beginning of the month for a total rainfall of 6.14 inches. Although the sun is expected to make a brief appearance Wednesday, occasional showers are also predicted. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Control Tower Ready To Guide Shipping

The top floor of a 14-storey highrise in West Vancouver will become the nerve centre for control of west coast shipping beginning Jan. 1.

Atop Camp 100, which overlooks Vancouver harbor, a ministry of transport station will begin monitoring all shipping plying the waters from Cape Flattery at the mouth of the Strait of Juan de Fuca up as far as Cape Scott on the northwest tip of Vancouver Island.

In charge of the new system, which is part of a three-point program to cut down the risk of marine incidents, is Capt. Dave Johns, newly-appointed regional superintendent of marine traffic, regulating and information systems.

Johns said ships have been reporting their positions at "23 critical points" in he area on a voluntary basis since July 1.

This "bridge to bridge" reporting was introduced as a first stage in order to familiarize ships' masters with sector reporting, and will eventually lead to them reporting to the West Vancouver centre.

As of Jan. 1, Johns said, reporting to the station will be on a voluntary basis but will become mandatory for all ships in Canadian waters by next summer.

Ships in American waters will report to the station on a voluntary basis.

"We have been working a great deal with the 13th district of the U.S. Coast Guard in Seattle," Johns said, "on a joint voluntary system."

"Now Washington and Ottawa are working out details for a compulsory system. It is now in the hands of the external affairs and state departments and will lead to an international agreement."

Johns said traffic lanes are being planned, to run from Vancouver to Cape Flattery, including the pilot pickup point off Victoria.

A VHF (very high frequency) radio network is "just about completed," Johns said.

Johns said that negotiations are under way to obtain sites for four radar surveillance stations, which will be installed as the third stage of the traffic control program.

"We are still negotiating on some of the sites," Johns said, "There will be one in the Gulf Islands near Active Pass, one in the Bowen Island-Point Gray area, one in the Saanich area and another in Victoria city."

Johns estimated the radio surveillance system would start by early 1976.

Vote Or Wait

A by-election to fill a vacant Saanich school board seat could be a long time coming if it isn't held before Jan. 1.

Delays well into late spring could be caused by changes in the Municipal Act which come into effect in 1974, Central Saanich clerk Fred Durrand said today.

Central Saanich trustee Gordon Ewan resigned his seat on the Saanich board two days after the Nov. 17 municipal election.

The municipality of Central Saanich is supposed to hold a by-election within 30 days of Ewan's resignation, but the Christmas holiday season may make it difficult to hold the by-election before the New Year.

Any election held after Jan. 1 will operate under the changed Municipal Act, which broadens eligible voters to all residents of the municipality.

A new voters' list will have to be prepared by house-to-house enumerations, as for federal elections, said Saanich school board chairman Rubymay Parrott.

"This kind of list enumertion is going to take one heck of a long time," she said.

If no by-election is held within the time limit the school board, with approval of the minister of education, may appoint someone to fill the vacancy.

Sidney Bylaw Reprieves Sanscha Hall Once More

Sanscha Hall, Sidney's main recreational facility, will remain open at least another year.

Council unanimously passed a bylaw to exempt the hall from property taxes after brief discussion Monday.

A former decision not to pass the bylaw was rescinded after a number of Sanscha directors protested, saying the hall would have to close if taxes were levied.

At a spetial meeting Nov. 20 Mayor Stan Dear told the Sanscha delegation total taxes at tre 1973 mill rate would be $8,058.

Sanscha treasurer Reg Muskett said last year's operating costs were $12,484 and the association would be unable to afford an additional $8,000.

Ald. Chris Andersen, who persuaded a two-thirds majority to vote against the bylaw, told the delegation his intentions were not to close the hall but to force North Saanich to pay its fair share of the operating costs.

At that meeting Andersen said if North Saanich was willing to share the costs "I am not too tall to put my tail between my legs and change my mind."

Sanscha director Eric Sherwood, elected to North Saanich council Nov. 17, later told the meeting there will likely be greater co-operation between Sidney and North Saanich in future.

Sanscha rental chairman Eleanor Sowerby said today "it was a shock" when council decided not to pass the bylaw, which they have done annually.

She described Monday's decision as "a surprise" adding Sanscha directors will be spending some time in 1974 looking for a permanent solution to the association's tax problems.

ANDERSEN
. . . goal achieved

Acting Sanscha chairman Murray Stockhaul said a meeting held Monday was rather unproductive because there were not enough executive members attending and "we didn't know where we stood or what we were in for."

None Injured In Explosion

Workmen escaped injury when a gasoline explosion occurred at Advance Collision, 741 Pembroke, this morning while they were cleaning dirty gas tanks.

A spokesman for the fire department said the explosion was caused by gas vapor escaping from a cleaning vat coming in contact with a gas heater. Damage was negligible.

Mayor-elect Brian Smith and son Chris

Oak Bay's Yo-Yo Champ Became a Go-Go Citizen

By BRUCE OBEE
Times Staff

Back in the days when Oak Bay Theatre was showing Humphrey Bogart, Brian Smith was the local yo-yo champ.

He's got the sweater to prove it.

He took another Oak Bay championship Nov. 17 when he topped the polls in an exciting mayoralty race.

From yo-yo champ to mayor is a big step and Smith has spent a lot of time in between stockpiling the qualifications which Oak Bay residents expect and demand from their elected representatives.

During an interview at his Island Road home, Smith took time out to reminisce about his days as a youngster in Oak Bay.

"I used to pride myself on being a tremendous golfball scrounger . . . In my day no self-respecting scrounger would go into the rough with a dog."

When the golfball business was down his small-time property development business was up.

"I built beach forts all along Willows Beach"—(low-key, single-youngster units).

Smith often defended his "formidable fortresses" from the "bad guys" through great seaweed throwing battles.

"I still like playing with seaweed," admitted Smith.

"One time he put seaweed on his head and had a sleep," said his seven-year-old son Chris.

Disgruntled wit "busted" forts, Smith joined the yachting crowed.

"I was a fanatical raft-builder . . . I used to build them at the golf course end of Oak Bay or else I'd build them at the Cattle Point end and I'd try and bring them around."

As he got older he spent his summers working.

"I did have a summer in which I worked briefly on the Oak Bay garbage detail. I was a can roller. I wasn't a dumper because I had not progressed sufficiently in the heirarchy to dump, but I rolled.

"And I think that like tea-cup readers, garbage collectors are very wise and know a great deal about the people that they service from the state of their garbage."

Smith's first encounter with development was in 1962. He'd been away with his father and when he returned Beach Drive's Olde Charming Inn had been replaced by the Rudyard Kipling — 10 stories of concrete.

Since then he has taken a firm stand against highrise and high-density development for Oak Bay.

Golfball scrounger, garbage man, caddy, survey helper, research assistant, history teacher and lawyer make up only a small part of Smith's history.

Born in 1934 Smith was raised in the Willows Beach area and received his public school eduation in Oak Bay.

After two years at Victoria College he moved to Vancouver where he got a BA in English and history at UBC. He later studied at Queen's University in Kingston where he got an MA in Canadian history before returning to UBC where he got his law degree.

After he married Barbara in 1961 he practised law with a Vancouver firm for three years then moved to Victoria where he specializes in criminal law.

"I always tutored or taught Canadian history in some form all the time I was a graduate student," said Smith glancing at the walls of his den lined with Canadian history books, "and I have done so right up till the spring of this year over a period of 16 years."

Municipal politics didn't particularly interest him "until I was married and had a young family and began to get concerned with things that were going on around me — development and apartments, that sort of thing."

Notable changes which Smith has in store for Oak Bay and the council include "a little more public participation and public exposure for the rest of the council so the mayor isn't always in the limelight."

U.S. Court Hears 'Humming' Tape

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — One of President Nixon's Watergate tapes — marred by whistles, hums and garbled voices — was played in public for the first time today in the court of Judge John J. Sirica.

The tape contained portions of conversations Nixon had with former key aides, John D. Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman, on June 20, 1972, three days after the Watergate break-in.

Sirica ordered it played as part of an effort to try to find out whether the recordings had been altered in any way.

This tape was chosen because Rose Mary Woods, Nixon's personal secretary, testified Monday she apparently accidentally erased an 18-minute segment while transcribing it on Oct. 1. She was on the witness stand as the tape was played.

Miss Woods herself threaded the machine she had used to transcribe the tape, punched the play button and as newsmen and spectators leaned forward in their seats, the president's voice was heard in the courtroom.

The quality of the tape was extremely poor — marred by a low hum and echoes in his executive office building, where the conversation took place.

At first only occasional words, including some profanity, could be heard as Nixon discussed news conferences and other matters with Ehrlichman.

Their words were obscured by background noises including such things as a jet plane and the toot of a car horn.

Twenty minutes into the tape, the voices were replaced by a loud, persistent hum that sounded like an electric razor or an outboard motor at trolling speed.

The hum diminished about four minutes later to a lower pitch. It changed slightly in pitch four minutes later, stopped briefly after another three minutes and eventually returned to its original high level.

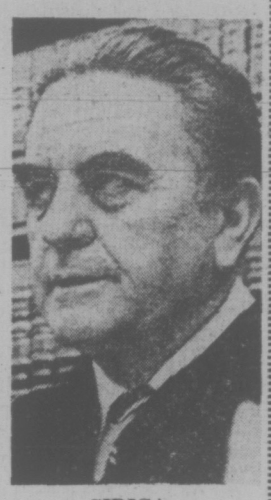
When voices were heard again, 18¼ minutes later, Nixon was speaking with Haldeman and could be heard to say "either way, either way."

The president could also be heard at one point saying, "I work better when even I go to a place like that," and at another point he asked a White House steward to bring him some consomme.

Miss Woods, who had testified Nov. 18 that the quality of that particular tape was "very bad" and that it took her some 30 hours to transcribe it, frequently shook her head as the tape was playing.

"You see how difficult it is?" she said quietly to one of the Watergate prosecutors who hovered over the machine attempting to hear.

WOODS



SIRICA

Sirica listened with little expression from the bench, but grinned broadly when the president broke into a cheerful whistle at one point.

Over-all, the tape sounded much like a short-wave radio broadcast — scratchy and with voices fading in and out. The voices were almost impossible to understand.

In a related development, the Senate Watergate committee, delayed in investigating Nixon's alleged milk fund and Howard Hughes' $100,000 gift to C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, apparently has finished its hearings for this year.

'IT COULDN'T HAPPEN . . .'

Times News Services

Experts in the U.S. familiar with the recorder involved say Rose Mary Woods' version of how a key White House tape was erased describes an accident that is either technically impossible or highly unlikely.

In Los Angeles, the service manager for an electronics company distributing the tape recorder used by Miss Woods said the chances of a mistake such as she described were "poor . . . very, very low because of the way it (the machine) is designed."

Carl Bennett and other recording experts emphasized there are built-in safeguards on nearly every tape recorder against the kind of accidental erasure described by Miss Woods.

"To erase, you have to manually depress two buttons simultaneously said Bennett, "if you press either one first, it won't do anything."

"It's not easy to do at all. It's hard for me to see where it's a mistake," he said.

The only other way erasure could have occurred, Bennett said, would be if Miss Woods had been using the tape recorder with a microphone which has a one-stage record mechanism.

It was unlikely though that, as a secretary, Miss Woods would be using the microphone.

"Most secretaries don't use a mike. They use a foot switch which has 'play' and 'rewind,' but no 'record' capability," Bennett said.

Greek Students Freed

ATHENS (UPI) — Police authorities in Salonica, under orders from the new military rulers, today began releasing scores of persons arrested last week for participation in anti-government demonstrations. An Athens newspaper said most of those arrested in the capital also would be freed.

About 1,500 students held a sit-in demonstration in Salonica University Nov. 16 and authorities rounded up scores of persons and charged them with instigating the protest. Some charges will stand.

The Athens newspaper To Vima said 250 persons, mostly students, would be released today.

The new military regime today consolidated its power, purging opponents from the armed forces and drafting a policy statement outlining Greece's future course.

Sources close to the new rulers said Brig.-Gen. Dimitrios Ioannides, the military police chief who masterminded the coup, has completed a shakeup of the armed forces and had purged officers refusing to go along with the ouster of Papadopoulos, putting at least 16 generals under house arrest.

Next Stop Aden?

Times News Services

DUBAI — A hijacked Dutch jumbo jetliner took off from this Persian Gulf state today after a stop of four hours.

Airport sources said its planned destination was Aden.

The aircraft carrying three Arab hijackers and 11 hostages had landed here after its captain radioed to the control tower here that he was running short of fuel.

The Royal Dutch Airlines 747 carried the three Palestinian hijackers, 10 crewmen and KLM vice-president A. W. Witbolt on a five-and-a-half hour flight from Malta while the guerrillas were refused permission to land in Baghdad and Kuwait.

Officials said they believed that by releasing 244 passengers and eight stewardesses in Malta, the hijackers indicated the purpose of their mission was accomplished.

They had demanded and received pledges from the Netherlands not to provide facilities for Soviet Jews emigrating to Israel and not to permit transportation of arms or volunteers to Israel.

Witholt had offered himself as a hostage in Malta to win the release of eight stewardesses and the passengers, mostly Japanese who were hijacked Sunday night when they left Beirut on their way to Tokyo.

It was the second time in four months Dubai had been the scene of a hijack drama. For three days in July, 137 passengers aboard a Japan Air Lines jumbo sweated in 100-degree temperatures on Dubai's tarmac while four hijackers, three Arabs and a Japanese, haggled with local officials.

West Scoffs At Fuel Plan

LEAN FACE of ascetic would seem to belong more to a desert hermit than being that of a man who holds the standard of living of millions in the western world in his hands. King Faisal of Saudi Arabia today joined his fellow Arab leaders at the Algiers summit in presenting an implacable face against countries favoring Israel.

Times News Services

Western province politicians hedged Monday on the question of co-operation with Ottawa's new energy conservation policy.

Saving energy in the West won't be of much help to the eastern part of the country that needs it, Manitoba Energy Minister Len Evans commented.

Evans, who is also chairman of the Manitoba Energy Council, said Manitobans can drive at the speed limit, keep their thermostats up and turn on their Christmas lights without fear of being unpatriotic.

Voluntary restraints called for by federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald really don't apply to Western Canada, he said.

"As a good Canadian, I would like to see Manitobans help their eastern cousins, but the facts are that whatever we do here would be of very little help to the East. There's no way of getting any oil that's saved here to the East."

B.C. would be willing to "bail out the East," Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said, but there are two conditions the province wants to see included in the energy package.

"Meaningful controls" on gasoline prices so British Columbians won't be "driving their cars on Arab oil prices when we've got oil in the ground here," is one demand, he said.

The other is for a Canadian Petroleum Corporation to conduct the necessary exploration, to build pipelines, to have marketing powers over all petroleum products in the country, and to control the "skyrocketing" profits of multi-national oil corporations.

Macdonald denied that B.C. was facing any serious fuel shortages this winter.

Gasoline supplies are "okay", he said, home heating fuels are "marginal" but should last through the winter and bunker fuels for industry are "questionable" since they are imported from California.

"This kind of tinkering around on the consuming side of energy is not going to be effective," was Saskatchewan Industry Minister Kim Thorson's attitude.

The Saskatchewan government is preparing "fairly extensive measures" to deal with long-term conservation of energy to ensure that large corporations do not make windfall profits on the energy crisis, and perhaps control retail prices of gasoline, he said.

Another Saskatchewan government spokesman, Attorney-General Ray Romanow, said that in asking Canadians to reduce their energy consumption Ottawa in effect is telling the West to cut back on production of grain.

Reduced supplies and higher costs for petroleum products would have a detrimental effect on production and efficiency in the farm industry, he said in a speech to the Weyburn, Sask., chamber of commerce.

The Alberta department of federal and intergovernmental affairs said in a statement:

"Until the provincial government considers the full implications, if any, on the citizens

OJIBWA WARRIORS OCCUPY CENTRE

KENORA (CP) — The Warrior Society of the Ojibwa Indian Nation today occupied Indian Affairs offices here to draw attention to a list of grievances.

Louie Cameron, one of four chairmen of the society, said the occupation will last 25 hours.

"There are about 100 of us here now and more are coming," Cameron said.

"We walked in and politely gave the superintendent his eviction notice. We told the employees to take a day off and have a good time."

Report Urges Zero Growth

VANCOUVER (CP) — Population growth must be stopped if Vancouver is to remain habitable, according to a Greater Vancouver Regional District report leaked today.

The Province says the report, "still under wraps and in draft form," slaps hard at planners at every level of government and at politicians in regional and local governments for failing to meet the problems of growth.

Produced during the past year by a committee of 37 persons, the report is one of several being prepared by 250 citizen volunteers in a regional project called the livable region program.

The Province quotes the report as saying: "It would seem all of our municipal, regional and provincial planners, together or separately, have not been able to anticipate or to provide for the human needs of a growing population."

The report, according to the newspaper, says that people have been told that growth is inevitable and must be planned even though planners have failed to maintain livability in the face of growth and are unlikely to do so in future.

"Repeatedly the public has been forced to rally against its own planners and to defeat growth-oriented schemes such as the third crossing, downtown freeways and the Four Seasons complex," the Province quotes the report as saying.

Planners were not creating facilities for the future because it is unfair to tax people for the benefit of future users.

"The present population does not want to see the open spaces disappear, their neighborhoods become more crowded, their roads more congested or their social services and recreational facilities more burdened.

"However, it is also clear that cities reach a certain point where future increases in population do not lead to equivalent increases in financial or social faciliation, but rather the opposite. When cities continue to grow beyond that point, not only does the livability rapidly decrease, but also the tax base and go-

Senate Approves Ford Nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Senate approved overwhelmingly today the nomination of Rep. Gerald Ford as new vice-president. The House is expected next week to complete the historic first for Congress in filling the nation's second highest office.

Daylight Time

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House voted today to place the United States on daylight savings time until the end of April, 1975, in order to conserve energy. If the bill is passed by the Senate and signed into law by President Nixon, clocks would be turned ahead one hour beginning at 2 a.m. on the first Sunday that falls 15 days after the law is enacted.

City Ship Fined

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — CP Rail has paid the state $1,000 in fines for smoke emissions from the tourship Princess Patricia. The Victoria-based vessel violated Alaska's air pollution standards three times last summer during stops in Skagway and Juneau.

Prime Farmland?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Industry minister Gary Lauk announced here Monday his department has spent $4.3 million for 726 acres for an industrial park in Delta. The land purchased is prime farmland.

Lauk said he was hopeful the British Columbia Land Commission will allow us to go ahead."

Talks Boycotted

SAIGON (UPI) — The Viet Cong boycotted truce talks today, accusing the government of killing or wounding dozens of persons in air strikes against Communist regions of South Vietnam.

More Letter Bombs

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli security workers today discovered three letter bombs sent from Switzerland and dismantled them before they could explode, a communications ministry spokesman said.

Stock Markets Waver

Times News Services

NEW YORK — The stock market hovered uncertainly today after taking massive losses Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at close was down 7.22 at 817.73. Gainers and losers were about even this morning on New York Stock Exchange, where trading swung slightly upward after the opening, but most of the gains had evaporated by noon.

At Montreal all sectors of the stock market were off and in Toronto prices were off moderately in active trading.

(Wall Street analysts are saying the market is in a "creeping crash" rather than a precipitous decline, as explained in a business section story on Page 7.)

Monday, the Dow Jones average absorbed the fifth-largest loss in its 75-year history, plunging 29.05 points to finish at 824.95. It was the lowest closing for the bellwether indicator since Nov. 29, 1971—exactly two years ago — when it finished at 816.59.

U.S. Forcing Oil Use Cut

Times News Services

The U.S. government issued regulations to ration heating oil in such a way that Americans will be forced to make their homes and businesses cooler this winter.

The regulations are the specifics of what President Nixon announced in general Sunday. The government believes homes should be six degrees cooler and businesses and government offices 10 degrees cooler.

Every customer of heating oil will get a supply reduced by the amount necessary to force the lower thermostat settings.

The American move came as diplomats attending the Arab summit meeting in Algiers made no bones about their determination to deliver a virtual ultimatum to Western Europe to stop supporting Israel or face an even tougher oil boycott.

In private and public statements Arab leaders make it clear the European community rather than the United States will be the main target for their drive to isolate Israel because of Europe's heavy dependence on Arab oil.

In Paris, Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani warned today that any European attempt to help oil-deprived Holland would trigger retaliatory actions.

The minister, who is on a world-wide public relations campaign to explain the oil embargo by the Arab states, refused to spell out what retaliatory steps might be taken.

In Washington, President Nixon indicated to leaders of Congress he does not expect any loosening of the embargo until some progress takes place in Arab-Israeli peace talks.

It's a War of Nerves Along the Canal Zone

Times News Services

Egypt said today it is reviewing its decision to attend a proposed international peace conference on the Middle East, and an Egyptian official warned Israel the Egyptian armed forces are fully perpared for action if Israel does not withdraw to the Oct. 22 ceasefire lines.

The situation on the southern sector of the canal front south of Ismailia, where the Israelis broke through to the west bank during the October war, has now become a "war of nerves."

Newsmen Monday saw plenty of evidence that both sides are anticipating renewed fighting and preparing defensive positions.

Ahmed Anis, the official Egyptian spokesman, was asked at a Cairo news conference Egypt might refuse to attend the December Geneva conference if the current negotiations with Israel on the separation of their forces along the canal are not successful.

He said Israel is "playing for time" at the military meetings held at Kilometre 101 on the Cairo-Suez road and that "this can only reflect adversely its intentions towards the peace conference itself."

Asked about progress at the Kilometre 101 talks, Anis said:

"The Egyptian side has honored to the letter the UN document on the ceasefire stabilization.

"There is nothing so far to indicate the Israelis are going to do the same."

UNITED LAYS OFF 1,000 WORKERS

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — United Airlines today announced it will lay off more than 1,000 employees, including 300 pilots, and cancel 100 flights daily because of the fuel crisis.

Edward Carlson, president of the largest U.S. airline, said the cancellations had been scheduled even before President Nixon announced Sunday an additional 15 per cent cut in jet fuel delivery for airlines.

The new cutback would result in still more layoffs, he indicated.

Airlines in the U.S. already have reduced flights 6 to 7 per cent to bring them down to the level of service they provided in 1972.

One of the major reasons for the acute scarcity of aviation fuel — the administration estimates a 400,000-barrel-per-day shortage in the first part of 1974, nearly one-third of the demand — is the sudden reliance of the defence department on domestic fuel supplies because foreign sources have been cut off, according to White House energy chief John Love.
